Integration Leaders Reject St. Augustine Truce Offer

By PAUL WILLS

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla. (AP) —Negro integration leaders, rejecting an offer of a truce on the heels of renewed racial violence, said they would offer their own truce terms today.

However, the white population, angered by an attempt of Negroes to integrate a plush white motel swimming pool, indicated they might not be willing to listen.

"We will make a counter-proposal," said Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., after rejecting the special session grand jury presentment Thursday calling for a 30-day truce.

State Sen. Verle Pope, a spokesman for the businessmen's group, said the demonstrations Wednesday night and Thursday indicate a lack of good faith among the integrationists.

"The people of St. Augustine will never yield to stipulations set forth by outside groups," he said.

Fifty-seven more demonstrators, including 16 rabbis and a Jewish layman, went to jail Thursday—pushing the total arrests for the week to about 250.

Most remained in jail.

A melee erupted Thursday after five Negroes and two white integrationists jumped in a swimming pool at Monson Motor Lodge—a prime target of demonstrators.

Manager James Brock pushed and pulled some of the rabbis. An off-duty policeman yanked off his shoes, leaped into the pool and began grappling with one white man.

Brock brought dumped containers of muriatic acid, a cleansing fluid for pools, into the water. It was not strong enough to cause burns when diluted by the water.

North Katanga Capital Falls To Rebel Force

By ROBIN MANNOCK

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo (AP) — Albertville, capital of North Katanga on the shores of Lake Tanganyika, is believed to have fallen to antigovernment rebels, messages reaching Leopoldville said today.

One airline pilot reported the city's airfield was thick with armed men and truckloads of rebels were reported heading toward the town from the north.

Messages from Albertville and Elisabethville said the former city's European population of about 200 was in a state of panic. A number of whites escaped from Albertville Thursday night aboard a lake steamer, these messages said.

Radio messages from the city gave a confused picture. It was not known whether there had been any fighting between the rebels and Congolese soldiers.

A U.S. Embassy official said the U.S. consul in Elisabethville, Jonathan Dean, flew to Albertville this morning and was able to land, but later radioed he was unable to leave the airport.

The messages did not say which political faction had revolted. At the end of May, Provincial President Jason Sendwe's regime was overthrown in a brief uprising which cost more than 200 lives.

A traveler from North Katanga said today Sendwe, a former deputy premier in the Leopoldville government, was unpopular in Albertville and tried to resign a few days ago. He had

Senate Okay Predicted For Civil Rights Bill

National Debt Ceiling Hike Seen by Solons

By EDMOND LEBRETON

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate has another urgent piece of business to take up soon after it disposes of the civil rights bill—legislation to raise the national debt ceiling by $9 billion to $324 billion.

The House passed the legislation 203 to 182 Thursday after a stiff partisan battle. Twenty-eight Democrats crossed over, while no Republican backed the debt limit boost, which would apply through June 30, 1965.

Unless the Senate acts by July 1, the debt limit will drop automatically to $285 billion, well below the actual debt. Prompt action is expected.

If Congress fails to act, the Treasury would be forced to halt all borrowing immediately and probably would have to default on some of its obligations within two weeks.

The debt ceiling would drop from the present $315 billion to $309 billion on June 30, and the next day it would revert to the permanent limit of $285 billion. The debt now is about $313 billion.

Republicans tried to send the debt limit bill back to the Ways and Means Committee for consideration of a lower figure. The senior Republican member of the committee, Rep. John W. Byrnes of Wisconsin, said a vote for the administration-sought ceiling in effect backed what he called spending programs like the domestic peace corps and mass transportation programs.

"I think some brakes should be put on and this is the only brake I have," he said.

But Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., said the administraton has held the line on spending, keeping next year's budget below this one, and that experience proved a debt limit does not hold down expenditures. He said moreover, it is a myth "that we can get forgiveness from the American people for what we have done or failed to do all year on spending by casting a 'no' vote on this one occasion."

By JOE HALL

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ending its long historic debate, the Senate is expected to pass the civil rights bill by nightfall today.

The House is poised to start action on it immediately so that it can be in President Johnson's hands by July 4.

Senate leaders said a survey showed about four hours of speeches are left and estimated this would mean final passage by 6 p.m.

All 100 senators are expected to be on hand, including ailing Sen. Clair Engle, D-Calif. It was predicted that 75 or more would vote for passage.

"I'm hoping for 77 or 78," said Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., the bill's floor manager.

The leaders obtained 71 votes to impose the debate-limiting cloture last week. But some of the 29 senators who were against cloture have announced

Scranton Heads For Kentucky in Whirlwind Tour

By JACK LYNCH

On the eve of his flying trip to Louisville, Scranton disclosed receipt of a letter of endorsement from Dr. Milton S. Eisenhower, brother of former President Dwight D. Eisenhower. The former president himself has remained neutral in the campaign.

Scranton also told a news conference here last night that Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona, his

Campfire Blamed for Forest Blaze

An unidentified area camper whose campfire caused a blaze two miles west of Manitou Park Lake in Pike National Forest, will be prosecuted under state laws by the forest service.

The fire, which was reported at 1:10 p.m. Thursday, covered less than one acre and was extinguished by 4 p.m., Pike Forest officials said.

Rod Lewis was in charge of a six-man suppression crew which fought the fire with hand tools and a pumper.

Decentralization Of Agriculture Planned in Cuba

By MORRIS W. ROSENBERG

HAVANA (AP)—Cuba's land reform chief draws a bleak picture of farm production under the Castro regime, but he claims most pressing agricultural problems will be solved by 1966.

This will entail major changes in the organization of agriculture introduced after Fidel Castro came to power in 1959 and partial mechanization of the sugar harvest with 100 Soviet can cutters.

Carlos Rafael Rodriguez, president of the National Agrarian Reform Institute, revealed contemplated changes in farm methods — and the reasons for them — in an interview.

In two years, Rodriguez said, with nagging problems out of the way, "we'll be in full development which will enable us to achieve our goal of a 10-million-ton sugar crop in 1970."

Rodriguez, a member of the Cuban Communist hierarchy long before Castro won power, declined to comment on the outlook for the current sugar harvest. Castro has classified production top secret.

Western and Eastern European sources here speculate the crop will be somewhat above last year's reported 3.8 million tons. U.S. forecasters in Washington have predicted a drop to 3.3 million tons, less than half the 1960-61 output.

Another Quake Rocks Northern Japanese City

NIIGATA, Japan (AP)—Another earthquake rocked this northern port city tonight as it struggled with the aftermath of Tuesday's quake—Japan's most violent in 40 years.

Buildings already weakened on Tuesday suffered damage. But there were no immediate reports of new deaths or injuries.

The new quake hit as firemen were bringing under control a raging oil fire, set ablaze by the earlier tremor.

U.S. Air Force planes parachuted another 14 tons of fire fighting chemical foam to Niigata's weary firemen at dusk. A pilot said a block-square storage tank complex on the waterfront was still burning fiercely, shooting flames 300 to 400 feet into the air, as his plane made a pass over the stricken city.

A few minutes before the new quake, Niigata's fire chief said the fire was being contained in the ocean-front refinery area where more than 90 storage tanks went up in flames after Tuesday's quake.

The quake ripped across an 11 - prefecture area, killing a known total of 25, injuring more than 400, and leaving thousands homeless.

Door Kept Open for More Assassination Disclosures

By STERLING F. GREEN

WASHINGTON (AP) — The hearings are over and the findings due within a fortnight, but the Warren commission kept its door ajar today for any belated disclosures on the assassination of President John F. Kennedy.

If the presidential body headed by Chief Justice Earl Warren meets its timetable, the public will know by June 30 all that the investigative resources of the government could uncover on the Dallas tragedy of last Nov. 22.

President Johnson will receive a report totaling more than 500 pages, supported by transcripts of testimony which are said to rival in bulk the findings of the Pearl Harbor Commission after World War II.

There may be some surprises, commission sources have hinted. But there is no indication that the seven-month investigation has turned up any disclosures casting serious doubt on the FBI's original basic conclusions.

The FBI's report remains secret still, but it is known to indicate that Lee Harvey Oswald, the embittered ex - Marine marksman, conceived the slaying and executed it alone. Two days after the assassination, Oswald was shot to death in the Dallas jail by Jack Ruby, a Dallas night club operator.

It was learned, however, that the commission stands ready to receive any last-minute information offered and may itself recall witnesses if members find any points which need clarifying during the writing of the report.

In addition, FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover has predicted that investigations will continue "for years to come," even though the life of the Warren commission expires with the filing of its report.

The last of more than 400 witnesses was James J. Rowley, Chief of the U.S. Secret Service. He answered questions for 3½ hours Thursday. On leaving he revealed only that the atmosphere inside was "very pleasant."

Rowley has made no public statement whatsoever on the shooting which ended the life of the young President who personally picked him for his job.

It was believed that the commission, having already quizzed dozens of Rowley's agents and ballistics experts, asked the chief questions which went considerably beyond the adequacy of the precautions taken in Dallas and the behavior of the agents before, during and after the shooting.

Warren has indicated it is his view that the commission's assignment includes discretionary power to propose any changes or improvements it considers needed in the procedures for protecting the President and his family.

Some recommendations of that kind are expected, even though Secret Service procedures have been tightened rigorously since the assassination, and a considerably closer coop-

Security Board Will Re-Examine Tie in Election

The Security Park and Recreation District Board has not accepted the results of Thursday's election to extend boundaries of the district.

The vote was tied 47 for and 47 against the plan to extend park and recreation facilities to Widefield and other areas of School District 3 besides Security.

After polls closed at 7 p.m. in Watson Junior High School a knot of pro - park citizens, mostly from Widefield, gathered on the lawn outside park headquarters at 805 Main St.

"I'm very disappointed, but I'm ready to work in another election," said an unidentified woman from Widefield with children in the district's summer recreation program.

The park board held its regular monthly meeting after the vote tabulation was announced. Members said the election was "inconclusive" because of the tie vote.

Lawrence Addy, attorney for the park board, said the 47 to 47 vote was a negative one because a "simple majority" was needed for inclusion.

However, an election judge, Mrs. Jacqueline Saye, reported that three voters may not have met property ownership qualifications.

The board voted to canvass the election, either validating or rejecting the results of the election at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday.

"If the election is validated, the request for another election will have to come from Widefield residents by petition," said Morris.

The board delayed its previously announced intention to up non - resident use fees for the summer recreation program. Now $1 a program is

By JERRY RANKIN

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—California Democrats greet President Johnson today in unity, the scars of a bitter party primary healed in an effort to deliver the nation's most populous state to him in November.

As the president heads into a weekend tour, the familiar figure of his former White House press secretary, Pierre Salinger, was up front with state leaders saying hello. Salinger defeated State Controller Alan Cranston for the Democratic senatorial nomination June 2.

Johnson's first stop was top-secret Edwards Air Force Base in Southern California desert country. Next in line was a plane hop to San Francisco, then a helicopter jaunt across San Francisco Bay.

At Concord, the chief executive was to break ground for the country's pioneer rapid transit system, a $792 million project linking San Francisco and urban areas across the bay.

On tap for tonight was a $100-a-plate party "Salute to President Johnson" dinner.

Friday morning, Johnson will go on to Southern California.

Chavez Assault Trial Expected To Go to Jury

It is expected that the case of Eliseo Antonio Chavez will go to the jury sometime this afternoon.

Chavez, 29, 231 N. Cheyenne Ave. is being tried in District Court for assault with a deadly weapon. He is alleged to have attacked his wife Martha, 29, 317 E. Vermijo St. with a butcher's knife and paring knife at her home April 15.

Much of Thursday's testimony, the third day of the trial, was devoted to the question of the defendant's sanity or insanity. He has pleaded innocent and innocent by reason of insanity and though an examination by Dr. Paul Draper found him legally sane he is still standing on the insanity plea.

The first witness of the day, Mrs. Mary Truman who owns the house where Mrs. Chavez lives, said "I don't think there's anything wrong with Mr. Chavez." He "seemed rather smart" to her and in her opinion he was sane, she told Deputy District Attorney Jack Roe-

British Student Is Kicked Out By Muscovites

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Foreign Ministry has ordered the expulsion of a British student who tried to marry a Russian girl.

The Soviets told the British Embassy that Mervyn Matthews, 31, a Welshman from Swansea, had engaged in "impermissible activities incompatible with the status of a foreign research student."

They also charged Matthews with conducting "propaganda hostile to the Soviet Union and speculating in articles of everyday use."

The British Embassy protested and indicated student exchanges might be affected. A spokesman said the embassy had no evidence to support the Soviet claim that Matthews had engaged in anti-Soviet propaganda.

Matthews, an Oxford graduate, has been studying Soviet labor affairs at Moscow University.

Last week, he took his Russian fiance, Ludmilla Bibikova, 30, to Moscow's No. 1 wedding place to get married. Officials turned them away, saying their documents were not in order.

Two Plan to Cross Ocean In Homemade Ketch

By BEN FUNK

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP)—A schoolmaster with no experience on the sea and a blonde woman doctor will set sail Monday in a homemade, 28-foot ketch for England and home.

"We don't anticipate it will be easy going," said Ray Wilkinson, 33.

His companion, Dr. Julia Ambler, 27, will provide some know how. She crossed the Atlantic last February as one of two girl crew members with a party of five doctors sailing to the Bahamas in a 35-foot boat.

"She wanted to go back," Wilkinson said, "and I needed a crew. I have only limited sailing experience and none on the high seas."

Wilkinson built the ketch Odette in his spare time while serving as head master of the elementary school at Rock Sound, Eleuthera, in the Bahamas.

Asked if a romance was brewing between him and Dr. Ambler, Wilkinson replied: "No. Well I don't know."

After a four-day voyage from Nassau, the couple stopped here to buy supplies.

The first 1,200-mile leg of the trip home will take them to Bermuda. After a short rest, they will sail 2,700 miles to the Azores. There they will rest again before the 1,400-mile run to England. They expect to complete the voyage in 60 days.

Soon after starting his teaching assignment, Wilkinson began building the boat. It took all his spare time and $1,000 a year from his $4,200 annual salary.

Dr. Ambler chanced to show up at the dock in Nassau a few days before Wilkinson shoved off for Florida.

"I'm thankful to her," Wilkinson said. "She has had more experience than I sailing at sea."

The ketch, valued at $12,000, has only a 10-horsepower engine for auxiliary power. It has a receiving radio but no transmission facilities.

Record Crime Increase Reported by FBI Chief

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Crime in the United States jumped 19 per cent during the first three months of this year, more than 2½ times as much as the increase reported a year ago, FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover said today.

The crime rate was up 7 per cent in the first three months of 1963, up 9 per cent for the first six months, up 10 per cent in the third quarter and up 10 per cent for all of last year.

Hoover said the January-March increase this year was heaviest in crimes against property, with auto theft up 22 per cent, grand larceny up 21 per cent, and robbery and burglary both up 18 per cent.

In crimes against persons, forcible rape was up 22 per cent, murder was up 17 per cent and aggravated assault rose 14 per cent during the first quarter.

Hoover said the increases were nationwide and occurred in all population groups.

Man Survives 39-Hour, 80-Mile Swim in Atlantic

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Leo Ledoux rested today from the effects of what he said was a 39-hour, 80-mile swim in the Atlantic which started as a suicide attempt but ended as a dramatic struggle for life.

"I wanted to drown myself when I started," he said.

He was pulled from the water about 1 p.m. Thursday by a fishing boat 3½ miles off Riviera Beach. This is approximately 80 miles north of where he said he entered the water on Miami Beach at 10:45 p.m. Monday.

He swam all night. Tuesday morning a yacht spotted him about five miles off shore and offered to pick him up.

Still thinking about suicide, Ledoux told the yacht owner: "I'm not going that way."

The yacht reported the incident to the Miami Coast Guard. A helicopter and 40-foot cutter were sent to search the area but failed to spot a swimmer.

Ledoux, a powerfully built 160-pound bachelor and ex-seaman with an engineer's rating for steam pumps, said: "I saw the helicopter, but was still thinking about drowning."

He swam, floated, drifted and thought through the day.

"I got awful weak. I thought about trying to find an island, swimming ashore and starting everything all over again," he said.

He managed to survive through the night and was picked up by the fishing boat.

Ledoux said he had a little more than $9 when he decided to take the one-way swim. He said he left $8 in his room to cover his back rent.

He ate a small meal and had $1 and some small change when he got to the beach. He stacked his clothing, put a cheap watch and the money in his shoes near a seawall and waded into the water, Ledoux said.

Palm Beach County police, who questioned Ledoux after his rescue, asked Miami Beach police to check the story.

They found Ledoux's clothing where he said they would be.

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Leo Ledoux rested today from the effects of what he said was a 39-hour, 80-mile swim in the Atlantic which started as a suicide attempt but ended as a dramatic struggle for life.

"I wanted to drown myself when I started," he said.

He was pulled from the water about 1 p.m. Thursday by a fishing boat 3½ miles off Riviera Beach. This is approximately 80 miles north of where he said he entered the water on Miami Beach at 10:45 p.m. Monday.

He swam all night. Tuesday morning a yacht spotted him about five miles off shore and offered to pick him up.

Still thinking about suicide, Ledoux told the yacht owner: "I'm not going that way."

The yacht reported the incident to the Miami Coast Guard. A helicopter and 40-foot cutter were sent to search the area but failed to spot a swimmer.

Ledoux, a powerfully built 160-pound bachelor and ex-seaman with an engineer's rating for steam pumps, said: "I saw the helicopter, but was still thinking about drowning."

He swam, floated, drifted and thought through the day.

"I got awful weak. I thought about trying to find an island, swimming ashore and starting everything all over again," he said.

He managed to survive through the night and was picked up by the fishing boat.

Ledoux said he had a little more than $9 when he decided to take the one-way swim. He said he left $8 in his room to cover his back rent.

He ate a small meal and had $1 and some small change when he got to the beach. He stacked his clothing, put a cheap watch and the money in his shoes near a seawall and waded into the water, Ledoux said.

Palm Beach County police, who questioned Ledoux after his rescue, asked Miami Beach police to check the story.

They found Ledoux's clothing where he said they would be.

But the money and watch were gone.

British Student Is Kicked Out By Muscovites

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Foreign Ministry has ordered the expulsion of a British student who tried to marry a Russian girl.

The Soviets told the British Embassy that Mervyn Matthews, 31, a Welshman from Swansea, had engaged in "impermissible activities incompatible with the status of a foreign research student."

They also charged Matthews with conducting "propaganda hostile to the Soviet Union and speculating in articles of everyday use."

The British Embassy protested and indicated student exchanges might be affected. A spokesman said the embassy had no evidence to support the Soviet claim that Matthews had engaged in anti-Soviet propaganda.

Matthews, an Oxford graduate, has been studying Soviet labor affairs at Moscow University.

Last week, he took his Russian fiance, Ludmilla Bibikova, 30, to Moscow's No. 1 wedding place to get married. Officials turned them away, saying their documents were not in order.

North Katanga Capital Falls To Rebel Force

By ROBIN MANNOCK

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo (AP) — Albertville, capital of North Katanga on the shores of Lake Tanganyika, is believed to have fallen to antigovernment rebels, messages reaching Leopoldville said today.

One airline pilot reported the city's airfield was thick with armed men and truckloads of rebels were reported heading toward the town from the north.

Messages from Albertville and Elisabethville said the former city's European population of about 200 was in a state of panic. A number of whites escaped from Albertville Thursday night aboard a lake steamer, these messages said.

Radio messages from the city gave a confused picture. It was not known whether there had been any fighting between the rebels and Congolese soldiers.

A U.S. Embassy official said the U.S. consul in Elisabethville, Jonathan Dean, flew to Albertville this morning and was able to land, but later radioed he was unable to leave the airport.

The messages did not say which political faction had revolted. At the end of May, Provincial President Jason Sendwe's regime was overthrown in a brief uprising which cost more than 200 lives.

A traveler from North Katanga said today Sendwe, a former deputy premier in the Leopoldville government, was unpopular in Albertville and tried to resign a few days ago. He had

Security Board Will Re-Examine Tie in Election

The Security Park and Recreation District Board has not accepted the results of Thursday's election to extend boundaries of the district.

The vote was tied 47 for and 47 against the plan to extend park and recreation facilities to Widefield and other areas of School District 3 besides Security.

After polls closed at 7 p.m. in Watson Junior High School a knot of pro - park citizens, mostly from Widefield, gathered on the lawn outside park headquarters at 805 Main St.

"I'm very disappointed, but I'm ready to work in another election," said an unidentified woman from Widefield with children in the district's summer recreation program.

The park board held its regular monthly meeting after the vote tabulation was announced. Members said the election was "inconclusive" because of the tie vote.

Lawrence Addy, attorney for the park board, said the 47 to 47 vote was a negative one because a "simple majority" was needed for inclusion.

However, an election judge, Mrs. Jacqueline Saye, reported that three voters may not have met property ownership qualifications.

The board voted to canvass the election, either validating or rejecting the results of the election at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday.

"If the election is validated, the request for another election will have to come from Widefield residents by petition," said Morris.

The board delayed its previously announced intention to up non - resident use fees for the summer recreation program. Now $1 a program is

Record Crime Increase Reported by FBI Chief

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Crime in the United States jumped 19 per cent during the first three months of this year, more than 2½ times as much as the increase reported a year ago, FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover said today.

The crime rate was up 7 per cent in the first three months of 1963, up 9 per cent for the first six months, up 10 per cent in the third quarter and up 10 per cent for all of last year.

Hoover said the January-March increase this year was heaviest in crimes against property, with auto theft up 22 per cent, grand larceny up 21 per cent, and robbery and burglary both up 18 per cent.

In crimes against persons, forcible rape was up 22 per cent, murder was up 17 percent and aggravated assault rose 14 per cent during the first quarter.

Hoover said the increases were nationwide and occurred in all population groups.

Senate Okay Predicted For Civil Rights Bill

By JOE HALL

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ending its long historic debate, the Senate is expected to pass the civil rights bill by nightfall today.

The House is poised to start action on it immediately so that it can be in President Johnson's hands by July 4.

Senate leaders said a survey showed about four hours of speeches are left and estimated this would mean final passage by 6 p.m.

All 100 senators are expected to be on hand, including ailing Sen. Clair Engle, D-Calif. It was predicted that 75 or more would vote for passage.

"I'm hoping for 77 or 78," said Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., the bill's floor manager.

The leaders obtained 71 votes to impose the debate-limiting cloture last week. But some of the 29 senators who were against cloture have announced

National Debt Ceiling Hike Seen by Solons

By EDMOND LEBRETON

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate has another urgent piece of business to take up soon after it disposes of the civil rights bill—legislation to raise the national debt ceiling by $9 billion to $324 billion.

The House passed the legislation 203 to 182 Thursday after a stiff partisan battle. Twenty-eight Democrats crossed over, while no Republican backed the debt limit boost, which would apply through June 30, 1965.

Unless the Senate acts by July 1, the debt limit will drop automatically to $285 billion, well below the actual debt. Prompt action is expected.

If Congress fails to act, the Treasury would be forced to halt all borrowing immediately and probably would have to default on some of its obligations within two weeks.

The debt ceiling would drop from the present $315 billion to $309 billion on June 30, and the next day it would revert to the permanent limit of $285 billion. The debt now is about $313 billion.

Republicans tried to send the debt limit bill back to the Ways and Means Committee for consideration of a lower figure. The senior Republican member of the committee, Rep. John W. Byrnes of Wisconsin, said a vote for the administration-sought ceiling in effect backed what he called spending programs like the domestic peace corps and mass transportation programs.

"I think some brakes should be put on and this is the only brake I have," he said.

But Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., said the administraton has held the line on spending, keeping next year's budget below this one, and that experience proved a debt limit does not hold down expenditures. He said moreover, it is a myth "that we can get forgiveness from the American people for what we have done or failed to do all year on spending by casting a 'no' vote on this one occasion."

Scranton Heads For Kentucky in Whirlwind Tour

By JACK LYNCH

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP)—Gov. William W. Scranton of Pennsylvania, back from a whirlwind tour of the Midwest, today heads for Kentucky in his campaign for the Republican presidential nomination.

On the eve of his flying trip to Louisville, Scranton disclosed receipt of a letter of endorsement from Dr. Milton S. Eisenhower, brother of former President Dwight D. Eisenhower. The former president himself has remained neutral in the campaign.

Scranton also told a news conference here last night that Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona, his

By JERRY RANKIN

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—California Democrats greet President Johnson today in unity, the scars of a bitter party primary healed in an effort to deliver the nation's most populous state to him in November.

As the president heads into a weekend tour, the familiar figure of his former White House press secretary, Pierre Salinger, was up front with state leaders saying hello. Salinger defeated State Controller Alan Cranston for the Democratic senatorial nomination June 2.

Johnson's first stop was top-secret Edwards Air Force Base in Southern California desert country. Next in line was a plane hop to San Francisco, then a helicopter jaunt across San Francisco Bay.

At Concord, the chief executive was to break ground for the country's pioneer rapid transit system, a $792 million project linking San Francisco and urban areas across the bay.

On tap for tonight was a $100-a-plate party "Salute to President Johnson" dinner.

Friday morning, Johnson will go on to Southern California.

Campfire Blamed for Forest Blaze

An unidentified area camper whose campfire caused a blaze two miles west of Manitou Park Lake in Pike National Forest, will be prosecuted under state laws by the forest service.

The fire, which was reported at 1:10 p.m. Thursday, covered less than one acre and was extinguished by 4 p.m., Pike Forest officials said.

Rod Lewis was in charge of a six-man suppression crew which fought the fire with hand tools and a pumper.

Chavez Assault Trial Expected To Go to Jury

It is expected that the case of Eliseo Antonio Chavez will go to the jury sometime this afternoon.

Chavez, 29, 231 N. Cheyenne Ave. is being tried in District Court for assault with a deadly weapon. He is alleged to have attacked his wife Martha, 29, 317 E. Vermijo St. with a butcher's knife and paring knife at her home April 15.

Much of Thursday's testimony, the third day of the trial, was devoted to the question of the defendant's sanity or insanity. He has pleaded innocent and innocent by reason of insanity and though an examination by Dr. Paul Draper found him legally sane he is still standing on the insanity plea.

The first witness of the day, Mrs. Mary Truman who owns the house where Mrs. Chavez lives, said "I don't think there's anything wrong with Mr. Chavez." He "seemed rather smart" to her and in her opinion he was sane, she told Deputy District Attorney Jack Roe-

Decentralization Of Agriculture Planned in Cuba

By MORRIS W. ROSENBERG

HAVANA (AP)—Cuba's land reform chief draws a bleak picture of farm production under the Castro regime, but he claims most pressing agricultural problems will be solved by 1966.

This will entail major changes in the organization of agriculture introduced after Fidel Castro came to power in 1959 and partial mechanization of the sugar harvest with 100 Soviet can cutters.

Carlos Rafael Rodriguez, president of the National Agrarian Reform Institute, revealed contemplated changes in farm methods — and the reasons for them — in an interview.

In two years, Rodriguez said, with nagging problems out of the way, "we'll be in full development which will enable us to achieve our goal of a 10-million-ton sugar crop in 1970."

Rodriguez, a member of the Cuban Communist hierarchy long before Castro won power, declined to comment on the outlook for the current sugar harvest. Castro has classified production top secret.

Western and Eastern European sources here speculate the crop will be somewhat above last year's reported 3.8 million tons. U.S. forecasters in Washington have predicted a drop to 3.3 million tons, less than half the 1960-61 output.

Another Quake Rocks Northern Japanese City

NIIGATA, Japan (AP)—Another earthquake rocked this northern port city tonight as it struggled with the aftermath of Tuesday's quake—Japan's most violent in 40 years.

Buildings already weakened on Tuesday suffered damage. But there were no immediate reports of new deaths or injuries.

The new quake hit as firemen were bringing under control a raging oil fire, set ablaze by the earlier tremor.

U.S. Air Force planes parachuted another 14 tons of fire fighting chemical foam to Niigata's weary firemen at dusk. A pilot said a block-square storage tank complex on the waterfront was still burning fiercely, shooting flames 300 to 400 feet into the air, as his plane made a pass over the stricken city.

A few minutes before the new quake, Niigata's fire chief said the fire was being contained in the ocean-front refinery area where more than 90 storage tanks went up in flames after Tuesday's quake.

The quake ripped across an 11 - prefecture area, killing a known total of 25, injuring more than 400, and leaving thousands homeless.

Two Plan to Cross Ocean In Homemade Ketch

By BEN FUNK

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP)—A schoolmaster with no experience on the sea and a blonde woman doctor will set sail Monday in a homemade, 28-foot ketch for England and home.

"We don't anticipate it will be easy going," said Ray Wilkinson, 33.

His companion, Dr. Julia Ambler, 27, will provide some know how. She crossed the Atlantic last February as one of two girl crew members with a party of five doctors sailing to the Bahamas in a 35-foot boat.

"She wanted to go back," Wilkinson said, "and I needed a crew. I have only limited sailing experience and none on the high seas."

Wilkinson built the ketch Odette in his spare time while serving as head master of the elementary school at Rock Sound, Eleuthera, in the Bahamas.

Asked if a romance was brewing between him and Dr. Ambler, Wilkinson replied: "No. Well I don't know."

After a four-day voyage from Nassau, the couple stopped here to buy supplies.

The first 1,200-mile leg of the trip home will take them to Bermuda. After a short rest, they will sail 2,700 miles to the Azores. There they will rest again before the 1,400-mile run to England. They expect to complete the voyage in 60 days.

Soon after starting his teaching assignment, Wilkinson began building the boat. It took all his spare time and $1,000 a year from his $4,200 annual salary.

Dr. Ambler chanced to show up at the dock in Nassau a few days before Wilkinson shoved off for Florida.

"I'm thankful to her," Wilkinson said. "She has had more experience than I sailing at sea."

The ketch, valued at $12,000, has only a 10-horsepower engine for auxiliary power. It has a receiving radio but no transmission facilities.

Volunteers Plan To Help Negro Voter Registry

T Bs DON BANDY

OXFORD, Ohio (AP)—About 200 collegians, specially trained for a summer-long campaign to register Negro voters in Mississippi, are getting ready to head south, and some admit they're scared.

The young people, vanguard of a volunteer task force of 1,000, leaves Oxford today after a week's training for the "Mississippi Summer Project."

Most of them are white and most of them are new to civil rights work.

"I'm apprehensive and going fully prepared for the worst," said G. D. Zimmermann, 22, of Carrington, N.D.

The students, most of whom attend northern and western colleges, are going south at their own expense. They'll be living with Negro families.

Why are they going?

I feel I have something to offer and a lot to gain," said Karen Pate, 20.

Karen, whose hometown is Prairie, Ore., said she washed dishes in a University of Oregon cafeteria to earn money for the trip.

"The injustices to the Negro in Mississippi are also an infringement upon my rights," said Mario Savio, 21, a student at the University of California in Berkeley.

The students spent all week in an orientation program at Western College for Women, sponsored by the National Council of Churches' commission on religion and race, along with Mississippi civil rights groups, united under the Council of Federated Organizations.

Robert P. Moses, 29, project director, called the program — organized mainly by the Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee — a "psychological invasion." He said he expected "entry of the students into the state without difficulty," but noted that opposition to the project is shaping up.

"None of the students will be asked to participate in sit-ins and no marches are planned, except from some picketing around courthouses where voters are registered," Moses said.

By ED MCCLUSKER

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Armed with a reinforced highway patrol and new laws, Mississippi was prepared today for the first wave of a summer corps of college volunteers to work among Negroes.

The first group — fresh from a special training session at Western College for Women in Oxford, Ohio — was to arrive this weekend.

The students will be the first of about 1,000 volunteers who will live among Negroes and staff workshops for civil rights campaigns sponsored by the Council of Federated Organizations, representing major civil rights organizations, and the National Council of Churches commission on race and religion.

Both projects are aimed at assisting Negroes in registering to vote, gaining knowledge of assistance programs and in self-help projects such as remedial reading.

The volunteers were called an "army of agitators" by some lawmakers when the Legislature passed bills giving the state a firmer hand in dealing with demonstrators.

Gov. Paul Johnson has repeatedly urged peace and quiet among residents, saying, "Demonstrators thrive on publicity. When they don't get it, they soon leave us alone."

Erle Johnston, director of the State Soviereignty Commission, called on Mississippians to let police handle any confrontations. He urged them to steer clear of such groups as the Ku Klux Klan and Americans for the Preservation of the White Race, Inc. The latter organization has a strong following in southwest Mississippi where Robert Moses, program director of the civil rights groups, claims five Negroes have been killed in racial-related attacks by white persons.

Blamer Hill, president of the Mississippi Economic Council, a state Chamber of Commerce group, called for calm and patience.

"Within the next few weeks, the patience and self-control of Mississippians will, no doubt, be taxed to an extreme degree by the unfriendly activities of many outside students and adults coming into our state," he said.

He said it is necessary that state residents conduct themselves with dignity, poise, forebearance and, if possible, good humor.

Seven million of Italy's 51.5 million people are over 70 years old.

T Bs DON BANDY

OXFORD, Ohio (AP)—About 200 collegians, specially trained for a summer-long campaign to register Negro voters in Mississippi, are getting ready to head south, and some admit they're scared.

The young people, vanguard of a volunteer task force of 1,000, leaves Oxford today after a week's training for the "Mississippi Summer Project."

Most of them are white and most of them are new to civil rights work.

"I'm apprehensive and going fully prepared for the worst," said G. D. Zimmermann, 22, of Carrington, N.D.

The students, most of whom attend northern and western colleges, are going south at their own expense. They'll be living with Negro families.

Why are they going?

I feel I have something to offer and a lot to gain," said Karen Pate, 20.

Karen, whose hometown is Prairie, Ore., said she washed dishes in a University of Oregon cafeteria to earn money for the trip.

"The injustices to the Negro in Mississippi are also an infringement upon my rights," said Mario Savio, 21, a student at the University of California in Berkeley.

The students spent all week in an orientation program at Western College for Women, sponsored by the National Council of Churches' commission on religion and race, along with Mississippi civil rights groups, united under the Council of Federated Organizations.

Robert P. Moses, 29, project director, called the program — organized mainly by the Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee — a "psychological invasion." He said he expected "entry of the students into the state without difficulty," but noted that opposition to the project is shaping up.

"None of the students will be asked to participate in sit-ins and no marches are planned, except from some picketing around courthouses where voters are registered," Moses said.

By ED MCCLUSKER

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Armed with a reinforced highway patrol and new laws, Mississippi was prepared today for the first wave of a summer corps of college volunteers to work among Negroes.

The first group — fresh from a special training session at Western College for Women in Oxford, Ohio — was to arrive this weekend.

The students will be the first of about 1,000 volunteers who will live among Negroes and staff workshops for civil rights campaigns sponsored by the Council of Federated Organizations, representing major civil rights organizations, and the National Council of Churches commission on race and religion.

Both projects are aimed at assisting Negroes in registering to vote, gaining knowledge of assistance programs and in self-help projects such as remedial reading.

The volunteers were called an "army of agitators" by some lawmakers when the Legislature passed bills giving the state a firmer hand in dealing with demonstrators.

Gov. Paul Johnson has repeatedly urged peace and quiet among residents, saying, "Demonstrators thrive on publicity. When they don't get it, they soon leave us alone."

Erle Johnston, director of the State Sovereignty Commission, called on Mississippians to let police handle any confrontations. He urged them to steer clear of such groups as the Ku Klux Klan and Americans for the Preservation of the White Race, Inc. The latter organization has a strong following in southwest Mississippi where Robert Moses, program director of the civil rights groups, claims five Negroes have been killed in racial-related attacks by white persons.

Blamer Hill, president of the Mississippi Economic Council, a state Chamber of Commerce group, called for calm and patience.

"Within the next few weeks, the patience and self-control of Mississippians will, no doubt, be taxed to an extreme degree by the unfriendly activities of many outside students and adults coming into our state," he said.

He said it is necessary that state residents conduct themselves with dignity, poise, forebearance and, if possible, good humor.

Gridiron to Be Well Manicured

CULLMAN, Ala. (AP) -- Cullman High School's football field will be one of the state's best-manicured gridirons this fall.

Six youths have been sentenced by Recorder's Court Judge Tom Smith to work 20 hours each on cutting and trimming the grass on the oval.

The boys all pleaded guilty Thursday to charges of painting "CHS class of '64—go, go, go" on businesses and other property in Cullman.

One of the lads said he could work out his sentence on Saturdays. Seems he took a summer job—as a painter for the Cullman County School Board.

Filipinos Are Not Impressed By Hillbillies

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — "The Beverly Hillbillies" may be our most popular television show, but it hasn't even caused a ripple of laughter among viewers of the Philippine Islands.

The most popular program now seen on the islands' 100,000 television sets is a whodunit series called "Crisis." On NBC here it's called "Suspense Theatre." Other perennial favorites are "The Defenders," "Twilight Zone," the Walt Disney Show, "Perry Mason"—and recent feature movies released to television.

P. K. Macker, publisher of the English-language Philippines Herald and manager of three of the islands' TV stations, currently is on a $250,000 shopping trip in New York and Hollywood for at least 20 programs.

"Of course we like comedy," he said. "But most of your comedy shows are just not understood by our viewers. Funny lines about Las Vegas don't mean a thing to them. They've never seen hillbillies or even heard of them. They don't have the same political problems, suburban life or even the same kind of reading material. The result is that the comedy just isn't funny.

"I've been in the Philippines only for three years and a lot of the TV jokes are pointless for me."

He has been sampling an average of 10 programs a day during his New York visit, ranging from the serious "Profiles in Courage," based on the John F. Kennedy book, to "Peyton Place," based on a spicy best-seller.

"From the standpoint of the foreign audience, next year's product is the best I've seen," he said. "Most shows would go very well."

Philippine audiences, although they do not find our comedy shows very funny do have somewhat similar fads. Westerns, once popular, are now beginning to lose their glamor, he said. War shows are holding up well.

LANDS SAFELY

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — An Eastern Air Lines plane landed safely Thursday at International Airport after reporting it had lost hydraulic pressure. Three tires blew out, but the landing gear was down when the craft touched ground.

The plane, which carried a crew of seven and 27 passengers, was from New York and had stopped at Houston.

FIRST PRESIDENTIAL OUTSIDER

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — Abraham Lincoln of Kentucky was the first U.S. president born outside the original 13 states.

"There is no language problem, and our people are too sophisticated to enjoy old Charlie Chan movies," Macker said. "They would probably like any show—even topical comedy—if the star were a movie personality they have seen often and felt they knew."

CBS programming vice president Michael Dann, already hard at work lining up programs for the TV season after next, believes that "the hospital show and the lawyer show have had it, and it appears that the next thing that will be popular will be a modfied western form —emphasis on character, not shooting."

Auditor Captures New Jersey Bandit

POINT PLEASANT BEACH, N.J. (AP)—"I made a decision he shouldn't get away with any assets of my bank."

That was the comment of Paul Jones, 47, who captured a holdup man as the bandit walked out of the Ocean County National Bank with $1,051.

Jones, an auditor, grabbed the man on the sidewalk. He applied a judo hold he had learned years ago in the Navy, then steered the man back into the bank to await police.

Police arrested Walter J. Odorczyk, 49, of Trenton, and said he would be charged with violating federal bank robbery statutes.

Police said the robber had ordered teller Peter T. Duffy to fill a bag with bills. As Duffy filled the bag, he triggered an alarm bell, sending Jones into action.

Dear Abby--

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Correction!

DEAR ABBY: I read in your column that a woman was in doubt about what to put on her mother's headstone. The mother had been married twice, and the daughter wanted to use only her mother's FIRST husband's name. You said, "It's your mother, and you are paying for the monument, so go ahead and put whatever you want on it," or words to that effect. Believe it or not, Abby, in some states the name on a grave memorial is considered by the Bureau of Vital Statistics to be legal proof of death, and to use any name other than the legal name of the deceased at the time of death is illegal. So, the daughter should have her mother's headstone marked with her mother's given name, her first husband's surname, and her second husband's surname. Example: MARY SMITH JONES. —A MONUMENT DEALER IN FLAGSTAFF

DEAR DEALER: Thank you for setting me (and 50 million readers) straight. When I make a boo-boo, it's monumental! Correction: In marking a headstone, it is not daughter's choice. It's dealer's choice. And he knows what's legal, so ask him.

DEAR ABBY: Please print this so someone else won't make the same mistake I made: Five months ago a very attractive friend called me at my place of work and said he was in the process of getting a divorce, and asked if I would have coffee with him. I accepted. Next there were lunch dates. Then dinner and evening dates. He told me he loved me and I told him I loved him. (I really did.) We started making plans for "our" future. People began to talk, but I didn't care because I knew it was only a matter of time and he would be free to marry me.

Today he and his wife are back together. The man who "loved" me didn't even have the courtesy to tell me about the reconciliation. He had his WIFE call me! Please, Abby, put this in your column: "Until a man's divorce is FINAL, a woman is a fool to say more than 'hello' to him." And sign me . . . —THE BIGGEST FOOL IN ROCHESTER

DEAR ABBY: I have a married daughter who has become very fat, sloppy and lazy. Her house is a mess and she spends all of her time reading or talking on the telephone. She shouts at her children and expects her hard-working husband to do her housework on the weekends. He is ashamed to bring anyone to the house and I am sure the children are not very proud of their home or mother. Should I have a talk with her and try to set her straight? Or does a mother's duty end after her daughter gets married? —WORRIED MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: A mother's "duty" ends when her children become of age. But her love and concern for their happiness and well-being continues as long as she lives. Yes, have a talk with your daughter. It would appear that she needs more than a "talk" or a reprimand. Take her to a physician for a much-needed checkup and diet.

DEAR ABBY: How can a person address an invitation to a wedding reception to make it known that only adults are wanted? Ours is going to be a catered wedding reception and will be charged by the plate. We have a large family and don't want to feed a gang of kids. Can we put "POSITIVELY ADULTS ONLY" on the invitations? —MUST KNOW

DEAR MUST: It is considered poor taste to put "ADULTS ONLY" on an invitation. Speak with those whom you suspect might bring their children, and tell them firmly but diplomatically that the kiddies are not invited.

Problems? Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif., 90069. For a personal reply, enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Night School Credited For His Self-Confidence

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP)—Doug Trent, who says night school taught him self-confidence, arrived in Greensboro Thursday after a 10-day bicycle trip from Chicago.

Trent, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. James L. Trent of Chicago, sai dhe averaged 80 to 90 miles a day on the 860-mile trip.

He said the night school course that impressed him the most was called the "science of success."

"I can personally say that the course I had in self-confidence has done me a lot of good," Trent said. "When I got about halfway up some of those steep hills on my bike I thought I could either get off and walk the rest of the way or say to myself 'You're going to ride all the way.' I rode."

DEATH TOLL CLIMBS

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, Mont., fears the death toll from recent floods in his state will exceed that of the recent earthquake in Alaska.

Mansfield sadly told the Senate that 28 dead already have been counted and that 135 more persons are unaccounted for. He said most of these are Blackfoot Indians.

Opinions Differ On Barry's Civil Rights Bill Vote

By WALTER R. MEARS

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Barry Goldwater's decision to vote against the civil rights bill has triggered a warning from Pennsylvania Gov. William W. Scranton that it means the senator would be unable to defeat President Johnson next November.

But a Southern Democrat, Sen. Allen J. Ellender of Louisiana, says that if Goldwater front-runner for the GOP nomination votes against the measure, he could carry the South against the President.

Their reactions came shortly after Goldwater had told the Senate late Thursday he is "unalterably opposed to discrimination of any sort" but is opposed to the bill because two sections of it "fly in the face of the Constitution."

He said he feels these two sections — the public accommodations and equal employment titles — are a threat to individual freedoms.

Goldwater is known to feel that the reaction to his decision might knock out of his column some of his Republican National Convention delegates.

But the Arizona senator insisted Thursday he had voted as a matter of principle, not of political expediency.

One possible effect: To underscore the differences between Goldwater and Scranton who is his 11th hour challenger for the nomination.

That is what Scranton has been trying to do since he launched his campaign last Friday. Goldwater conceeds that civil rights is one point on which they disagree.

Scranton quickly sought to turn the Goldwater decision into ammunition for his own crusade. In declaring it means Goldwater cannot defeat Johnson next November, Scranton said "the overwhelming majority of people in America favor the civil rights bill."

Sens. Kenneth B. Keating and Jacob K. Javits of New York, foes of Goldwater's bid for the nomination, both criticized the senator.

"I think it is tragic," said Javits. "It enormously complicates our party's position in San Francisco. It further confirms my support for Gov. Scranton."

But Ellender said, "If he votes against this bill he is going to give the President a tough battle."

Goldwater himself has said the Republicans need the south to win this year.

Five months ago, Goldwater said the big city Negro vote: "I couldn't get enough of the Negro vote to worry about what I did on any legislation. I regret that." He made that comment in Chicago Feb. 8.

Goldwater announced his civil rights vote after telling former President Dwight D. Eisenhower about it in a secret flying visit to Gettysburg, Pa.

"We had a general discussion for about an hour," he said back in Washington.

Lost in the shuffle as Goldwater made his statement on the Senate floor was the fact that he has been saying for months he would vote against the civil rights bill if it included the public accommodations and equal employment sections.

Auditor Captures New Jersey Bandit

POINT PLEASANT BEACH, N.J. (AP)—"I made a decision he shouldn't get away with any assets of my bank."

That was the comment of Paul Jones, 47, who captured a holdup man as the bandit walked out of the Ocean County National Bank with $1,051.

Jones, an auditor, grabbed the man on the sidewalk. He applied a judo hold he had learned years ago in the Navy, then steered the man back into the bank to await police.

Police arrested Walter J. Odorczyk, 49, of Trenton, and said he would be charged with violating federal bank robbery statutes.

Police said the robber had ordered teller Peter T. Duffy to fill a bag with bills. As Duffy filled the bag, he triggered an alarm bell, sending Jones into action.

Dear Abby--

Correction!

DEAR ABBY: I read in your column that a woman was in doubt about what to put on her mother's headstone. The mother had been married twice, and the daughter wanted to use only her mother's FIRST husband's name. You said, "It's your mother, and you are paying for the monument, so go ahead and put whatever you want on it," or words to that effect. Believe it or not, Abby, in some states the name on a grave memorial is considered by the Bureau of Vital Statistics to be legal proof of death, and to use any name other than the legal name of the deceased at the time of death is illegal. So, the daughter should have her mother's headstone marked with her mother's given name, her first husband's surname, and her second husband's surname. Example: MARY SMITH JONES. —A MONUMENT DEALER IN FLAGSTAFF

DEAR DEALER: Thank you for setting me (and 50 million readers) straight. When I make a boo-boo, it's monumental! Correction: In marking a headstone, it is not daughter's choice. It's dealer's choice. And he knows what's legal, so ask him.

DEAR ABBY: Please print this so someone else won't make the same mistake I made. Five months ago a very attractive friend called me at my place of work and said he was in the process of getting a divorce, and asked if I would have coffee with him. I accepted. Next there were lunch dates. Then dinner and evening dates. He told me he loved me and I told him I loved him. (I really did.) We started making plans for "our" future. People began to talk, but I didn't care because I knew it was only a matter of time and he would be free to marry me.

Today he and his wife are back together. The man who "loved" me didn't even have the courtesy to tell me about the reconciliation. He had his WIFE call me! Please, Abby, put this in your column: "Until a man's divorce is FINAL, a woman is a fool to say more than 'hello' to him." And sign me . . . —THE BIGGEST FOOL IN ROCHESTER

DEAR ABBY: I have a married daughter who has become very fat, sloppy and lazy. Her house is a mess and she spends all of her time reading or talking on the telephone. She shouts at her children and expects her hard-working husband to do her housework on the weekends. He is ashamed to bring anyone to the house and I am sure the children are not very proud of their home or mother. Should I have a talk with her and try to set her straight? Or does a mother's duty end after her daughter gets married? —WORRIED MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: A mother's "duty" ends when her children become of age. But her love and concern for their happiness and well-being continues as long as she lives. Yes, have a talk with your daughter. It would appear that she needs more than a "talk" or a reprimand. Take her to a physician for a much-needed checkup and diet.

DEAR ABBY: How can a person address an invitation to a wedding reception to make it known that only adults are wanted? Ours is going to be a catered wedding reception and will be charged by the plate. We have a large family and don't want to feed a gang of kids. Can we put "POSITIVELY ADULTS ONLY" on the invitations? —MUST KNOW

DEAR MUST: It is considered poor taste to put "ADULTS ONLY" on an invitation. Speak with those whom you suspect might bring their children, and tell them firmly but diplomatically that the kiddies are not invited.

Problems? Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif., 90069. For a personal reply, enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Night School Credited For His Self-Confidence

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP)—Doug Trent, who says night school taught him self-confidence, arrived in Greensboro Thursday after a 10-day bicycle trip from Chicago.

Trent, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. James L. Trent of Chicago, sai dhe averaged 80 to 90 miles a day on the 860-mile trip.

He said the night school course that impressed him the most was called the "science of success."

"I can personally say that the course I had in self-confidence has done me a lot of good," Trent said. "When I got about halfway up some of those steep hills on my bike I thought I could either get off and walk the rest of the way or say to myself 'You're going to ride all the way.' I rode."

DEATH TOLL CLIMBS

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, Mont., fears the death toll from recent floods in his state will exceed that of the recent earthquake in Alaska.

Mansfield sadly told the Senate that 28 dead already have been counted and that 135 more persons are unaccounted for. He said most of these are Blackfoot Indians.

Opinions Differ On Barry's Civil Rights Bill Vote

By WALTER R. MEARS

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Barry Goldwater's decision to vote against the civil rights bill has triggered a warning from Pennsylvania Gov. William W. Scranton that it means the senator would be unable to defeat President Johnson next November.

But a Southern Democrat, Sen. Allen J. Ellender of Louisiana, says that if Goldwater front-runner for the GOP nomination votes against the measure, he could carry the South against the President.

Their reactions came shortly after Goldwater had told the Senate late Thursday he is "unalterably opposed to discrimination of any sort" but is opposed to the bill because two sections of it "fly in the face of the Constitution."

He said he feels these two sections — the public accommodations and equal employment titles — are a threat to individual freedoms.

Goldwater is known to feel that the reaction to his decision might knock out of his column some of his Republican National Convention delegates.

But the Arizona senator insisted Thursday he had voted as a matter of principle, not of political expediency.

One possible effect: To underscore the differences between Goldwater and Scranton who is his 11th hour challenger for the nomination.

That is what Scranton has been trying to do since he launched his campaign last Friday. Goldwater conceeds that civil rights is one point on which they disagree.

Scranton quickly sought to turn the Goldwater decision into ammunition for his own crusade. In declaring it means Goldwater cannot defeat Johnson next November, Scranton said "the overwhelming majority of people in America favor the civil rights bill."

Sens. Kenneth B. Keating and Jacob K. Javits of New York, foes of Goldwater's bid for the nomination, both criticized the senator.

"I think it is tragic," said Javits. "It enormously complicates our party's position in San Francisco. It further confirms my support for Gov. Scranton."

But Ellender said, "If he votes against this bill he is going to give the President a tough battle."

Goldwater himself has said the Republicans need the south to win this year.

Five months ago, Goldwater said the big city Negro vote: "I couldn't get enough of the Negro vote to worry about what I did on any legislation. I regret that." He made that comment in Chicago Feb. 8.

Goldwater announced his civil rights vote after telling former President Dwight D. Eisenhower about it in a secret flying visit to Gettysburg, Pa.

"We had a general discussion for about an hour," he said back in Washington.

Lost in the shuffle as Goldwater made his statement on the Senate floor was the fact that he has been saying for months he would vote against the civil rights bill if it included the public accommodations and equal employment sections.

Civilian Pilots Not to Be Used In Congo Fight

WASHINGTON (UPI)—American civilian pilots will no longer be "called upon" by the Congolese government to fly combat missions against rebels, the State Department said Wednesday.

Authoritative sources disclosed, meanwhile, that missions flown by three American civilians represented a one-shot emergency measure. The action was credited with having saved Congolese government forces from a disastrous rout in Kivu Province.

State Department press officer Robert J. McCloskey said that a contract between the American fliers — whom he called "technicians" — and the Congolese government "do not violate any law of the United States." Neither, he said, did it imperil the citizenship of the Americans involved.

U. S. officials first denied and then acknowledged with some embarrassment that Americans had flown combat missions for the Congolese to help put down the rebel uprising. The State Department made clear that U.S. military personnel were not involved in the flights.

U. S. officials said privately Wednesday that a contract between the "technicians" and the Congolese government provided for training in the flying and maintenance of six American-made T28 planes owned by the Congo. The agreements did not call for them to fly combat missions.

Chavez Assault Trial Expected To Go to Jury

ser during direct examination.

During cross examination however conducted by Lee Goodbar, she admitted she had no training to qualify her to judge the mental competence of anyone. She admitted she was aware that the defendant had once been admitted to a state hospital for the mentally ill and the fact was revealed that Chavez was found mentally incompetent March 12 of this year.

County Court Judge Charles J. Simon appeared for the defense and said that he had Chavez admitted to the John Brady Hospital for an examination after the defendant's wife had consulted the judge.

A mental health hearing was held March 12, Simon continued when Chavez was judged to be mentally ill and committed to Brady's Hospital for antebuse therapy, the drug used for alcoholics, and later he was sent to the Veterans' Hospital at Ft. Lyons from which he escaped. To this day, the judge testified, Chavez has not been declared mentally competent and is still under the jurisdiction of the County Court.

The defendant took the stand, but a great part of the testimony was inaudible despite the fact that Judge G. Russell Miller permitted the press to sit close by the bench.

Chavez told the court he had been discharged from the service for "nervousness." He said Mrs. Chavez "drank quite a bit" and was "a poor mother," and told the court that the youngest child had a heart condition. On several occasions his wife had "beaten her up" when she was drinking or "in a bad mood."

He continued saying that on one occasion when he had escaped from the hospital he found seven or eight people playing poker for high stakes in his apartment and drinking heavily. Both his children were present, he added.

On the night of the alleged stabbing, he said he had escaped again from the hospital to see how his children were. The youngest had two black eyes and a split head. When he asked his wife what had happened she replied the child had had a convulsion. He admitted he was drunk that night and that while in the apartment he picked up a knife and broke it. Mrs. Chavez, he testified, "came at me" with a knife. He remembered falling on top of her but had no recollection of anything else until he found himself dripping with blood. He then panicked and fled and spent the rest of the night hiding under a bridge. Sometime later he voluntarily turned himself in to the sheriff.

Chavez said his wife had hit him several times during their married life and emphatically denied that he ever intended to do her bodily harm although he admitted slapping her once or twice. He went on to tell how she had "beat up quite a bit of girls," recalled one occasion when she stabbed one girl over the eye who had to be hospitalized and a further incident when she stabbed another woman. He said that on one occasion she had stabbed herself.

During cross - examination he "did not remember" when Roeser questioned him on various conversations held with police officers. "These people told me I tried to hang myself, and I don't remember that," he said. Chavez did make an attempt to hang himself in his cell when in City Jail.

Dr. Herbert Sturges testified for the defense and told how he had seen the defendant in County Jail, April 20. The doctor said he was staring straight ahead and mumbling inaudibly to himself. He paid no attention to the doctor and in his opinion Chavez was "mentally unbalanced at the time" and in a state resembling catatonic stupor.

The court recessed late Thursday afternoon and re-convened this morning at 9:30.

Low-Rent Housing Started In Colorado, Speaker Says

Elbert J. Haling, assistant to the director, Public Housing administration Regional Office, Fort Worth, Thursday told delegates of the Colorado Municipal League that low - rent housing was pioneered in Colorado in 1940 in Denver.

"In addition to blasting blight and crushing vice - ridden, festering slums in the shadow of the beautiful Rockies, low-rent Colorado housing pumped more than $3 - million into your Colorado economy during 1963," the housing official said.

Haling pointed out that Colorado presently has low - rent housing under management in five cities: Alamosa, Denver, Pueblo, Trinidad and Walsenburg..."some 4,000 homes are comfortably sheltering more than 12,000 people who are positively unable to afford decent private housing.

Haley said that Colorado Housing authorities will award contracts this year for 590 more units estimated at $6 - million. The number of units and estimated contract awards are: Antonito - 14 units, $154,000; Denver - 2 additions, 250 units each, $4,500,000. Holly - 16 units, $168,000; Trinidad - 40 units-$416,000; and Walsenburg - 20 units, $214,000.

"Here in Colorado Springs," he reminded, "the gods of mighty Pikes Peak frown down upon almost 1,600 renter occupied substandard dwellings ...the U.S. census of housing for 1960 shows 38,540 substandard homes in Colorado. Of these 24,889 are located in urban areas, while the remaining 11,651 are in rural Colorado."

"Let's keep in mind that decent housing will not alone end poverty ... and poverty cannot be ended without decent housing," he continued.

"Your Colorado Housing authorities, which are made up of local business and professional men serving without pay just as school boards and public utility district commissioners do, are responsive under state law, to the low - income housing needs of your communities," Haling stated. "...they initiate, construct and operate rental housing as a community facility, just like a school or public library."

"In order to be eligible for such housing, a family's total income cannot exceed ... $3,250 a year for two persons, to $4,500 for five persons, with $100 a year allowed for each additional person," he said.

The Colorado Municipal league 42nd annual conference of municipal leaders will conclude following the third and final sessions Friday, at the Antlers Hotel.

Congo Soldiers Battling Reds Disappearing

By ROBBIN MANNOCK

ELISABETHVILLE, the Congo (AP) — Congolese army units sent to quell pro - Communist rebels in northern Katanga are reported to have vanished into the bush.

Radio reports picked up by the Belgian consulate said the government troops were last seen between Albertville and the Bendera power station, 70 miles to the north.

Fifty European women and children were said to have been flown out of Albertville because of fears the town might b taken back by followers of Pierre Mulele, Peking - trained rebel leader.

Maj. Gen. Joseph Mobutu, commander, is said to have been irritated by press accounts showing his army in an unfavorable light.

Messages from Bukavu, Kivu's capital, said the ban followed a minor reversal Wednesday when a battalion retreated twice before rebel attacks.

Crduely armed Bafulero warriors had put the soldiers to flight. The tribesmen, who have been whipped up by Communist Chinese agitators, now control half the Congo's eastern frontier with neighboring Burundi.

Scranton's remark came less than a half hour after Goldwater had said on the Senate floor that he planned to vote against the bill. The governor called on the senator to repudiate his stand.

Scranton was asked if he thought, that as a matter of practical politics, Goldwater could be elected president if he voted against civil rights.

"No, I don't," Scranton replied. "I think it would be very difficult."

Scranton, who returned to the state capital early Thursday, ran into a civil rights problem of his own, when demonstrators picketed the Capitol and threatened to picket every stop on his campaign tour unless he did something about alleged state police brutality in a racial incident at Chester in April.

Although 16 of the Kentuckians reportedly lean toward Goldwater, Scranton said he had been told by the state's two Republican senators, Thruston B. Morton and John Sherman Cooper, that conditions would be "extremely favorable" to Scranton on the second ballot at the convention.

At the news conference Scranton said he welcomed Dr. Eisenhower's support "wholeheartedly."

"If elected, I will name him an advisor on foreign policy," the governor added.

Dr. Eisenhower, president of Johns Hopkins University, in a copy of a letter released to newsmen, said "As an individual I offer you my full support.

"Your courageous decision to seek the Republican nomination for the presidency is tremendously heartening to all who are deeply concerned about the direction our nation has been taking since January 1961 and who wish now to work hard for a Republican of sound philosophy who will change that direction."

Scranton said his first week of campaigning has "met with unusual success, even beyond what he imagined."

He said his assessment has been confirmed by Republican leaders, but he declined to name them.

Scranton became irritated when he was asked again whether he would accept the vice presidential nomination.

"Let me say first, last, and all the time I am a candidate for the presidency."

Scranton refused to assess his own delegate strength. The Associated Press survey gives him 130 to 677 for Goldwater. The number needed for nomination is 655.

"I don't agree with The Associated Press poll," he said. "I don't consider it to be accurate."

then back to Washington Sunday.

California Democratic leaders are counting on the President to run in November. They are eager to soothe the sting of John F. Kennedy's 1960 ballot-thin loss in Richard M. Nixon's home state by helping capture California's 40 electoral votes for Johnson.

The lineup at tonight's dinner was symbolic of the binding of party wounds. Salinger and Cranston expected to be at the head table, along with other party leaders who chose up sides in their rugged contest.

One was Democratic Gov. Edmund G. Brown — a Cranston backer — who noted, "I did put my personal reputation at stake," in a losing cause. But the winner over Nixon in 1962's governorship battle had the satisfaction of trouncing a rival slate of delegates to August's Democratic National Convention.

Brown, mentioned as a possible vice presidential choice, will head a delegation officially uninstructed but clearly committed to Johnson.

Salinger, Cranston and Brown are leading the party's unity drive and foresee a much easier time Nov. 3 for all candidates in an already heavily Democratic state if Johnson heads the ticket.

The day after his defeat, Cranston pledged Salinger "my fullest support."

Salinger and Cranston agreed just before the election that the winner would help make up the loser's campaign deficit, up to $150,000. However, the plan now is for fund-raising dinners that will stock a November war chest and also help pay for both men's primary expenses.

Youth Admits $600 Theft

A 16-year old boy has admitted stealing $600 from a woman's home while she was on vacation and spending all of the money.

Police said this morning the youth had a duplicate key made to a cedar chest in the home of Lulu Middleton, 113 N. Logan Ave., and used the key to open the chest and take money several times between May 8 and June 10.

The youth told officers he spent the money on a car, clothing, and car parts. He also loaned $80 to a friend. Juvenile authorities are handling the case.

Police Check Exposure Act

Police this morning were searching for a man who exposed himself to two 15 - year old girls while they were walking in the 300 block of S. Nevada Ave., Thursday night.

The girls told police the man exposed himself from a blue and white car after turning on the dome light as they walked past the vehicle. The man was described as being in his early 20s.

Door Kept Open for More Assassination Disclosures

eration has been developed between the service and the FBI.

Hoover, a witness last month, lauded the depth and exhaustiveness of the commission's work and told newsmen the FBI has sent Warren "many thousands" of supplemental investigation reports since submitting its original findings.

These later investigations added "nothing new of substantial value" in the case, he said.

Other witnesses included Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Director John A. McCone of the Central Intelligence Agency, Gov. John Connally of Texas, wounded by the same rifle that killed Kennedy; and Mrs. John F. Kennedy.

The key testimony linking Oswald to the crime apparently was that of his Soviet-born widow, Marina, who was questioned for four consecutive days in February through an interpreter, and was called back again last week.

registered guests at the hotel, were the Rev. Al Lingo, a recent graduate of a siminary, and Peter Shiras, headmaster of an Episcopal school in Washington.

The bathers pulled from the pool and arrested by police were charged with breach of the peace, trespassing and resisting arrest with violence. Bond was set at $400 each.

The pool episode followed an attempted sit-in by a large crowd of demonstrators at the motel.

A few hours later, three more Negroes in bathing suits were arrested before they could get to the pool.

When Williams failed to comply, Davis arrested the Negro who was charged with failing to obey an officer's command.

At the nightly mass meetings, the Rev. Ralph B. Abernathy said there had been a bad reaction to the swimming pool incident. But he said, "This did exactly what we intended to do, and that is to arouse the people of this community to the point where they will say somebody ought to do something."

Civil Rights Bill May Be Passed By Nightfall

they will be in the "aye" column today.

The House scheduled a session today so it could be ready to receive the bill back from the Senate as soon as the vote is taken.

House leaders said they even would meet Saturday if necessary should Senate action come too late.

Southern House members already have announced they will force the bill into the Rules Committee, presided over by veteran Howard W. Smith, D-Va., an opponent of the civil rights bill.

It will take a number of days to pry the bill out of that group if Smith balks at prompt action, and House leaders want the time to begin running as soon as possible.

The Senate has adopted more than 100 amendments to the original version passed by the House 290 to 130 on Feb. 10 but has preserved all its essential elements.

House sponsors have said they were willing to accept the Senate change and Speaker John W. McCormack, D-Mass., voiced confidence the bill would reach the White House before July 4.

One final effort to change the bill may be made today even though it has cleared the parliamentary stage for offering of amendments.

Sen. Albert Gore, D-Tenn., said he might try to revise the title of the bill permitting cutoffs of federal funds to programs where discrimination is practiced. His proposal is to require that any withholding of federal aid must be kept in suspense until the courts have ruled on it.

Such an attempt can be made by offering a technical motion to recommit the bill with instructions to change it in this one respect and then send it back to the Senate floor immediately.

But Humphrey said he was confident that such a motion would be defeated.

Twenty-nine senators took the floor Thursday to make their final statements for or against the bill and, in some instances, to disclose how they would vote on passage.

He ended the speculation about his position by announcing he would reluctantly vote "no" because he felt two key sections of the bill "fly in the face of the constitution." These are the public accommodations and employment titles.

Decentralization Of Agriculture Planned in Cuba

farming organization is planned by the end of this year, Rodriguez said. An immediate objective will be decentralization of day-to-day control.

"We have found it is not possible to run agriculture from Havana," said Rodriguez.

Already underway is the consolidation of some 800 state farms into 60 production units of 250,000 to 500,000 acres each. The consolidated units will specialize in particular crops.

Rodriguez said their managers will have autonomy in the daily handling of their regions but will operate under plans and goals prepared at the national level.

Rodriguez revealed these 1963 production figures which indicated things have not been going well down on the farms:

Rice — 408 million pounds compared with 670.7 million in 1960.

Potatoes—171.6 million pounds compared with 21.8 millions in 1960.

Tomatoes — 184.8 million pounds against 192.5 million in 1960.

Cotton — 21.4 million pounds compared with 30.4 million in 1961.

Republicans Hear Candidates at Meet

Six candidates for judgeships and two candidates for the district attorney post spoke Thursday night at the June meeting of the El Paso County Young Republican meeting at the Hackney House.

Only one of the eight speakers is unopposed in the primary election set for Sept. 8. He is Pat Hinton, currently district attorney by appointment, who is seeking election as district judge in the western half of the Fourth Judicial District.

Hinton faced opposition earlier in the week, and had faced it since June 5 when both he and Justice of the Peace James Quine were designated by the Fourth Judicial District assembly as candidates for the job. The Western half of the district includes Teller and El Paso Counties.

However, this week, Quine announced that he was swtiching from the western section of the district to become a candidate for judge from the eastern part of the district — Lincoln and Kit Carson counties.

That put him in a contest with Charles Simon, present county judge, who before this week was unopposed as district court judge candidate from the eastern part of the district.

Hinton had his first experience in law enforcement work in El Paso County as a deputy district attorney in the office of Quine, who was district attorney from 1948 to 1956.

Jack Roeser, candidate for county judge and president of the Young Republicans said that at the July meeting, the candidates for office in the state assembly will speak. El Paso County has five representative districts (for seats in the state House of Representatives) and has contests in three of them, with two present members of the house declining to run for reelection.

Robert Dunlap, acting as chairman of the meeting for the talks, said that inasmuch as El Paso County is a strong one party county (Republican) that the Republicans have a strong responsibility to put up the best candidates that it can.

Roeser, now a deputy district attorney, explained the function of the new county courts.

El Paso County now has one country court, but will have two beginning Jan. 12, 1965, and the justice of peace courts now existing will pass out of existence.

Roeser pointed out that the three biggest matters now handled by the county court, probate (of wills), mental health cases and juvenile cases, will all be handled by district courts.

In the change, the Fourth Judicial District will gain two district court judges, and thus have a total of 6.

He pointed out that only qualified and licensed lawyers will be allowed to sit as judges in the new county courts, whereas today a man need not be a lawyer to be a justice of the peace.

Roeser pointed out that when a person found guilty in a justice of peace court appeals the case if goes to county court where the man may have an a jury trial in the JP court.

"I believe in a man's right to a trial by jury, but he certainly shouldn't have two jury trials," said Roeser.

Robert Cole, another candidate for a county court judgeship, helped write the statutes that were adopted into law by the state assembly to change the Colorado Court system.

He noted that the JP courts were sort of pay-as-you-go courts, with no uniform standards, and that instead of being under the control of the state supreme court they were "creatures of the legislature."

He said that according to the case load now handled by the two justice of the peace courts in Colorado Springs, that the two new county court judges will have to handle 20 cases a day 50 weeks a year to keep up. At this time, the two JP courts handle about 11,000 cases a year, he said.

He promised the Young Republicans that he would not "shirk the party" regardless of who wins in the primary election.

Albert Nelson, the third candidate for one of the two county judgeships, is a member of the district attorney's staff assigned to the Legal Aid office. As a deputy district attorney, he handles the criminal cases that the office is involved with, he pointed out.

He said that about 80 per cent of the cases the legal aid office handles are concerned with family support problems.

He pointed out the importance of having understanding judges so that a man haled into court for non-support can be given a chance to get a job and pay his obligation rather than be remanded to jail where he simply costs taxpayers money.

He pointed out that he has had more than 30 years of experience in law work.

All three of the candidates were designated at the county assembly so they will face each other in the primary.

Norman Walton, one of two candidates for the district attorney post, has served as assistant district attorney and deputy district attorney, and now is in private practice.

He said that he believed that the judicial offices should be non-partisan, but that since they are not he encouraged as many people as possible — especially young people — to become active in partisan politicis.

He said that the district attorney's job grew more difficult each year, and thus required more work each year.

"The district attorney must protect society, but it also must protect the rights of the individual," he said.

He said that a district attorney must exercise great judgment in taking cases to court. "Many cases are taken to the district attorney's office that should not go to court," he said.

He is past president of the Young Republicans and urged them to work for the party and for a party win this fall.

"You must make an effort. You must make an effort for the party. It is here that action takes place," he said.

He told the members that they must decide about the candidates for themselves. "Once you find your candidate, you must tell the other people what the candidates are like. You must carry the message," he declared.

Russell said that he had his first experience in law enforcement during his military career when he served as an officer in the Military Police Corps.

Quine, one of two candidates for district judge in the eastern portion of the district, explained that he has been in politics for 30 years.

He recounted for the Young Republicans, some of whom are too young to have any memory of the 1930's or Pres. Franklin D. Roosevelt, a Democrat, how he made his first move into politics.

The year was 1936, Quine said, and he decided to run for the state assembly from El Paso County. Roosevelt was running for reelection (having been elected in 1932) and his opponent was Kansas Gov. Alf Landon. Roosevelt won by 523 electoral votes to 8, and the result for Republicans wasn't much better in El Paso County, Quine said.

He pointed out that he has done most of his work in courtrooms. "Some lawyers are office workers and some are courtroom workers, and I'm just a courtroom worker," he said.

He pointed out that he served as assistant police court judge and assistant district attorney before he was elected district attorney in 1948. He was reelected in 1952, and lost in 1956. He has been a JP since 1960.

Quine said he switched from the western half of the district to the eastern half because he wanted to avoid a conflict with Hinton, a man he had worked with in the past.

He said that if elected he would make his official residence at Burlington, with stops planned at Hugo, in Lincoln County. Burlington is in Kit Carson County.

Simon also recalled the 1930's. He was the first chairman of the El Paso County Young Republicans, he said.

Simon pointed out that he, J. Edgar Chenoweth, now U. S. representative from this district with more than 20 years service, and Gordon Allott, now U.S. senator from Colorado with 10 years service, were the organizers of the Young Republicans in Colorado.

Simon has been a county judge for 11 years he said, and explained that he wanted to move onto the district court to keep up the kind of work he now is doing, as much of that work will be moved to the district courts.

He explained that he has been active in associations of county judges, and also has been called upon by the state supreme court to assist in county court matters.

"I have brought a good juvenile court to Colorado Springs," he said, and then thanked the various citizen volunteer groups that have in the past years helped him with juvenile work.

He also pointed out that he introduced microfilming into the county court records in 1953, thus being about eight years ahead of the rest of the county in that step.

Simon said that when he began work for the Republican Party in 1935 in El Paso County, the party had few office holders, but that since that time, this has become a Republican county.

He said that he had spent much time in the past 11 years fighting for the Republican Party.

Hinton, who has no opposition, said that he was happy that he did not have to contest Quine, for Quine had given him a job as deputy district attorney in 1954.

He said, "If and when the Democrats put up a candidate, I will give him a fight. I promise a strong campaign," he said.

charged for residents of School District 3 who live outside park district boundaries, including Widefield.

If the election results are rejected Tuesday, the fees will remain at $1. If the election is validated the fees will be raised from $5 to $10 depending on the program, Morris said.

"It would have been unfair to the youngsters to increase fees before the vote canvass," Morris added.

With over 1,400 youngsters in the summer program which began four days ago, baseball leagues and teams and other programs would have been disrupted, he explained.

This figure includes 580 participants in baseball, over 100 small children in "tot lots" and 690 children in playground programs.

About 20 per cent of the children are in Widefield, Morris said. The district has a tot lot and playground setup at Talbott Elementary School in Widefield.

ser during direct examination.

During cross examination however conducted by Lee Goodbar, she admitted she had no training to qualify her to judge the mental competence of anyone. She admitted she was aware that the defendant had once been admitted to a state hospital for the mentally ill and the fact was revealed that Chavez was found mentally incompetent March 12 of this year.

County Court Judge Charles J. Simon appeared for the defense and said that he had Chavez admitted to the John Brady Hospital for an examination after the defendant's wife had consulted the judge.

A mental health hearing was held March 12. Simon continued when Chavez was judged to be mentally ill and committed to Brady's Hospital for antebuse therapy, the drug used for alcoholics, and later he was sent to the Veterans' Hospital at Ft. Lyons from which he escaped. To this day, the judge testified, Chavez has not been declared mentally competent and is still under the jurisdiction of the County Court.

The defendant took the stand, but a great part of the testimony was inaudible despite the fact that Judge G. Russell Miller permitted the press to sit close by the bench.

Chavez told the court he had been discharged from the service for "nervousness." He said Mrs. Chavez "drank quite a bit" and was "a poor mother," and told the court that the youngest child had a heart condition. On several occasions his wife had "beaten her up" when she was drinking or "in a bad mood."

He continued saying that on one occasion when he had escaped from the hospital he found seven or eight people playing poker for high stakes in his apartment and drinking heavily. Both his children were present, he added.

On the night of the alleged stabbing, he said he had escaped again from the hospital to see how his children were. The youngest had two black eyes and a split head. When he asked his wife what had happened she replied the child had had a convulsion. He admitted he was drunk that night and that while in the apartment he picked up a knife and broke it. Mrs. Chavez, he testified, "came at me" with a knife. He remembered falling on top of her but had no recollection of anything else until he found himself dripping with blood. He then panicked and fled and spent the rest of the night hiding under a bridge. Sometime later he voluntarily turned himself in to the sheriff.

Chavez said his wife had hit him several times during their married life and emphatically denied that he ever intended to do her bodily harm although he admitted slapping her once or twice. He went on to tell how she had "beat up quite a bit of girls," recalled one occasion when she stabbed one girl over the eye who had to be hospitalized and a further incident when she stabbed another woman. He said that on one occasion she had stabbed herself.

During cross - examination he "did not remember" when Roeser questioned him on various conversations held with police officers. "These people told me I tried to hang myself, and I don't remember that," he said. Chavez did make an attempt to hang himself in his cell when in City Jail.

Dr. Herbert Sturges testified for the defense and told how he had seen the defendant in County Jail, April 20. The doctor said he was staring straight ahead and mumbling inaudibly to himself. He paid no attention to the doctor and in his opinion Chavez was "mentally unbalanced at the time" and in a state resembling catatonic stupor.

The court recessed late Thursday afternoon and re-convened this morning at 9:30.

Low-Rent Housing Started In Colorado, Speaker Says

Elbert J. Haling, assistant to the director, Public Housing administration Regional Office, Fort Worth, Thursday told delegates of the Colorado Municipal League that low - rent housing was pioneered in Colorado in 1940 in Denver.

"In addition to blasting blight and crushing vice - ridden, festering slums in the shadow of the beautiful Rockies, low-rent Colorado housing pumped more than $3 - million into your Colorado economy during 1963," the housing official said.

Haling pointed out that Colorado presently has low - rent housing under management in five cities: Alamosa, Denver, Pueblo, Trinidad and Walsenburg..."some 4,000 homes are comfortably sheltering more than 12,000 people who are positively unable to afford decent private housing.

Haley said that Colorado Housing authorities will award contracts this year for 500 more units estimated at $6 - million. The number of units and estimated contract awards are: Antonito - 14 units, $154,000; Denver - 2 additions, 250 units each, $4,500,000; Holly - 16 units, $168,000; Trinidad - 40 units- $416,000; and Walsenburg - 20 units, $214,000.

"Here in Colorado Springs," he reminded, "the gods of mighty Pikes Peak frown down upon almost 1,600 renter occupied substandard dwellings.

the U.S. census of housing for 1960 shows 36,540 substandard homes in Colorado. Of these 24,889 are located in urban areas, while the remaining 11,651 are in rural Colorado."

"Let's keep in mind that decent housing will not alone end poverty ... and poverty cannot be ended without decent housing," he continued.

"Your Colorado Housing authorities, which are made up of local business and professional men serving without pay just as school boards and public utility district commissioners do, are responsive under state law, to the low - income housing needs of your communities," Haling stated. "...they initiate, construct and operate rental housing as a community facility, just like a school or public library."

"In order to be eligible for such housing, a family's total income cannot exceed ... $3,250 a year for two persons, to $4,500 for five persons, with $100 a year allowed for each additional person," he said.

The Colorado Municipal league 42nd annual conference of municipal leaders will conclude following the third and final sessions Friday, at the Antlers Hotel.

Congo Soldiers Battling Reds Disappearing

By ROBBIN MANNOCK

ELISABETHVILLE, the Congo (AP) — Congolese army units sent to quell pro - Communist rebels in northern Katanga are reported to have vanished into the bush.

Radio reports picked up by the Belgian consulate said the government troops were last seen between Albertville and the Bendera power station, 70 miles to the north.

Fifty European women and children were said to have been flown out of Albertville because of fears the town might b taken back by followers of Pierre Mulele, Peking - trained rebel leader.

Maj. Gen. Joseph Mobutu, commander, is said to have been irritated by press accounts showing his army in an unfavorable light.

Messages from Bukavu, Kivu's capital, said the ban followed a minor reversal Wednesday when a battalion retreated twice before rebel attacks.

Crduely armed Bafulero warriors had put the soldiers to flight. The tribesmen, who have been whipped up by Communist Chinese agitators, now control half the Congo's eastern frontier with neighboring Burundi.

Scranton Heads For Kentucky in Whirlwind Tour

front running opponent for the nomination, would be defeated by President Johnson if he voted against the compromise civil rights bill nearing a showdown in the Senate.

Scranton's remark came less than a half hour after Goldwater had said on the Senate floor that he planned to vote against the bill. The governor called on the senator to repudiate his stand.

Scranton was asked if he thought, that as a matter of practical politics, Goldwater could be elected president if he voted against civil rights.

"No, I don't," Scranton replied. "I think it would be very difficult."

Scranton, who returned to the state capital early Thursday, ran into a civil rights problem of his own, when demonstrators picketed the Capitol and threatened to picket every stop on his campaign tour unless he did something about alleged state police brutality in a racial incident at Chester in April.

Although 16 of the Kentuckians reportedly lean toward Goldwater, Scranton said he had been told by the state's two Republican senators, Thruston B. Morton and John Sherman Cooper, that conditions would be "extremely favorable" to Scranton on the second ballot at the convention.

At the news conference Scranton said he welcomed Dr. Eisenhower's support "wholeheartedly."

"If elected, I will name him an advisor on foreign policy," the governor added.

Dr. Eisenhower, president of Johns Hopkins University, in a copy of a letter released to newsmen, said "As an individual I offer you my full support.

"Your courageous decision to seek the Republican nomination for the presidency is tremendously heartening to all who are deeply concerned about the direction our nation has been taking since January 1961 and who wish now to work hard for a Republican of sound philosophy who will change that direction."

Scranton said his first week of campaigning has "met with unusual success, even beyond what he imagined."

He said his assessment has been confirmed by Republican leaders, but he declined to name them.

Scranton became irritated when he was asked again whether he would accept the vice presidential nomination.

"Let me say first, last, and all the time I am a candidate for the presidency."

Scranton refused to assess his own delegate strength. The Associated Press survey gives him 130 to 677 for Goldwater. The number needed for nomination is 655.

"I don't agree with The Associated Press poll," he said. "I don't consider it to be accurate."

then back to Washington Sunday.

California Democratic leaders are counting on the President to run in November. They are eager to soothe the sting of John F. Kennedy's 1960 ballot-thin loss in Richard M. Nixon's home state by helping capture California's 40 electoral votes for Johnson.

The lineup at tonight's dinner was symbolic of the binding of party wounds. Salinger and Cranston expected to be at the head table, along with other party leaders who chose up sides in their rugged contest.

One was Democratic Gov. Edmund G. Brown — a Cranston backer — who noted, "I did put my personal reputation at stake," in a losing cause. But the winner over Nixon in 1962's governorship battle had the satisfaction of trouncing a rival slate of delegates to August's Democratic National Convention.

Brown, mentioned as a possible vice presidential choice, will head a delegation officially uninstructed but clearly committed to Johnson.

Salinger, Cranston and Brown are leading the party's unity drive and foresee a much easier time Nov. 3 for all candidates in an already heavily Democratic state if Johnson heads the ticket.

The day after his defeat, Cranston pledged Salinger "my fullest support."

Salinger and Cranston agreed just before the election that the winner would help make up the loser's campaign deficit, up to $150,000. However, the plan now is for fund-raising dinners that will stock a November war chest and also help pay for both men's primary expenses.

Youth Admits $600 Theft

A 16-year old boy has admitted stealing $600 from a woman's home while she was on vacation and spending all of the money.

Police said this morning the youth had a duplicate key made to a cedar chest in the home of Lulu Middleton, 113 N. Logan Ave., and used the key to open the chest and take money several times between May 8 and June 10.

The youth told officers he spent the money on a car, clothing, and car parts. He also loaned $80 to a friend. Juvenile authorities are handling the case.

eration has been developed between the service and the FBI.

Hoover, a witness last month, lauded the depth and exhaustiveness of the commission's work and told newsmen the FBI has sent Warren "many thousands" of supplemental investigation reports since submitting its original findings.

These later investigations added "nothing new of substantial value" in the case, he said.

Other witnesses included Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Director John A. McCone of the Central Intelligence Agency, Gov. John Connally of Texas, wounded by the same rifle that killed Kennedy; and Mrs. John F. Kennedy.

The key testimony linking Oswald to the crime apparently was that of his Soviet-born widow, Marina, who was questioned for four consecutive days in February through an interpreter, and was called back again last week.

The bathers pulled from the pool and arrested by police were charged with breach of the peace, trespassing and resisting arrest with violence. Bond was set at $400 each.

The pool episode followed an attempted sit-in by a large crowd of demonstrators at the motel.

A few hours later, three more Negroes in bathing suits were arrested before they could get to the pool.

When Williams failed to comply, Davis arrested the Negro who was charged with failing to obey an officer's command.

At the nightly mass meetings, the Rev. Ralph B. Abernathy said there had been a bad reaction to the swimming pool incident. But he said, "This did exactly what we intended to do, and that is to arouse the people of this community to the point where they will say somebody ought to do something."

Civil Rights Bill May Be Passed By Nightfall

they will be in the "aye" column today.

The House scheduled a session today so it could be ready to receive the bill back from the Senate as soon as the vote is taken.

House leaders said they even would meet Saturday if necessary should Senate action come too late.

Southern House members already have announced they will force the bill into the Rules Committee, presided over by veteran Howard W. Smith, D-Va., an opponent of the civil rights bill.

It will take a number of days to pry the bill out of that group if Smith balks at prompt action, and House leaders want the time to begin running as soon as possible.

The Senate has adopted more than 100 amendments to the original version passed by the House 290 to 130 on Feb. 10 but has preserved all its essential elements.

House sponsors have said they were willing to accept the Senate change and Speaker John W. McCormack, D-Mass., voiced confidence the bill would reach the White House before July 4.

One final effort to change the bill may be made today even though it has cleared the parliamentary stage for offering of amendments.

Sen. Albert Gore, D-Tenn., said he might try to revise the title of the bill permitting cut-offs of federal funds to programs where discrimination is practiced. His proposal is to require that any withholding of federal aid must be kept in suspense until the courts have ruled on it.

Such an attempt can be made by offering a technical motion to recommit the bill with instructions to change it in this one respect and then send it back to the Senate floor immediately.

But Humphrey said he was confident that such a motion would be defeated.

Twenty-nine senators took the floor Thursday to make their final statements for or against the bill and, in some instances, to disclose how they would vote on passage.

He ended the speculation about his position by announcing he would reluctantly vote "no" because he felt two key sections of the bill "fly in the face of the constitution." These are the public accommodations and employment titles.

"We have found it is not possible to run agriculture from Havana," said Rodriguez.

Already underway is the consolidation of some 800 state farms into 60 production units of 250,000 to 500,000 acres each.

The consolidated units will specialize in particular crops.

Rodriguez said their managers will have autonomy in the daily handling of their regions but will operate under plans and goals prepared at the national level.

Rodriguez revealed these 1963 production figures which indicated things have not been going well down on the farms:

Rice — 408 million pounds compared with 670.7 million in 1960.

Republicans Hear Candidates at Meet

Six candidates for judgeships and two candidates for the district attorney post spoke Thursday night at the June meeting of the El Paso County Young Republican meeting at the Hackney House.

Only one of the eight speakers is unopposed in the primary election set for Sept. 8. He is Pat Hinton, currently district attorney by appointment, who is seeking election as district judge in the western half of the Fourth Judicial District.

Hinton faced opposition earlier in the week, and had faced it since June 5 when both he and Justice of the Peace James Quine were designated by the Fourth Judicial District assembly as candidates for the job. The Western half of the district includes Teller and El Paso Counties.

However, this week, Quine announced that he was swtiching from the western section of the district to become a candidate for judge from the eastern part of the district — Lincoln and Kit Carson counties.

That put him in a contest with Charles Simon, present county judge, who before this week was unopposed as district court judge candidate from the eastern part of the district.

Hinton had his first experience in law enforcement work in El Paso County as a deputy district attorney in the office of Quine, who was district attorney from 1948 to 1956.

Jack Roeser, candidate for county judge and president of the Young Republicans said that at the July meeting, the candidates for office in the state assembly will speak. El Paso County has five representative districts (for seats in the state House of Representatives) and has contests in three of them, with two present members of the house declining to run for reelection.

Robert Dunlap, acting as chairman of the meeting for the talks, said that inasmuch as El Paso County is a strong one party county (Republican) that the Republicans have a strong responsibility to put up the best candidates that it can.

Roeser, now a deputy district attorney, explained the function of the new county courts.

El Paso County now has one country court, but will have two beginning Jan. 12, 1965, and the justice of peace courts now existing will pass out of existence.

Roeser pointed out that the three biggest matters now handled by the county court, probate (of wills), mental health cases and juvenile cases, will all be handled by district courts.

In the change, the Fourth Judicial District will gain two district court judges, and thus have a total of 6.

He pointed out that only qualified and licensed lawyers will be allowed to sit as judges in the new county courts, whereas today a man need not be a lawyer to be a justice of the peace.

Roeser pointed out that when a person found guilty in a justice of peace court appeals the case if goes to county court where the man may have an a jury trial in the JP court.

"I believe in a man's right to a trial by jury, but he certainly shouldn't have two jury trials," said Roeser.

Robert Cole, another candidate for a county court judgeship, helped write the statutes that were adopted into law by the state assembly to change the Colorado Court system.

He noted that the JP courts were sort of pay-as-you-go courts, with no uniform standards, and that instead of being under the control of the state supreme court they were "creatures of the legislature."

He said that according to the case load now handled by the two justice of the peace courts in Colorado Springs, that the two new county court judges will have to handle 20 cases a day 50 weeks a year to keep up. At this time, the two JP courts handle about 11,000 cases a year, he said.

He promised the Young Republicans that he would not "shirk the party" regardless of who wins in the primary election.

Albert Nelson, the third candidate for one of the two county judgeships, is a member of the district attorney's staff assigned to the Legal Aid office. As a deputy district attorney, he handles the criminal cases that the office is involved with, he pointed out.

He said that about 80 per cent of the cases the legal aid office handles are concerned with family support problems.

He pointed out the importance of having understanding judges so that a man haled into court for non-support can be given a chance to get a job and pay his obligation rather than be remanded to jail where he simply costs taxpayers money.

He pointed out that he has had more than 30 years of experience in law work.

All three of the candidates were designated at the county assembly so they will face each other in the primary.

Norman Walton, one of two candidates for the district attorney post, has served as assistant district attorney and deputy district attorney, and now is in private practice.

He said that he believed that the judicial offices should be non-partisan, but that since they are not he encouraged as many people as possible — especially young people — to become active in partisan politicis.

He said that the district attorney's job grew more difficult each year, and thus required more work each year.

"The district attorney must protect society, but it also must protect the rights of the individual," he said.

He said that a district attorney must exercise great judgment in taking cases to court. "Many cases are taken to the district attorney's office that should not go to court," he said.

Robert Russel, the other candidate for district attorney, is chief trial deputy in the office at this time.

He is past president of the Young Republicans and urged them to work for the party and for a party win this fall.

"You must make an effort. You must make an effort for the party. It is here that action takes place," he said.

He told the members that they must decide about the candidates for themselves. "Once you find your candidate, you must tell the other people what the candidates are like. You must carry the message," he declared.

Russell said that he had his first experience in law enforcement during his military career when he served as an officer in the Military Police Corps.

Quine, one of two candidates for district judge in the eastern portion of the district, explained that he has been in politics for 30 years.

He recounted for the Young Republicans, some of whom are too young to have any memory of the 1930's or Pres. Franklin D. Roosevelt, a Democrat, how he made his first move into politics.

The year was 1936, Quine said, and he decided to run for the state assembly from El Paso County. Roosevelt was running for reelection (having been elected in 1932) and his opponent was Kansas Gov. Alf Landon. Roosevelt won by 523 electoral votes to 8, and the result for Republicans wasn't much better in El Paso County, Quine said.

He pointed out that he has done most of his work in courtrooms. "Some lawyers are office workers and some are courtroom workers, and I'm just a courtroom worker," he said.

He pointed out that he served as assistant police court judge and assistant district attorney before he was elected district attorney in 1948. He was reelected in 1952, and lost in 1956. He has been a JP since 1960.

Quine said he switched from the western half of the district to the eastern half because he wanted to avoid a conflict with Hinton, a man he had worked with in the past.

He said that if elected he would make his official residence at Burlington, with stops planned at Hugo, in Lincoln County. Burlington is in Kit Carson County.

Simon also recalled the 1930's. He was the first chairman of the El Paso County Young Republicans, he said.

Simon pointed out that he, J. Edgar Chenoweth, now U. S. representative from this district with more than 20 years service, and Gordon Allott, now U.S. senator from Colorado with 10 years service, were the organizers of the Young Republicans in Colorado.

Simon has been a county judge for 11 years he said, and explained that he wanted to move onto the district court to keep up the kind of work he now is doing, as much of that work will be moved to the district courts.

He explained that he has been active in associations of county judges, and also has been called upon by the state supreme court to assist in county court matters.

"I have brought a good juvenile court to Colorado Springs," he said, and then thanked the various citizen volunteer groups that have in the past years helped him with juvenile work.

He also pointed out that he introduced microfilming into the county court records in 1953, thus being about eight years ahead of the rest of the county in that step.

Simon said that when he began work for the Republican Party in 1935 in El Paso County, the party had few office holders, but that since that time, this has become a Republican county.

He said that he had spent much time in the past 11 years fighting for the Republican Party.

Hinton, who has no opposition, said that he was happy that he did not have to contest Quine, for Quine had given him a job as deputy district attorney in 1954.

He said, "If and when the Democrats put up a candidate, I will give him a fight. I promise a strong campaign," he said.

charged for residents of School District 3 who live outside park district boundaries, including Widefield.

If the election results are rejected Tuesday, the fees will remain at $1. If the election is validated the fees will be raised from $5 to $10 depending on the program, Morris said.

"It would have been unfair to the youngsters to increase fees before the vote canvass," Morris added.

With over 1,400 youngsters in the summer program which began four days ago, baseball leagues and teams and other programs would have been disrupted, he explained.

This figure includes 500 participants in baseball, over 100 small children in "tot lots" and 600 children in playground programs.

About 20 per cent of the children are in Widefield, Morris said. The district has a tot lot and playground setup at Talbott Elementary School in Widefield.

WASHINGTON — The Johnson Administration makes out a plausible case for its policy of "mumness" about U.S. air operations in Laos. But it is high time that the White House decided that the public's "right to know" has precedence over the nicey - nice requirements of diplomacy.

The fact is — as everybody knows here, but none in authority will say — that the Dulles type of brinkmanship is being practiced in Laos. The President's determination on an extremely tough policy to save Southeast Asia from the Communists there involves the acknowledged risk of accelerated hostilities which would not only engage more of our air power but could require commitment of American ground forces.

Because of the wraps placed around officials — forbidden to reveal the details of our air operations — exactly what has been going on has leaked out only in fuzzy fashion. More important, there has been a definite effort to downplay its significance.

Before detailing some of the most ludicrous Administration efforts to suppress the facts or explain why the truth can't be told, it should be recalled that on June 9 the Peking government of Red China accused the U.S. of an air attack on Pathet Lao positions near the Plain of Jars in Laos.

There was "no comment" officially here, but the British public got an immediate "informed" fill - in out of Washington. It is worth repeating because to this date it is an appraisal which the Administration has neither challenged nor affirmed. That is because under the "mumness" policy it is impossible to put an official right or wrong stamp on a published report.

The information the British received on the morning of June 10 -- and which is still not available in the same hard form on this side of the Atlantic — was most succinctly given in the London Express in a dispatch from its experienced Washington correspondent, Ross Mark.

WHAT THE BRITISH HEARD ABOUT U.S. JET ACTION

He reported that eight American jets had destroyed the Communist guns which had shot down two U.S. reconnaissance planes and that "the jets acted on orders from President Johnson to destroy guns which fired at them."

'A White House spokesman said: "This is a showdown if the Communists want it.'

"About 50 U.S. Canberra jets are practicing pinpoint rocketing and bombing at bases in the Philippines. These planes will be used to destroy bridges, troop concentrations and supply routes leading from North Viet Nam to the non - Communist South and to Laos.

"The U.S. is prepared to match its war techniques against anything China may produce in the area. A State Department official told me: 'We are prepared to trump every trick they try.'

"I learn that America has warned China that the U.S. will exert the power to win any fight that the Chinese and their allies in North Viet Nam decide to wage aggressively."

Is this information, all or in part, true or false? Just try to nail the facts down here on an official basis and see what one comes up with!

THE RUN-AROUND ON SITUATION IN LAOS

On June 11, a day after the report in the London paper, White House Press Secretary George Reedy was asked what was going on in Southeast Asia. He suggested that the two places to check were the Pentagon and State Department. He was bluntly informed that both referred all inquiries back to the White House.

One frustrated questioner finally spouted: " Iam getting the distinct impression here that either the White House does not know what is happening (in Laos) or is determined to keep any part of it from the American people."

Reedy's reply was straight down the line of the "mumness" policy and went like this:

"All I can say is that on all matters involving operations I am referring you to those two departments (State and Defense). Why they are referring you back to me I don't know."

"Nature spent years building the tree that wood came from. She's probably sorry now she ever started it."

Today in Washington

WASHINGTON (AP)—In the news from Washington:

STAYING ON: Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge has written from Saigon that he will not return to the United States in time for the Republican convention in mid-July.

The man he wrote to is Robert R. Mullen, national coordinator of the Committee to Draft Lodge for the GOP Nomination, who said Thursday, "I had urged him to come home and work for himself and he said he just couldn't. I had offered him nothing but blood, sweat and tears, and he replied that was all he had in Saigon."

Earlier this week Lodge denied a dispatch by the New York Times saying he had resigned his Saigon post. Lodge's letter to Mullen was dated last Monday, the date of the Times article and three days after that the mint has doubled production of Kennedy half dollars in the past few months. By June 30, 90 million of the coins bearing the likeness of the late President will have been minted — the amount originally planned for the entire year.

And still, demand continues to outrace supply. Last week the Treasury quietly put 6,000 of the new coins in circulation through its own cash windows. A one-per-customer limit was imposed. In four or five days the supply was exhausted.

The new goal for 1964 is 150 million. Some officials believe almost all will be scooped up by collectors, souvenir hunters and speculators.

STORM WARNINGS: The ominous word from the Weather Bureau is that the odds are overwhelmingly in favor of an active hurricane season for the United States.

"No major hurricanes have crossed the coastline of continental United States for two years, but the odds against a third quiet season for this country are astronomical," the bureau said in a statement Thursday.

HELLO, HELLO: A telephone conversation between President Johnson and Premier Hayato Ikeda Thursday night inaugurated use of the first telephone cable stretching across the Pacific between the United States and Japan.

Their historic call spanned 10,000 miles, but came through with perfect clarity.

The cable, spanning the chasm of the miles-deep Pacific enables overseas operators in Tokyo to dial direct to most of the 91 million telephones in North America and Hawaii.

Similarly, operators at overseas gateways in Oakland, Vancouver and Honolulu can now dial direct to most of the 8.4 million telephones in Japan.

Speaking from the White House, Johnson hailed the event as "an historic and happy occasion." He conveyed the sympathy of Americans for the "suffering and sorrow" inflicted in Japan by this week's earthquake.

The bidding:

Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: King of ♠ West was anxious to obtain a diamond ruff in defending against South's four heart contract and, in order to achieve his objective, West threw away the rule table and relied on his imagination to find the answer.

West opened the king of spades which held the trick. With the appearance of the dummy, he observed that the only outstanding card in the suit was the nine. If East held that card, declarer would be able to ruff the continuation. If South, on the other hand, had the nine of spades, West could put his partner in via the ruff in order to obtain the diamond return which he so much desired.

The only problem confronting West—assuming that East was the player who had no more spades—was to persuade his partner to trump the continuation. If, for example, West continued with the ace of spades or even the queen, East might choose to take a harmless discard—not realizing that West urgently desired to transfer the lead.

West solved the problem by leading the ten of spades at trick two. East made the natural play of trumping with the deuce of hearts. The obvious return was, of course, a diamond; however, in shifting to that suit, East was careful to lead the jack. South covered with the queen and West ruffed with the five of hearts. The spade return was trumped by the declarer, but there was no way for him to avoid losing a diamond trick subsequently, and he went down to defeat.

Observe that, if East leads back a small diamond when he is in, declarer can duck the trick around to North's ten. West will be forced to ruff a small card, and declarer can successfully finesse the queen of diamonds subsequently after he has drawn trumps.

HINTS FROM Heloise

By HELOISE CRUSE

Dear Heloise:

After washing and drying diapers, take time to fold them to the right size, sprinkle baby powder on each diaper while you are folding them, then give an "extra" fold to hold the powder in . . .

Each diaper will be ready when needed, and there is no running around looking for "that" can of powder . . . — Mrs. C. E. R.

Dear Folks:

Never, never, clean the keys on your piano or organ with benzene, rubbing alcohol, denatured alcohol, lacquer thinner, or any type of cleaning fluid! They just might be damaged beyond repair. Many of you are writing to me that you use these methods.

The only thing that is recommended is to take a soft cloth, dip it in a mild soap solution (notice we did "not" say detergent), and wring it out as dry as you can. Then wipe over the keys. Perhaps you will find that your cloth will turn dark. This is carbon from the air in your home. Do "not" use this same cloth to wipe the black keys.

After wiping the keys with your "dry" (well - wrung-out) soaped cloth, rinse keys off with another cloth, that has been wrung out in plain water and wrung "extremely" dry. Then buff with a facial tissue!

After checking with many piano companies, we know that this is the only safe way. Be "sure" that the water does not drip down between the keys. —Heloise

Dear Heloise:

Before I let down the hems of my daughter's dresses, I sew across the old hem, making a tuck about one-fourth inch from the bottom of the hem with my sewing machine . . . thus forming a new tuck . . .

This eliminates that faded line which usually shows when the dress is let down. The little pleat above the new hem makes the dress even more adorable.

If I have an extra large hem, I add an extra large pleat . . .

After making preserves, if I have any leftover melted paraffin wax, I always re-heat this and pour it into the bottom of my garbage cans. It makes the cans last longer, prevents rusting, and they are far easier to clean. —E. M. L.

Dear Heloise:

I took your stain chart which was published in our paper, and pasted it on a piece of cardboard cut from a suit box, and hung the chart over my "laundry tubs." Now, I no longer have to go searching for it. —Elizabeth Broders

Dear Heloise:

I recently attended a baby shower and wanted to take something especially nice.

I bought a small wastebasket made especially for the baby's room with little animals, etc., painted on it. Then I filled the basket with small packages. I used packages of wash cloths, baby socks, some bibs which I had embroidered, a feeding spoon, a rattle, and a pacifier. I also included an assortment of baby soap, creams, powder, etc. I topped it all with a stuffed toy!

Everyone thought that it was a nice idea, so I thought I would share it. It made a unique shower gift for the new mommie . . . —Mrs. Richard Wilton

When frying pork chops, or anything that has to be dipped in batter, I find the batter will stick better if a little vinegar is added to it. — Mrs. R. W. Kummer

Alpha Phi Delegates See Movie, 'One Man's Way'

At a formal candlelight banquet in Broadmoor Hotel Thursday historical mementoes of nineteenth century Syracuse were presented to collegiate delegates from 80 Alpha Phi sorority chapters.

These pieces of Syracuse history were gavels made from the bannisters that ran from the first to the third floor of the nation's first sorority house formerly located at 207 University Place. The house was torn down in early 1962 to make way for the Newhouse Communications Center.

Credit for the gavel idea goes to Mrs. Robert Brewer, 865 Livingston Avenue. Mrs. B. C. Loveland, 6 Drumlins Terrace, Alpha Phi's International Memorabilia Chairman, presented the gavels, assisted by Mrs. Marion Burns, 409 Thurber Street, Alumni Delegate.

In 1887 the very presence of females on a college campus was a rarity. It was even more rare — unheard of, in fact — for a group of these pioneering coeds to live together in a house, bonded by the vows of a "secret society." But it happened at Syracuse.

Alpha Phi sorority was born on a September afternoon in 1872 when three university coeds, Martha Foote, Clara Sittser and Kate Hogoboom, posed the question, "Why can't we have a society as well as the men?" They could and did. Alpha Phi was founded that fall. Fifteen years later, still competing with the men and exuding the spirit of suffragettes the girls decided that they also were going to have a house of their own.

Recalling the decision, Jennie Thorburn Sanford, Class of '87, wrote in 1900: "At first we thought it was a crazy idea; it was certainly novel. No girls had ever owned a Chapter House — where would we get the money? Who would help and advise us: We could never do it! One by one the obstacles were overcome, the arguments met, and once convinced that it was possible and practical, the girls never gave up."

The "sisters" pledged $60 towards the new house, fathers contributed, Chancellor Charles N. Sims gave $50, loans were negotiated. Chauncey Harrington, builder of the house and father of two of the sorority's sisters, gave his services and cajoled firms into contributing toward the construction of what was then known as the "Apple-Pie House."

Mrs. Sanford continues her reminiscences: "He made out all the estimates, let the subcontracts, and saw that the materials were A No. 1, arranged the sewer and, in short, made our house one of the best built houses on the Hill." On June 22, 1886, the cornerstone, containing copies of the daily press, the University catalogue, by-laws of the chapters "and various other suitable data," was laid.

Alpha Phi outgrew the original house and in 1910 moved to 308 Walnut Place. Presently 29 girls live in this house as it was remodeled in 1930.

From 1910 until its razing in 1962 what had been the nation's first sorority house was used by Syracuse University as a residence hall and classroom building.

AUDREY HEPBURN TO STAR IN FILM OF 'PETER PAN'

HOLLYWOOD — Audrey Hepburn and George Cukor have announced plans to film "Peter Pan," but you can bet your Mouseketeer hat they'll never be able to use that title. Fellow by the name of Walt Disney paid Paramount and an English hospital named by the James Barrie estate $125,000 several years ago for the rights, registered the title, and made a 3 million dollar cartoon feature length movie. It's still playing, and will be as long as there's a shred of the print left.

Barbara Bouchette (who's she?) is telling pals that Gardner McKay is sending her a car from Europe. That will be the day. She's signed with Otto Preminger for a small role in "In Harm's Way," in which Chill Wills plays an admiral and Slim Pickens, former Brahma bull fighter who rode down the bomb in "Dr. Strangelove," plays Chief Petty Officer Culpepper.

Ray Stark sure enough will pay Liz a million dollars to star in "This Property Is Condemned" with Richard Burton is the most professional man I've ever dealt with, uninsurable star. At the suggestion he might have trouble, Stark said: "Everybody predicted 'Night of the Iguana' would never be finished. You have problems with everything. Burton is the most professional man I've ever dealt with." Ray's son, Peter, who staged the premiere of "Iguana" at Claremont College, had his share of headaches, too. Says he might chuck public relations and go back to political science.

Where were the stars who collected millions working in Sam Bronston's pictures when his "Roman Empire" premiered here? Johnny Grant had the toughest job of his life emceeing the arrivals on TV. He was given a list of 30 top stars who promised to attend. The only ones who showed were the Art Linkletters, Tony Bills, Bob Stacks, Lloyd Nolans, and Edd Byrnes. There was a guy running in and out claiming to have done the stunts for Steve Boyd. He was hired to add color to the premiere. What he did was insult the greatest stuntment in the world. Yakima Canutt, and his sons, who trained 220 horses (three times the number in "Ben Hur") for the picture, and did the most daring stunts you'll ever see on any screen. The Canutts are very modest fellows, but they're boiling mad over this — and should be. They worked a year on the picture, and some joker comes along and takes their credit.

It isn't every millionaire who will turn press agent for his wife. Zsa Zsa Gabor's everlovin' Herbert Hutner writes that she was the belle of London: "We went to the Derby and Zsa Zsa was pursued by all the dukes and earls. Rolls that used to belong to Mrs. Angus Ogilvy — and a chauffeur to go with it."

Those wonderful women, the Motion Picture Mothers, celebrated their 25th birthday Monday at the Beverly Hills Crystal room. Where, O where, would our stars be without them!

Bette Davis has a writer working on the life of Mary Todd Lincoln; wants to put it on screen with Gregory Peck playing Abe, where, would our stars be without them!

Bette Davis, when asked if "Sweet Charlotte" was a sequel to "Baby Jane," Bette huffed: "It's a whole new story. Miss Crawford and I aren't doing an Andy Hardy series."

Kate Smith's accident was much more serious than reported. She was visiting friends in Palm Beach, and while taking a bath slipped in the tub, put her left arm through a glass shower door, and had to have 150 stitches. Later a skin graft. She was in shock for two days.

IT'S ABOUT THAT TOWN!

MEMPHIS (AP) — Ten-year-old Amanda Atkins may not keep close tab on the news but she has a keen ear for the radio.

Where, she finally asked her folks, is that town they keep talking about? Civilrightsville.

Barbara Bouchette (who's she?) is telling pals that Gardner McKay is sending her a car from Europe. That will be the day. She's signed with Otto Preminger for a small role in "In Harm's Way," in which Chill Wills plays an admiral and Slim Pickens, former Brahma bull fighter who rode down the bomb in "Dr. Strangelove," plays Chief Petty Officer Culpepper.

Ray Stark sure enough will pay Liz a million dollars to star in "This Property Is Condemned" with Richard Burton is the most professional man I've ever dealt with, uninsurable star. At the suggestion he might have trouble, Stark said: "Everybody predicted 'Night of the Iguana' would never be finished. You have problems with everything. Burton is the most professional man I've ever dealt with." Ray's son, Peter, who staged the premiere of "Iguana" at Claremont College, had his share of headaches, too. Says he might chuck public relations and go back to political science.

Where were the stars who collected millions working in Sam Bronston's pictures when his "Roman Empire" premiered here? Johnny Grant had the toughest job of his life emceeing the arrivals on TV. He was given a list of 30 top stars who promised to attend. The only ones who showed were the Art Linkletters, Tony Bills, Bob Stacks, Lloyd Nolans, and Edd Byrnes. There was a guy running in and out claiming to have done the stunts for Steve Boyd. He was hired to add color to the premiere. What he did was insult the greatest stuntment in the world. Yakima Canutt, and his sons, who trained 220 horses (three times the number in "Ben Hur") for the picture, and did the most daring stunts you'll ever see on any screen. The Canutts are very modest fellows, but they're boiling mad over this — and should be. They worked a year on the picture, and some joker comes along and takes their credit.

It isn't every millionaire who will turn press agent for his wife. Zsa Zsa Gabor's everlovin' Herbert Hutner writes that she was the belle of London: "We went to the Derby and Zsa Zsa was pursued by all the dukes and earls. Rolls that used to belong to Mrs. Angus Ogilvy — and a chauffeur to go with it."

Those wonderful women, the Motion Picture Mothers, celebrated their 25th birthday Monday at the Beverly Hills Crystal room. Where, O where, would our stars be without them!

Bette Davis has a writer working on the life of Mary Todd Lincoln; wants to put it on screen with Gregory Peck playing Abe, where, would our stars be without them!

Bette Davis, when asked if "Sweet Charlotte" was a sequel to "Baby Jane," Bette huffed: "It's a whole new story, Miss Crawford and I aren't doing an Andy Hardy series."

Kate Smith's accident was much more serious than reported. She was visiting friends in Palm Beach, and while taking a bath slipped in the tub, put her left arm through a glass shower door, and had to have 150 stitches. Later a skin graft. She was in shock for two days.

IT'S ABOUT THAT TOWN!

MEMPHIS (AP) — Ten-year-old Amanda Atkins may not keep close tab on the news but she has a keen ear for the radio.

Where, she finally asked her folks, is that town they keep talking about? Civilrightsville.

British Ballerina Returns to London

PANAMA (AP) — British ballerina Margot Fonteyn, encouraged by improvement in the condition of her husband, Roberto Arias, is returning to Britain this weekend.

Relatives expressed hope that Arias, who has been paralyzed from the shoulders down since a disgruntled political associate shot him June 8, will be walking again in several months. He will be taken to a rehabilitation center in England as soon as he can travel.

Arias, 45, a wealthy politician and diplomat, was shot four times as he was riding in a car. His assailant, Alfredo Jimenez, is still at large.

Nationalized Steel Industry Is Planned

LONDON (AP) — The Labor party plans to nationalize the steel industry again and step into other sectors of the British economy if it wrests control of the government from the Conservatives in the national elections this fall.

Labor revealed some of its nationalization program during a noisy, three-hour debate in the House of Commons Thursday night after the Conservatives taunted it for silence on domestic policy.

Deputy party leader George Brown and other Laborites mentioned steel, urban land, truck transport and the national water supply as sectors for nationalization.

The British steel industry, fifth largest in the world, was nationalized in 1949 during the postwar Labor government. When the Conservatives returned to power, they promptly began selling off the nationalized companies in 1953.

Erhard Does Not Plan New Moscow Trip

By CARL HARTMAN

BONN, Germany (AP)—West German Chancellor Ludwig Erhard brushed aside today any possibility that he will soon make a trip to Moscow.

Erhard told a news conference that if Soviet Premier Khrushchev has anything useful to talk about with West German officials, he can come to Bonn.

West Germany's ambassador in Moscow has told Khrushchev that whenever he wants to visit Bonn a formal invitation will be issued, Erhard said. The chancellor declined to give Khrushchev's reaction.

Former Chancellor Konrad Adenauer visited Moscow in 1955. Erhard implied that it was up to Khrushchev to reciprocate.

Since Erhard succeeded Adenauer last October, there has been repeated talk in the West German capital of an Erhard-Khrushchev meeting.

Support in Bonn for such a meeting declined considerably after Khrushchev signed a 20-year friendship pact with Communist East Germany last Friday.

Erhard also said that in Southeast Asia, West Germany must stand by its American ally.

"For the United States, Communist China is like an exposed nerve," he commented.

Would-Be Robber Fails in Attempt

IDAHO CITY, Idaho (AP) — Service station owner Ralph Lansing had pumped 30 gallons of gasoline into a pickup truck and cans in the back Thursday when the driver drew a revolver and said: "I'll take the money in the till too."

"What are you, some kind of nut?" Lansing answered.

He continued to talk. The man decided to leave, saying he would forget the holdup but take the gas.

But Lansing's son, Jerry, a deputy sheriff, entered the station through a back door, saw what was happening and arrested the man who gave his name as John Hennrich, 19, Culver, Wash.

East German Actors Need Red Permission

BERLIN (AP)—Actors, musicians and other performers in East Germany are going to need a government certificate of competence to appear on the stage, Information Bureau West, a private intelligence service, reports.

The Soviet Union has the same system.

Western observers pointed out that professional incompetence could be used as an excuse to ban performers who offended the Communist regime.

Topless Swim Suits Keep Controversies Raging

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Covington, Ky., is not going to have anything to do with those topless swimsuits for women, but Vancouver, Wash., may find itself in the mainstream of modern fashion because of its past.

Covington's City Commission Thursday night adopted an ordinance prohibiting the "sale and-or wearing of a one-piece women's bathing suit or apparel which allows the breast of the woman to be exposed."

The vote: 4 for, 0 against.

The penalty: Up to three days in jail and a $500 fine.

"It never ceases to amaze me what some industry will do to make a dollar," said Commissioner Don Riesenberg, sponsor of the ordinance.

In Vancouver, however, a reporter dug up an 1880 ordinance which says: "No person shall bathe in the water of the Columbia River or any lake within the corporate limits of the said city or in any creek or slough within the city limits between the hours of 6 a.m. and 8 p.m. without having a suitable bathing suit, which shall cover the body from the waist to the knee."

Note that "waist to the knee." And, what about 8 p.m. to 6 a.m.?

The bare bosom bathing suit, as designed by Rudi Gernreich, comes somewhat above the waist, but from there to the shoulders there are only two strings—thin strings.

Buyers from clothing stores across the nation viewed the topless wonder this week in New York. Some buyers stocked up, but some of them said they'd show and sell the suits only when asked.

Others snubbed it as not in keeping with the moral tone of their town or the image of their store.

Lord & Taylor's New York management canceled its buyer's order. Macy's said, "No," and it didn't have to tell Gimbel's. Gimbel's said "No," too.

Splendiferous, a Third avenue shop, was one of the few places you could buy one in New York City. Two girls from the Folies Bergere, now on Broadway, greeted the shipment of 21 suits, reportedly the ones Lord & Taylor had evicted.

The price: $23.

The suit hit the beach briefly in Santa Monica, Calif. Blonde Lucki Winn, 23, a dancer, braved the breezes. As photographers snapped pictures, she mentioned a nightclub. She's appearing there.

In Texas, the Houston Post said in an editorial: "If this suit—or lack of suit—reveals what lies ahead in the space age, then let's send the designers and buyers of the suit to the moon. If there are enough people silly enough to make them, there will be people silly enough to buy them."

A Pentagon study group is not in favor of the proposed contributory insurance plan for hospital and medical care for retirees, according to a Pentagon spokesman. At this time the group favors an extension of the existing Dependent Medical Care Act to the retirees.

A quick check with congressional sources regarding the attitude of the Pentagon study group indicated that Congress will not favor such an approach.

Air Force survey indicates that some 5,000 airmen have required state and local relief assistance due to inadequate pay. The survey also showed that an additional 70,000 airmen and 1,000 officers have to seek off-duty employment to stay out of debt. There is no comment from the other services but unofficial word is that if the condition exists in the Air Force, doubtless it is also applicable to the other services. The data expected to support the plea of Defense for a pay raise.

Navy retired Adm. William Smedberg, has been selected to receive the Naval Reserve Association's Distinguished Service award for 1964.

The Air Force Reserve Policy Committee has approved and sent on to the Secretary of the Air Force a proposal which would provide Reserve operated headquarters in most states to replace the current sectors.

Neither the Veterans Administration nor the Department of Defense are in favor of the plan proposed by the Bureau of the Budget for the VA to take over control of military retirees. When boiled down to facts the proposal would call only for the VA to take over the budget for payment of retired pay, thus presenting a truer Defense budget by these eliminations from it. The several services would retain military control over the retirees which varies greatly between those having regular status and the several categories of retired Reservists. One point not mentioned so far is that many of the retired personnel come under both the VA and the services. This is applicable to those that have taken disability compensation from VA and retired pay from the services, thus reducing their federal income tax.

The House Armed Services Committee approved a 5 - year extension of the Navy "hump bill" after receiving assurances that this will be the last extension required by the Navy and the Marine Corps.

Congressman Carl Vinson has asked the chairman of the tax-writing Ways and Means Committee of the House to take up the bill providing relief from what has been termed the harsh Internal Revenue Service rulings for those who take part in the Retired Serviceman's Family Protection Act. Under the IRS rulings military men pay taxes on the amount deducted from their retired pay for the act's annuity, and at the time of death widows also have to pay estate tax on the estimated value of the annuity. Vinson would like to see both of these taxations rescinded.

The Army will make an all-out effort to retain its low-priority forces in the Reserve structure. Defense is planning to drop these low priorities. Retention has the support of the all-powerful National Guard Association.

The Pentagon has approved legislation to permit the Army and Air Force to promote Reserve unit officers in over-age grades for one year beyond the current June 30, 1964. Quick Budget Bureau and congressional action is necessary if the proposal can beat the June 30 deadline.

Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara has accepted the invitation to keynote the 1964 DAV national convention to be held Aug. 17-21 in Phoenix, Ariz.

Legislation to pass the control and maintenance of the National Cemeteries from the Army to the Veterans Administration is expected to be introduced in the Senate within a few weeks. The 13 National Cemeteries now under control of the Department of the Interior which have greater significance as National Monuments than as cemeteries, apparently are not to be included in the proposal.

Pentagon officials are expressing concern that only 5,000,000 veterans of World War II, including active duty personnel, have retained their government insurance. More than 22,000,000 policies have been issued. Most of the policies have been terminated by lapse. Some talk heard here of a new sales campaign to alert active duty personnel to the value of their government insurance in contrast to commercial insurance.

Air Force Lt. Gen. Howell Marion Estes Jr., West Point class of 1936, was named to succeed Gen. Joe Kelly as commander of MATS and promoted to a 4th star. Both Gen. Estes and his father, the latter of the class of 1911, started out as cavalrymen. The new MATS commander was born Sept. 18, 1914.

The House has approved and sent to the Senate the federal employes pay raise, including a raise of $7500 for members of Congress. For the employes the bill is to be effective at the start of the first full pay period after the enactment into law. Congressional pay raises would be effective Jan. 1, 1965. The Senate is expected to approve the measure without delay.

The favorable action on the employe bill is expected to clear the way for consideration of a military pay raise.

The Defense Department has approved a program to make more effective use of retraining programs to secure new positions for career federal employes displaced by actions such as base closings and reductions in-force.

The broadcast said the men were trapped behind thousands of tons of rock which blocked the entrance of a tunnel they were blasting through a mountain near Bashkitan, Azerbaijan, in the Caucasus.

The broadcast said the rockfall was caused by heavy rains.

There was no indication of the purpose of the tunnel or whether any miners were lost.

Would-Be Robber Fails in Attempt

IDAHO CITY, Idaho (AP) — Service station owner Ralph Lansing had pumped 30 gallons of gasoline into a pickup truck and cans in the back Thursday when the driver drew a revolver and said: "I'll take the money in the till too."

"What are you, some kind of nut?" Lansing answered.

He continued to talk. The man decided to leave, saying he would forget the holdup but take the gas.

But Lansing's son, Jerry, a deputy sheriff, entered the station through a back door, saw what was happening and arrested the man who gave his name as John Hennrich, 19, Culver, Wash.

Topless Swim Suits Keep Controversies Raging

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Covington, Ky., is not going to have anything to do with those topless swimsuits for women, but Vancouver, Wash., may find itself in the mainstream of modern fashion because of its past.

Covington's City Commission Thursday night adopted an ordinance prohibiting the "sale and-or wearing of a one-piece women's bathing suit or apparel which allows the breast of the woman to be exposed."

The vote: 4 for, 0 against.

The penalty: Up to three days in jail and a $500 fine.

"It never ceases to amaze me what some industry will do to make a dollar," said Commissioner Don Riesenberg, sponsor of the ordinance.

In Vancouver, however, a reporter dug up an 1880 ordinance which says: "No person shall bathe in the water of the Columbia River or any lake within the corporate limits of the said city or in any creek or slough within the city limits between the hours of 6 a.m. and 8 p.m. without having a suitable bathing suit, which shall cover the body from the waist to the knee."

Note that "waist to the knee." And, what about 8 p.m. to 6 a.m.?

The bare bosom bathing suit, as designed by Rudi Gernreich, comes somewhat above the waist, but from there to the shoulders there are only two strings—thin strings.

Buyers from clothing stores across the nation viewed the topless wonder this week in New York. Some buyers stocked up, but some of them said they'd show and sell the suits only when asked.

Others snubbed it as not in keeping with the moral tone of their town or the image of their store.

Lord & Taylor's New York management canceled its buyer's order: Macy's said, "No," and it didn't have to tell Gimbel's. Gimbel's said "No," too.

Splendiferous, a Third avenue shop, was one of the few places you could buy one in New York City. Two girls from the Folies Bergere, now on Broadway, greeted the shipment of 21 suits, reportedly the ones Lord & Taylor had evicted.

The price: $23.

The suit hit the beach briefly in Santa Monica, Calif. Blonde Lucki Winn, 23, a dancer, braved the breezes. As photographers snapped pictures, she mentioned a nightclub. She's appearing there.

In Texas, the Houston Post said in an editorial: "If this suit—or lack of suit—reveals what lies ahead in the space age, then let's send the designers and buyers of the suit to the moon. If there are enough people silly enough to make them, there will be people silly enough to buy them."

Man Denies Being Drunk; Only Sick From Drinking

A police officer testified in municipal court Thursday that when he asked Phillip Kenney, 39, if he was drunk, Kenney replied "no, I'm sick." The officer then asked Kenney how he got sick. "From drinking," replied Kenney.

After this testimony from the officer, Judge Allan Asher found Kenney, of 3024 N. Nevada Ave., guilty of drunkenness and sentenced him to 5 days in the City Jail, but not before Kenney protested, "I know when I'm drunk and when I'm sober. I've been drunk before."

In other cases before the court Thursday, Miles Edwards, 21, of 714 E. Rio Grande St., received a $100 fine and a 15-day jail sentence for drag racing. In imposing the sentence the judge pointed out that Edwards had been guilty of three traffic offenses this year, six last year, and five the year before. The judge commented to Edwards, "You are the kind of driver we can do without." Charges of speeding and a meter violation against the defendant were dismissed. Defense attorney Jerry Donley asked for and got a ten-day stay of execution.

Another man whose driving the judge thought the city could "do without" was Roy Hudson, 33, of 524 E. High St. Hudson was found guilty of reckless driving and fined $150. He was also fined $50 for injury to city property and his license was suspended for 30 days. A careless driving charge against Hudson was dismissed.

Also found guilty of reckless driving was Lester Roberts, 34, of 2426 W. Vermijo St. Robert's license was suspended for 10 days and he was fined $75. A careless driving charge against him was dismissed.

Three persons were found guilty of careless driving and fined as follows:

Arthur Hildreth, 40, 420 E. St. Vrain St., $15; Victor Chesnoski, 22, Ft. Carson, $50 and a 15-day license suspension; Terrance Middle, 24, 231 N. Institute St., $35.

Two persons were found innocent of traffic violations. They were Richard Tyler, 33, of 2019 N. Circle Dr., and Lawrence Wagner, 20, of 330 E. Yampa St. Tyler had been charged with not exercising due care and Wagner with careless driving.

Richard Eller, 31, of Lincoln's Inn, Old Stage Road, was found guilty of following too close and fined $10. His Attorney, Brian Mullet, requested and was granted a 10-day stay of execution.

Thomas Tilker, 16, of 2211 Chelton Rd., was found innocent of improper passing and Victor Herlacher forfeited a $5 bond for an improper turn.

Leslie Peats, 19, of 411, E. Willamette Ave., was found not guilty of vagrancy.

The judge found Theodore Williams, 57, of 638 E. Monument St., guilty of drunkenness and let him off with a warning. Also guilty of drunkenness were Melvin Acree, 34, of 524 W. Willamette Ave., who received a $50 fine, and Tom Tafoya, 56, of 329 E. Fountain St., who was sentenced to 30 days in jail.

BOOSTS HILL CLIMB — A surprise speaker at the 42nd annual Colorado Municipal League conference Thursday was J. C. Agajanian, promoter of the Pikes Peak Hill Climb. Currigan of Denver, who presided at the luncheon, and Hudson Moore Jr. (right) Denver business and civic leader and main speaker for the program who discussed "Colorado Potential for Attracting Technological Oriented Industry."

Bus-Cars Crash Results in Three Injuries

Three persons were injured and over $2,000 damage done when three cars and a city bus were involved in an accident late Wednesday night in the 800 block of N. Nevada Ave. Police reported the accident this morning.

The driver of one car, Robert J. Trupp, 21, of 310 E. Columbia St., was ticketed for drunken driving, reckless driving and injury to city property. He received treatment for minor injuries at St. Francis Hospital. Also treated at St. Francis was a passenger in Trupp's car, Larry M. Leonard, 21, of 2246 Cortez St., who sustained two broken teeth and cuts.

A passenger in the bus who was walking back to find a seat was thrown to the floor of the bus and suffered a broken leg. The injured man is J. D. Cook, 19, of Ft. Carson. He was taken to the post hospital for treatment.

Police said the Trupp vehicle collided with the rear of a car driven by Ray Coddington, 29, of Ft. Carson. Both cars were traveling south at the time of the impact. The Coddington car was forced to the right into the front of the southbound bus which was in the adjacent lane of traffic. Quarter Horse Show Opens Today at Penrose Stadium

The Fifth Annual Pikes Peak Quarter Horse Show opens today in Penrose Stadium, with roping, reining, barrel racing, team tying, jumping and many other thrilling spectator events being held each morning, afternoon and evening, Friday and Saturday.

Quarter horse owners, breeders, riders and competitors come from Colorado, Wyoming, Nebraska and Texas to compete in this now nationally-recognized show. In 1963 the Pikes Peak show received a Class A rating, tops in the business for shows which pass 225 registered quarter horse entries.

The open cutting event, which this year boasts a purse of $200 and total prize money of more than $800, will hold its first two rounds Friday morning at 9 o'clock. This is open to the public without charge.

This afternoon is the first go-round of the Pikes Peak Invitational Team Tying. This rugged event, which features one man as header (he must rope the horns of the steer) and one man as heeler (he must rope the hind feet of the steer), sees the dust fly hot and heavy as these teams race to floor the steer and put the proper tie on the animal. With a purse of $200 and an entry fee of $30 added, the prize money for this event will exceed $1000.

Saturday morning the quarter horse champions of the region will show at halter, beginning at 9 o'clock. This event, which runs until noon, is free to the public and offers the thrill of crowning the grand champion mare, stallion and gelding.

Saturday night's final performance includes senior calf roping and senior reining, the barrel racing, the trailer race, the western pleasure youth activity class, the finals in open cutting and team tying and the finals of the jumping.

The Pikes Peak Rangerettes, Colorado Springs' own precision drill-team of young horsewomen, will open both performances Friday and Saturday night at 8 o'clock.

Morrissey also cited Carl Herbert Miller, 27, Jefferson City, Mo. for making an improper turn on Tejon Street Wednesday. A $5 fine and costs was imposed.

Quarter Horse Show Opens Today at Penrose Stadium

The Fifth Annual Pikes Peak Quarter Horse Show opens today in Penrose Stadium, with roping, reining, barrel racing, team tying, jumping and many other thrilling spectator events being held each morning, afternoon and evening, Friday and Saturday.

Quarter horse owners, breeders, riders and competitors come from Colorado, Wyoming, Nebraska and Texas to compete in this now nationally-recognized show. In 1963 the Pikes Peak show received a Class A rating, tops in the business for shows which pass 225 registered quarter horse entries.

The open cutting event, which this year boasts a purse of $200 and total prize money of more than $800, will hold its first two rounds Friday morning at 9 o'clock. This is open to the public without charge.

This afternoon is the first go-round of the Pikes Peak Invitational Team Tying. This rugged event, which features one man as header (he must rope the horns of the steer) and one man as heeler (he must rope the hind feet of the steer), sees the dust fly hot and heavy as these teams race to floor the steer and put the proper tie on the animal. With a purse of $200 and an entry fee of $30 added, the prize money for this event will exceed $1000.

Saturday morning the quarter horse champions of the region will show at halter, beginning at 9 o'clock. This event, which runs until noon, is free to the public and offers the thrill of crowning the grand champion mare, stallion and gelding.

Saturday night's final performance includes senior calf roping and senior reining, the barrel racing, the trailer race, the western pleasure youth activity class, the finals in open cutting and team tying and the finals of the jumping.

The Pikes Peak Rangerettes, Colorado Springs' own precision drill-team of young horsewomen, will open both performances Friday and Saturday night at 8 o'clock.

Wall Street Report

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market moved in a narrow range early this afternoon as trading slackened prior to the weekend.

Minor fractional changes were the rule for most key stocks.

Some of the higher-priced issues or special situations made wider moves.

Feature of the session was a plunge of 7⅛ to 119 by U.S. Smelting in an opening block of 3,700 shares. The stock recouped a couple of points of the loss later.

Texas Gulf Sulphur recouped more than a point of its loss of Thursday.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was unchanged at 308.2 with industrials up .1, rails up .1 and utilities off .2.

Big Three motors were easy, with a fractional decline by Ford being the sharpest loss. Steels were very narrowly mixed.

Rubbers and aerospace issues were mostly higher. Most other groups were scrambled.

Du Pont was down 2 points for a while but regained all except a fraction of the loss.

Xerox rebounded a couple of points. Control Data was a point higher.

Prices were generally higher on the American Stock Exchange.

Corporate and U.S. government bonds were irregular.

U.S. and Britain Suffer Setback in Laos Peace Plan

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and Britain appear to have suffered a setback in their efforts to find a diplomatic solution for the crisis in Laos.

The Soviet Union has cooled off on a Polish proposal for an urgent international conference to deal with threats to the Southeast Asian country's neutrality, Washington officials report. The Soviets reportedly have raised some objections to the way the conference was to be set up and the result is seen here as slowing down the diplomatic approach to a solution.

What effect this development will have on further U.S. military intervention in Laos on behalf of the neutralist government is unclear at the moment. But the United States has committed itself to a policy of rolling back Communist forces from territory they recently conquered in the strategic Plaine des Jarres.

If this objective cannot be accomplished eventually by diplomatic means, the Johnson administration presumably will have to consider expanding military operations.

The hope in official quarters is that the Soviets will go through with the conference plan, which Britain had accepted after consultation with the United States, and officials say it is too early to judge the final outcome.

The conference as proposed by Poland would be held by Britain and the Soviet Union as the co-chairmen of the 1962 Geneva conference which agreed on the neutrality of Laos, plus Laos itself and the three countries which form an international commission to supervise the Geneva agreement. Those three are Poland, Canada and India.

Moscow is reported to have asked that the conference plan be revised to provide for participation by the Communist Pathet Lao faction.

The United States has been opposed to holding a new Geneva-type conference, which would involve 14 countries and probably reopen all the basic problems concerned with Laos and with South Viet Nam. The larger conference proposal has been advocated by Communist China.

In testimony before a House Appropriations subcommittee released Thursday night Asst. Secretary of State William P. Bundy said that if the Pathet Lao and North Vietnamese units in Laos "get military ascendency" then "the only response we would have would be to put our own forces in there."

Bundy also spoke of the possibility of expanding the war in Viet Nam to include action against Communist North Viet Nam. He said that U.S. policy now is "to try to win the war on present lines."

Grain Market

CHICAGO (AP) — The grain futures market quickly fell into a general pattern of slight weakness today and held it most of the time on the Board of Trade.

A notable exception was old crop soybeans which attracted a moderate speculative demand.

The nearby soybean months moved up as much as two cents a bushel at the opening but the advance held only briefly as selling increased.

Cariot receipts today were estimated at: wheat 4 cars, corn 92, oats 2, rye none, barley 1, soybeans 13.

FISHING TRIP PLUS

BELGRADE (AP)—A Yugoslav state car rental agency is offering tourists this year deluxe fishing excursions with free wine thrown in as a bonus.

The company has put several large boats into service, each one equipped to carry 12 to 18 persons. Fishing equipment is aboard and chefs are provided to cook the fish and provide seafood specialties.

The ships will leave from Opatija in the northern Adriatic and go on 15-day cruises. All the wine you can drink is free, although the other facilities cost $10 per day per person.

You Can't Always Depend On Accuracy of Label

By SAM CAMPBELL

When you pick up a can labeled "beans" in the grocery store, you can feel fairly confident that beans are inside the can.

This accurate relationship between label and contents, repeated over and over hundreds of times in your marketplace experience, can lead to a false complacency. It can set up a conditioned response that causes you to conclude without really thinking that the label always is a fair representation of what's inside the package.

Yet when you do stop to think about it, you can recall instances where you were "taken" in the marketplace — the watered hamburger, for instance. Generally speaking, though, the tendency of the marketplace is to weed out the crooked dealer because it's hard to fool the same set of customers over and over again.

In the marketplace, morality is profitable because people prefer to buy from merchants they can rely on.

But when you get into a situation that isn't marketplace — where there is no competition and you are forced to buy from one source — there is where the crooks will congregate because there is where crooks have their highest advantage.

The point is, that you can't safely carry your marketplace experience into a non-market situation. In the latter case, you not only must look at the label, you must examine the contents.

By way of illustration, let's look behind this label "education." The typical businessman will return from a hard day pinching pennies at the shop, pick up his wife and drive to the polls to vote an endless school tax on himself, totaling thousands of dollars.

He does so in belief that he is voting for "education." He identifies schooling with education. Admittedly, schooling does have something to do with education in about the same way that beans have some relation to Boston, but the two are not precisely the same.

Well, then, what is education and is it not true that education takes place in schools?

When you boil the term "education" down to its elemental properties, you discover that basically it means "learning how to separate truth from error."

Thus an engineer learns the right way to build a bridge and he learns to understand the principles that govern the art of all kinds of bridge building.

But the benefits that come from understanding the physical laws are proportionate to the knowledge that men have for working correctly with one another. An important aspect of education, therefore, is to learn the right way of dealing with one's fellowman; that is, to serve him honestly, to respect his property, and to avoid forcing your will upon him.

Obviously a compulsory situation is not a good place for the teaching of avoidance of force for the reason that the classroom evidence of force (that is, the financing and compulsory attendance) would contract what is to be taught.

As a result of this contradiction, much teaching today is to the effect that using force on another person is quite all right if done by a group and if the group's avowed purpose is good.

That teaching of course, is an error and the "education" label given to it is not an accurate representation of the contents.

Arizona Cactus Bootlegging Is Reported

They are raiding the desert land to such an extent that some native cacti are in the danger of extinction.

Entomologist W. T. Mendenhall said today between 25 and 50 bootleggers are operating in southern and western Arizona.

It's against the law to take cacti from public domains—about 75 per cent of the land—in Arizona.

The bootleggers even steal the saguaro—a cactus that averages 15 feet in height and will weigh up to a ton.

The "hot" merchandise earns a fancy price.

"There's a fellow I know," Mendenhall said, "who wanted to plant organ pipe cacti around a new home he was building. It cost him $6,000."

Jockey Elroy Moyers Rides Five Winners

Tito Is Getting Close to West, Traveler Says

PALO ALTO, Calif. (UPI) — Economic necessity is throwing Yugoslavia into continuously closer liaison with the West, Frank H. Bartholomew said here Thursday in a luncheon address to the annual meeting of editors of the UPI newspapers of Northern California.

"Yugoslavia has a government born of communism and committed to communism, but here also seems to be a nation facing up to the fact that its economy and the improving standard of living for its people are linked more and more to the free nations of the West," Bartholomew, chairman of the board of the news agency, said.

Just returned from the Balkans, the speaker reported that "a tremendous tourist flood, principally from Germany and Britain, has discovered the luxury-class hotels along the Dalmatian coast, and is thronging the airlines, steamship lines and the new superhighway under construction and linking the resort cities."

The importation of western ideas and of needed hard money is resulting in more personal liberties for the people of Yugoslavia themselves, Bartholomew told the editors.

Entering wedges for private ownership and private enterprise have appeared, he reported. Yugoslav peasants may hold up to 10 hectares of land in private ownership, and private business enterprises with the profit motive may start under many circumstances if not more than five people are involved; a limit which may on occasion be stretched to 12 persons per enterprise.

NCAA Tennis Tournament Hits Semi-Finals

EAST LANSING (AP)—America's top college tennis stars, playing true to form, moved into the semifinals of the NCAA Tennis Championships today with the top four seeds in both singles and doubles still unbeaten.

In singles, defending champion and No. 1 seeded Dennis Ralston of Southern California met UCLA's Arthur Ashe, ranked third. Northwestern's Marty Riessen, No. 2, faced fourth-seeded Charles Pasarell of UCLA.

Riessen and Clark Graebner, the top-seeded doubles entry, are pitted against third-ranked Ashe and Pasarell in one semifinal match.

The other will pit second-seeded Ralston and Bill Bond of USC against the No. 4 combo of Steve Reed and Dave Sanderlin of UCLA.

Ralston had the easiest time in Thursday's quarter-finals in eliminating Tim Parker of Rice 6-2, 6-2. But it took Ashe 26 games to oust USC's 10th-seeded Jerry Cromwell 11-9, 6-0.

Riessen mastered the two-handed game of sixth-seeded Bill Lenoir of Arizona 6-3, 6-2, and Pasarell had little trouble in defeating Bond 6-3, 6-2.

Ralston and Bond needed sets to eliminate Dale McCleary and Parker in the doubles quarter-finals 6-4, 4-6, 6-4.

Graebner and Riessen had an easier time in sidelining Willie Hernandez and Steve Field of Arizona 6-4, 6-0.

In other quarter-final matches Ashe and Pasarell defeated USC's Cromwell and Charles Rombeau 6-3, 6-0, and Reed and Sanderlin beat fifth-seeded Lenoir and Fred Drillling of Arizona 6-4, 6-4.

Finals in both events will be Saturday.

How to Keep Well

PREVENTABLE INFECTION

The vaccines and serums that have been used for several decades are widely accepted by most people. But not everyone is protected, despite national campaigns and widespread publicity. According to Dr. James L. Goddard of Atlanta, 4 million American children under 5 years of age have not been immunized against any disease.

This may explain why there were 444 reported cases of diphtheria in 1962 along with 17,000 cases of whooping cough and 322 cases of tetanus. No confirmed case of smallpox has appeared in this country since 1949, thanks to wide scale vaccination, improved standards of living, and our quarantine system.

On the other hand, we have been exposed to the disease on several occasions. In 1962, for example, a 14-year-old boy from Brazil got off a plane at Kennedy Airport and immediately took a train for Canada. He was sick when he left Sao Paulo and his physician made a diagnosis of influenza. Smallpox was not considered until the rash developed when he arrived in Toronto.

This is mentioned to demonstrate how easily an epidemic could get started. Many people were vaccinated against smallpox so long ago they no longer are protected. In Tucson, Ariz., for example, a servey showed only 20 per cent of those over 40 years of age had been vaccinated within four years. The national figures, according to Dr. Goddard, are not far from these.

There were 84,000 cases of diphtheria 35 years ago, compared with 444 two years ago. In 1954, 18,000 cases of polio were reported in contrast to less than 400 in 1963. We have protected our children against whooping cough but the disease is on the increase in adults. Many people objected to the reactions to this vaccine but it has been so modified that fewer side effects occur without lowering its protective levels.

Tetanus killed 256 people in 1962 — unnecessarily, because the vaccine really works.

Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self - addressed envelope accompanies request.

DIET FOR SPASMS

C. L. writes: Will diet help a person who gets periodic attacks of pylorospasm?

REPLY

Yes. Bland foods are recommended when the valve at the end of the stomach goes into spasm. Avoid condiments, spicy and fried dishes, delicatessen meats, and alcohol. Small meals are preferred to large. Drink less fluid during meals.

LET THEM EXERT

P. M. writes: Is it true that the home activities of a child with measles are not restricted, if he has the energy to play hard?

REPLY

Yes. It is difficult to restrict children who feel well enough to bounce around, and there is no need to do so.

TWITCHING EYELID

J. R. writes: I had my eyes examined recently and they are in good condition. Yet my lower right eyelid has begun to twitch —an annoying condition. Please advise.

REPLY

Spasm of the lower lid may stem from too much tea, coffee, tobacco, or alcohol.

UGLY ON AWAKENING

D. A. writes: My husband sleeps 12 to 14 hours every night but is nasty when awakened. Do you think there is anything wrong physically or mentally?

REPLY

No. Some people are not fit to live with when they get up in the morning, regardless of the number of hours they sleep.

Reserve Keeps Silver Prices Firm, Inflexible

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP)—Coin shortages in the United States and continued shortfall of world silver production in terms of consumption keep silver prices firm but still notably inflexible.

The U.S. Treasury's reserve of the metal hangs over the market as a governor, even if the minting of new small coins is short of feeding the maw of more vending machines or of meeting the needs of checkout clerks at the supermarkets.

U.S. monetary authorities frown on private schemes to put out wooden nickels or paper scrip. They are also plagued by collectors of new special issues, such as the Kennedy half-dollars, or of the cartwheels that may or may not be minted again.

Some experts, looking at the world picture, predict that the supply deficit of the metal itself may be eased a bit in the next few years. But the small coin problem seems sure to hang on here.

Pressure to change the silver content of coins, or even to eliminate it altogether, is therefore likely to rise. But the chances of the market price of silver in this country either rising or falling to any marked degree is held slight. Its big 40 per cent jump from November 1961 to September 1963 is unlikely to be repeated.

The price has held steady for months at $1.293 a troy ounce. This is the actual market value of the silver in the U.S. dollar. But experts say the price would have to rise above $1.40 an ounce before it would be profitable to melt down dimes, quarters and half dollars for their silver content.

The Treasury's present reserve of silver is estimated to be enough to fulfill normal coinage requirements for about 10 to 12 years. But the big demand for the metal from electronic and other industries, and from makers of household, jewelry and art objects, seems more likely to deplete the reserve in seven to eight years. Industry can buy from the Treasury when the outside supply is depleted or too tight.

Although interlocked to a large extent, the coin shortage, the world supply tightness, and the official price changes all have their own distinct causes. This is because of the double life the metal leads here and in other lands as both a metal in private demand and as a tightly regulated government holding.

By SAM CAMPBELL

When you pick up a can labeled "beans" in the grocery store, you can feel fairly confident that beans are inside the can.

This accurate relationship between label and contents, repeated over and over hundreds of times in your marketplace experience, can lead to a false complacency. It can set up a conditioned response that causes you to conclude without really thinking that the label always is a fair representation of what's inside the package.

Yet when you do stop to think about it, you can recall instances where you were "taken" in the marketplace — the watered hamburger, for instance. Generally speaking, though, the tendency of the marketplace is to weed out the crooked dealer because it's hard to fool the same set of customers over and over again.

In the marketplace, morality is profitable because people prefer to buy from merchants they can rely on.

But when you get into a situation that isn't marketplace — where there is no competition and you are forced to buy from one source — there is where the crooks will congregate because there is where crooks have their highest advantage.

The point is, that you can't safely carry your marketplace experience into a non-market situation. In the latter case, you not only must look at the label, you must examine the contents.

By way of illustration, let's look behind this label "education." The typical businessman will return from a hard day pinching pennies at the shop, pick up his wife and drive to the polls to vote an endless school tax on himself, totaling thousands of dollars.

He does so in belief that he is voting for "education." He identifies schooling with education. Admittedly, schooling does have something to do with education in about the same way that beans have some relation to Boston, but the two are not precisely the same.

Well, then, what is education and is it not true that education takes place in schools?

When you boil the term "education" down to its elemental properties, you discover that basically it means "learning how to separate truth from error."

Thus an engineer learns the right way to build a bridge and he learns to understand the principles that govern the art of all kinds of bridge building.

But the benefits that come from understanding the physical laws are proportionate to the knowledge that men have for working correctly with one another. An important aspect of education, therefore, is to learn the right way of dealing with one's fellowman; that is, to serve him honestly, to respect his property, and to avoid forcing your will upon him.

Obviously a compulsory situation is not a good place for the teaching of avoidance of force for the reason that the classroom evidence of force (that is, the financing and compulsory attendance) would contract what is to be taught.

As a result of this contradiction, much teaching today is to the effect that using force on another person is quite all right if done by a group and if the group's avowed purpose is good.

That teaching of course, is an error and the "education" label given to it is not an accurate representation of the contents.

Tito Is Getting Close to West, Traveler Says

PALO ALTO, Calif. (UPI) — Economic necessity is throwing Yugoslavia into continuously closer liaison with the West, Frank H. Bartholomew said here Thursday in a luncheon address to the annual meeting of editors of the UPI newspapers of Northern California.

"Yugoslavia has a government born of communism and committed to communism, but here also seems to be a nation facing up to the fact that its economy and the improving standard of living for its people are linked more and more to the free nations of the West," Bartholomew, chairman of the board of the news agency, said.

Just returned from the Balkans, the speaker reported that "a tremendous tourist flood, principally from Germany and Britain, has discovered the luxury-class hotels along the Dalmatian coast, and is thronging the airlines, steamship lines and the new superhighway under construction and linking the resort cities."

The importation of western ideas and of needed hard money is resulting in more personal liberties for the people of Yugoslavia themselves, Bartholomew told the editors.

Entering wedges for private ownership and private enterprise have appeared, he reported. Yugoslav peasants may hold up to 10 hectares of land in private ownership, and private business enterprises with the profit motive may start under many circumstances if not more than five people are involved; a limit which may on occasion be stretched to 12 persons per enterprise.

NCAA Tennis Tournament Hits Semi-Finals

EAST LANSING (AP)—America's top college tennis stars, playing true to form, moved into the semifinals of the NCAA Tennis Championships today with the top four seeds in both singles and doubles still unbeaten.

In singles, defending champion and No. 1 seeded Dennis Ralston of Southern California met UCLA's Arthur Ashe, ranked third. Northwestern's Marty Riessen, No. 2, faced fourth-seeded Charles Pasarell of UCLA.

Riessen and Clark Graebner, the top-seeded doubles entry, are pitted against third-ranked Ashe and Pasarell in one semifinal match.

The other will pit second-seeded Ralston and Bill Bond of USC against the No. 4 combo of Steve Reed and Dave Sanderlin of UCLA.

Ralston had the easiest time in Thursday's quarter-finals in eliminating Tim Parker of Rice 6-2, 6-2. But it took Ashe 26 games to oust USC's 10th-seeded Jerry Cromwell 11-9, 6-0.

Riessen mastered the two-handed game of sixth-seeded Bill Lenoir of Arizona 6-3, 6-2, and Pasarell had little trouble in defeating Bond 6-3, 6-2.

Ralston and Bond needed sets to eliminate Dale McCleary and Parker in the doubles quarter-finals 6-4, 4-6, 6-4.

Graebner and Riessen had an easier time in sidelining Willie Hernandez and Steve Field of Arizona 6-4, 6-0.

In other quarter-final matches Ashe and Pasarell defeated USC's Cromwell and Charles Rombeau 6-3, 6-0, and Reed and Sanderlin beat fifth-seeded Lenoir and Fred Drillling of Arizona 6-4, 6-4.

Finals in both events will be Saturday.

Arizona Cactus Bootlegging Is Reported

They are raiding the desert land to such an extent that some native cacti are in the danger of extinction.

Entomologist W. T. Mendenhall said today between 25 and 50 bootleggers are operating in southern and western Arizona.

It's against the law to take cacti from public domains—about 75 per cent of the land—in Arizona.

The bootleggers even steal the saguaro—a cactus that averages 15 feet in height and will weigh up to a ton.

The "hot" merchandise earns a fancy price.

"There's a fellow I know," Mendenhall said, "who wanted to plant organ pipe cacti around a new home he was building. It cost him $6,000."

BOSTON (AP)—Jockey Elroy Moyers is riding a torrid streak at Suffolk Downs Race Track's current meeting. Moyers rode five winners and three second place horses in eight tries Thursday, boosting his victory total to 62 in 52 days of racing.

How to Keep Well

PREVENTABLE INFECTION

The vaccines and serums that have been used for several decades are widely accepted by most people. But not everyone is protected, despite national campaigns and widespread publicity. According to Dr. James L. Goddard of Atlanta, 4 million American children under 5 years of age have not been immunized against any disease.

This may explain why there were 444 reported cases of diphtheria in 1962 along with 17,000 cases of whooping cough and 322 cases of tetanus. No confirmed case of smallpox has appeared in this country since 1949, thanks to wide scale vaccination, improved standards of living, and our quarantine system.

On the other hand, we have been exposed to the disease on several occasions. In 1962, for example, a 14-year-old boy from Brazil got off a plane at Kennedy Airport and immediately took a train for Canada. He was sick when he left Sao Paulo and his physician made a diagnosis of influenza. Smallpox was not considered until the rash developed when he arrived in Toronto.

This is mentioned to demonstrate how easily an epidemic could get started. Many people were vaccinated against smallpox so long ago they no longer are protected. In Tucson, Ariz., for example, a servey showed only 20 per cent of those over 40 years of age had been vaccinated within four years. The national figures, according to Dr. Goddard, are not far from these.

There were 84,000 cases of diphtheria 35 years ago, compared with 444 two years ago. In 1954, 18,000 cases of polio were reported in contrast to less than 400 in 1963. We have protected our children against whooping cough but the disease is on the increase in adults. Many people objected to the reactions to this vaccine but it has been so modified that fewer side effects occur without lowering its protective levels.

Tetanus killed 256 people in 1962 — unnecessarily, because the vaccine really works.

Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self - addressed envelope accompanies request.

DIET FOR SPASMS

C. L. writes: Will diet help a person who gets periodic attacks of pylorospasm?

REPLY

Yes. Bland foods are recommended when the valve at the end of the stomach goes into spasm. Avoid condiments, spicy and fried dishes, delicatessen meats, and alcohol. Small meals are preferred to large. Drink less fluid during meals.

LET THEM EXERT

P. M. writes: Is it true that the home activities of a child with measles are not restricted, if he has the energy to play hard?

REPLY

Yes. It is difficult to restrict children who feel well enough to bounce around, and there is no need to do so.

TWITCHING EYELID

J. R. writes: I had my eyes examined recently and they are in good condition. Yet my lower right eyelid has begun to twitch —an annoying condition. Please advise.

REPLY

Spasm of the lower lid may stem from too much tea, coffee, tobacco, or alcohol.

UGLY ON AWAKENING

D. A. writes: My husband sleeps 12 to 14 hours every night but is nasty when awakened. Do you think there is anything wrong physically or mentally?

REPLY

No. Some people are not fit to live with when they get up in the morning, regardless of the number of hours they sleep.

Reserve Keeps Silver Prices Firm, Inflexible

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP)—Coin shortages in the United States and continued shortfall of world silver production in terms of consumption keep silver prices firm but still notably inflexible.

The U.S. Treasury's reserve of the metal hangs over the market as a governor, even if the minting of new small coins is short of feeding the maw of more vending machines or of meeting the needs of checkout clerks at the supermarkets.

U.S. monetary authorities frown on private schemes to put out wooden nickels or paper scrip. They are also plagued by collectors of new special issues, such as the Kennedy half-dollars, or of the cartwheels that may or may not be minted again.

Some experts, looking at the world picture, predict that the supply deficit of the metal itself may be eased a bit in the next few years. But the small coin problem seems sure to hang on here.

Pressure to change the silver content of coins, or even to eliminate it altogether, is therefore likely to rise. But the chances of the market price of silver in this country either rising or falling to any marked degree is held slight. Its big 40 per cent jump from November 1961 to September 1963 is unlikely to be repeated.

The price has held steady for months at $1.293 a troy ounce. This is the actual market value of the silver in the U.S. dollar. But experts say the price would have to rise above $1.40 an ounce before it would be profitable to melt down dimes, quarters and half dollars for their silver content.

The Treasury's present reserve of silver is estimated to be enough to fulfill normal coinage requirements for about 10 to 12 years. But the big demand for the metal from electronic and other industries, and from makers of household, jewelry and art objects, seems more likely to deplete the reserve in seven to eight years. Industry can buy from the Treasury when the outside supply is depleted or too tight.

Although interlocked to a large extent, the coin shortage, the world supply tightness, and the official price changes all have their own distinct causes. This is because of the double life the metal leads here and in other lands as both a metal in private demand and as a tightly regulated government holding.

Bunt-and-Runners Pace Chicago's Slim Win

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

The rabbit ball and the flutterball have lifted the Chicago White Sox back into first place in the American League.

The lively rabbit ball was lofted out of Baltimore's huge Municipal Stadium Thursday night by two of Chicago's bunt-and-run specialists — Mike Hershberger and Al Weis—and provided the only runs Thursday night in a 2-0 victory over the Orioles.

The deadly flutterball was lofted up to home plate by knuckleball specialist Hoyt Wilhelm, who probably has the most deceptive pitch and record in the majors.

Wilhelm came on in relief of Frank Kreutzer for the White Sox in the seventh inning, allowed only one hit and lowered his earned run average to 2.11. That, oddly, goes with an 0-4 record. The 40-year-old right-hander, however, has made 28 appearances and been in 17 winning games.

He has been pressed into action in exactly half of the White Sox' games and at that clip would wind up floating his knuckler up to home plate in 81 games. The league record of 71 was set last year by Stu Miller of the Orioles.

Baltimore starter Dave McNally gave up only four hits in seven innings, but Hershberger and Weis proved too much for him. Hershberger hit his first homer of the season in the fourth inning and Weis connected for his second in the sixth.

That was more than enough as the White Sox shoved the Orioles into second place, seven percentage points behind, while the New York Yankees closed to within one-half game of the top by downing Boston 6-3. In the only other AL game scheduled, Kansas City edged Detroit 3-2.

National League-leading Philadelphia belted the Chicago Cubs 6-3, St. Louis edged San Francisco 7-6 and Pittsburgh crushed the New York Mets 10-0. The other clubs were not scheduled.

Elston Howard and Tom Tresh each drove in two runs for the Yankees while Rollie Sheldon went all the way for his first victory. Howard slammed a two-run triple off loser Jack Lamabe in a four-run first inning uprising and Tresh wrapped up the New York scoring with a two-run homer in the seventh.

Ed Charles' leadoff homer in the ninth inning won it for the A's and handed the defeat to his former teammate, Ed Rakow. The Tigers had tied the score in the seventh on Bill Freehan's homer. Kansas City had capitalized on a dropped fly ball by Jake Wood for its other runs in the fourth inning.

It's the ninth inning and your team is down by a run with two men on. Who do you want as your hitter?

How about Willie Mays? Well, Alvin Dark had him Thursday night, but he'd have been better off with Julian Javier.

The Giants were trailing the Cardinals in just that situation with Willie at the plate in Thursday's 7-6 St. Louis victory. Mays had slammed his 20th homer and two singles earlier but against Ron Taylor in the ninth, he struck out.

Javier, the Cardinal second baseman, did more damage than Mays, cracking a homer, double and single and driving in five of the Cardinal runs. It was a single-game St. Louis RBI high for the season.

The Cardinals, hard-pressed for runs during their recent road trip, battered Giant ace Juan Marichal for 11 hits and all their runs in the five innings he worked. It was Marichal's third loss in 11 decisions.

In other National League games, Pittsburgh belted New York 10-0 and the front-running Philadelphia Phillies dropped Chicago 6-3.

In the American League, Chicago regained first place, edging Baltimore 2-0, New York moved within a half-game of the lead, whipping Boston 6-3 and Kansas City nipped Detroit 3-2.

Ray Sadecki beat the Giants for the second straight time but needed late-inning help from Roger Craig, Mike Cuellar and Taylor. The loss dropped San Francisco a game back of Philadelphia.

The Phillies got two-run homers from Danny Cater and Johnny Callison as Chris Short won his fifth. Cater's first major league homer followed Richie Allen's infield single in the second and Callison's seventh of the season came with Cookie Rojas aboard an inning later.

Vern Law won his fourth game in his last five decisions with a strong three-hitter against the Mets. He got all the runs he needed in the first three innings on homers by Donn Clendenon and Willie Stargell, the latter a two-run shot.

A 12-hit Pirate attack handed Al Jackson his seventh straight loss and ran the little lefty's season's mark to 3-10. It was the sixth straight setback for the Mets.

Palmer Threatens Grand Slam With Open Lead

By JIM BECKER
Associated Press Sports Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)—Arnold Palmer has 198 holes to go on the Grand Slam of golf.

That works out to 54 more holes of the U.S. Open here—18 today and 36 on Saturday—and 72 holes each at the British Open and the PGA. Palmer won the first leg, the Masters, in April.

The British Open is at St. Andrews next month. Palmer might just walk over there on the water. Hardly anyone who watched him trample the brooding, brutal Congressional Country Club course here Thursday would expect Palmer to sink if he undertook the tourney.

Palmer cut a two-under par 68 out of Congressional — the only player in the field of 150 of the world's best golfers to break par in the opening round.

Only one golfer, obscure pro Bill Collins of Baltimore, matched par 70 over the 7,053-yard course, longest ever used for the Open.

All the others were over, including such as:

Defending champion Julius Boros, who had 77, including two double bogey sixes on the bank nine.

Champagne Tony Lema, who came to the Open with the hot hand off two straight tour victories, and faded to a 71 after a fine 33 on the front nine.

Jack Nicklaus, the Ohio golden bear and co-favorite with Palmer, who bogied the last three holes for a 72.

Old Sam Snead, at 52 trying for the 24th consecutive time to capture the one big title that has always evaded him, who had a 77 that included four putts from 15 feet on one green.

So widespread was the toll extracted by the course that only 46 less than one-third of the field—broke 75.

And 31 were 80 or above, more than one-fifth of the field.

After today, the field will be cut to the low 50 scores and ties—and the way things are going they may have to ask for volunteers.

Johnny Pott, Billy Casper, amateur Billy Campbell and little known club pro Joe Zakarian of Modesto, Calif., joined Lema at 71.

Among the group at 72 was Bob Charles, the left-handed British open champion from New Zealand, who must have contemplated switching rather than fighting when he played the first six holes in 5-3-3-5-5-5—five over par.

But Charles stuck to the left side, and had a 32 on the back nine, the best score for that shattering stretch.

Palmer, stalking the fairways like an angry panther and luring the entranced legions of Arnie's Army in his wake, started off as if he were really human, too.

He missed the fairway with his driver on every hole until the eighth, and collected his only bogey on the third hole when his drive caught the rough and his second to the green ran over.

"I got away with some bad driving for seven holes," Palmer said. "Then I got it under control.

"And then I made that nice putt on the 12th hole—that's the par 3 where I hit the ball in the trap and pitched out about six feet away. The putt was downhill and when I made it I really felt better.

"I putted very well all the way. I only had 27 putts, and that's the first round under 30 putts for me all year."

Palmer enters the last three rounds of the Open with a mild jinx to battle—the fact that only 12 players who led after the first round have won the Open.

If Palmer doesn't make it 13, it will greatly surprise most of the field, including Collins.

Tight Matches Plentiful in NCAA

By TOM CUSHMAN
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

Oklahoma State watched its team championship vanish and its individual players quickly eliminated, but the Cowboys may still have a winner in the 1964 NCAA Golf Championships.

Jim Colbert of Kansas State, lightly - regarded when the match play action started Wednesday, came puffing into this morning's semi - finals crediting the sudden upswing in his golf fortunes to an impromptu lesson from Oklahoma State coach, Labron Harris.

"I played very poorly all spring," Colbert said following 40 exhausting holes of Thursday competition. "Then, at the Big Eight meet Labron Harris discovered a flaw in my swing and helped me correct it. George Hixon (the Cowboys' top player) also helped me quite a bit. I'm just starting to play well now."

Colbert's three contemporaries, who joined him in the semi - finals at the Broadmoor this morning, were undoubtedly hoping he doesn't get any better. Thursday the stocky Wildcat star ousted two of the tournament's more proficient players. It took him 22 holes to defeat Forest Evashevski, Jr. of Michigan in the morning and another 18 to clip Colorado State University's Bob Douma in the afternoon session.

Today Colbert was to meet another giant killer — and this one carries a "big stick." His semi - finals opponent was Martin Bohen of Southern California who sidelined medalist Jerry Potter of Houston and record - setter, Vinny Giles of Georgia, in the space of a few hours Thursday. And Bohen, who is built like one of California's giant Redwoods, hits golf balls like he hates them.

The USC senior has company in the "big hitter" department, however. Today's lower bracket match paired two more of that same type. Marty Fleckman, the final survivor off Houston's team champions, has threatened to place several balls in orbit this week. So has Terry Small of San Jose State, his opponent. Small glowers at a teed - up golf ball so fiercely that spectators figure he's going to hit it with the first thing he can get his hands on.

Thus this tournament, where new stars are born annually, is obviously headed for a colorful, and exciting finish. The majority of the coaches still in attendance Thursday afternoon figured that any one of the four semi - finalists could go all the way.

Regardless of the outcomes of the final three matches, they can hardly surpass Thursday for sheer drama. Six of the 12 contests played that day ended up on extra holes. Bohen was involved in two of them, which gave him a string of three straight that have gone past regulation. Notre Dame's William Regnier forced him 19 holes Wednesday afternoon, Potter took him the same distance Thursday morning, and he required 20 holes to get past Giles.

Bohen is the first USC player to ever advance as far as the semi - finals in the national championships — and he certainly earned the trip. In addition to his flair for winning marathon matches, he started the week as the fifth man on Coach Stan Wood's slick quintet. Wood, who may be the only man here big enough to handle his late - blooming star, made the trip with an intention of winning the team title but by late Thursday he was willing to settle for an individual crown.

At that, Bohen nearly blew his quarter - final match with Georgia's accurate redhead, Vinny Giles. The USC player had a two - up lead going to the 16th but lost the next two holes with bogies. At 20 he nearly knocked the trade - name off the ball, however, dropping his tee shot within easy wedge distance to the green. Giles' second shot was long and his pitch back carried six feet past. He two - putted from there while Bohen got down in two from 11 feet and wrapped up the match.

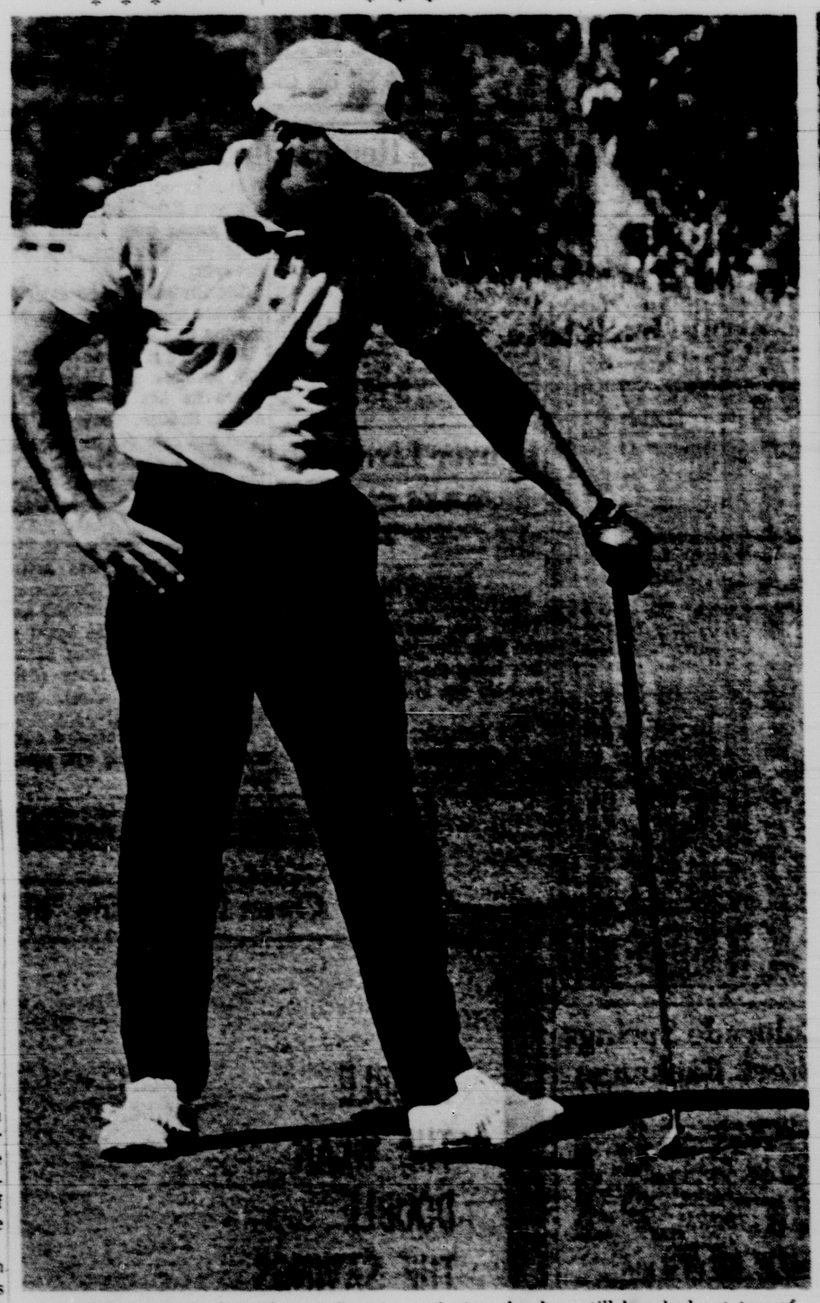
They had just left the 20th hole when Fleckman and New Mexico State's Larry Beem replaced them. Fleckman had departed the script in the morning with a fairly easy 3 and 2 win over Kenneth Lindsey of Memphis State. But Beem, who shares the new medal play record of 67 at the Broadmoor with Giles, made him work overtime in the afternoon. Fleckman finally pulled it out with a 12 foot par putt at the 20th.

Small had an extra - holer in the morning round against Houston's Randy Petri but his afternoon chores were less strenuous. He built a three hole lead on the first seven and was never in serious trouble in whipping Paul DesJardins of Miami U., 3 and 2.

Starting times for the 36 hole matches today and Saturday are 9 a.m. and 1 p.m. There is no admission charge for this tournament.

THIRD ROUND RESULTS
Martin Bohen, Southern California defeated Jeff Potter, Miami U., 1 up (19 holes). Vinny Giles, Georgia defeated Jim Jewell, Indiana U., 2 and 1. Robert Douma, Colorado State U. defeated James Dunahy, Notre Dame, 4 and 3. Jim Colbert, Kansas State defeated Forest Evashevski, Jr., Michigan U., 1 up (22 holes).
Marty Fleckman, Houston U. defeated Kenneth Lindsey, Memphis State, 3 and 2. Larry Beem, New Mexico State defeated Terrell Nevels, Maryland U., 1 up (19 holes). Paul Runyan, Miami U. defeated John Langenheim, Arkansas College, 2 and 1. Terry Small, San Jose State defeated Randy Petri, Houston U., 1 up (19 holes).

(SECOND ROUND RESULTS
Bohen defeated Giles, 1 up (20 holes). Colbert defeated Douma, 1 up. Fleckman defeated Beem, 1 up (20 holes). Small defeated DesJardins, 3 and 2.



I CAN'T BELIEVE IT!—Kansas State's Jim Colbert stares in disbelief at a putt that refuses to drop during his fourth round match with Bob Douma of CSU in the NCAA Golf Tournament Thursday. Colbert, who had eight three-putt greens during the day, still knocked out two of the highly-regarded players, defeating Forest Evashevski in the morning and Douma in the afternoon. He played Southern California's Martin Bohen today. (Photo by Bob McIntyre)

ONE TURN TOO SHORT—Bob Douma of Colorado State University gazes at a putt that stopped just short of the hole during action in Thursday's rounds of the NCAA Golf Tournament at the Broadmoor. Douma glided past James Danahy of Notre Dame during the morning round before losing a one-up decision to Jim Colbert of Kansas State in the afternoon. He had been the lone surviving Colorado Player. Other matches Thursday found the team of Howard-Hatton topping Dave and Paul McClintock, 6-2, 6-1 and Hatton and Howard qualified for the other finals berth with a victory over Pearce and Jack Vickers, 6-2, 6-1.

Olmeda, Laver Net Tennis Wins

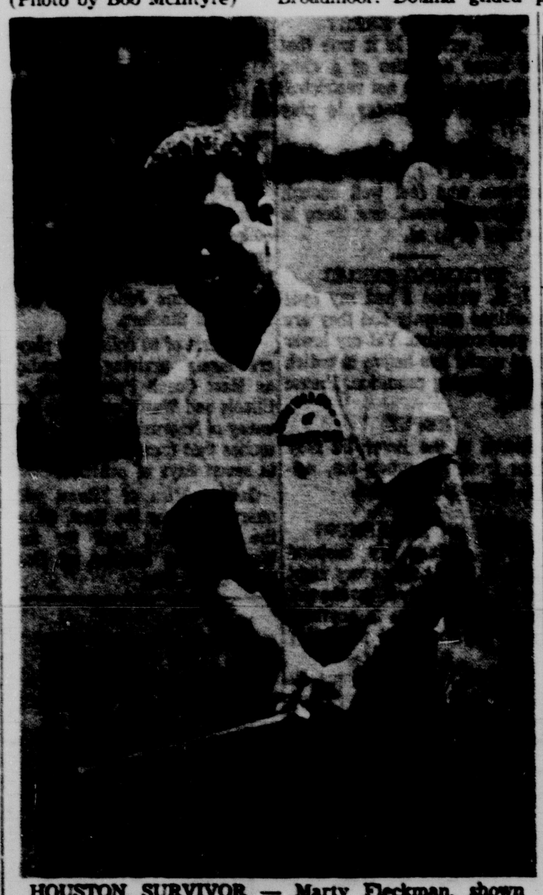
Rod Laver handcuffed Butch Buchholz in the second singles match, 11-9, 6-1.

Gonzales, 36, former pro tennis champion, took the first set from Olmeda 6-1, then dropped the last two by 7-5, 6-2 scores to the Peruvian-born ace.

In the only doubles match of the evening, Australia's Ken Rosewall and Lew Hoad downed Luis Ayala and Andres Gimeno 3-6, 7-5, 6-0.



HOUSTON SURVIVOR — Marty Fleckman, shown pitching to a green during Thursday's action in the NCAA Golf Tournament at the Broadmoor, was the last member of Houston's team champions remaining in the match play action which entered the semi-final round this morning. Fleckman defeated Kenneth Lindsey of Memphis State and Larry Beem of New Mexico State Thursday and was to meet Terry Small of San Jose State today. (Photo by Bob McIntyre)

Louis Unser, "the Old Man of the Mountain" and all-time Hill Climb champion, signed up today for his 33rd appearance in the Pikes Peak Auto Hill Climb.

The 42nd annual running of the race against the clock up massive 14,110 foot Pikes Peak is scheduled for Saturday, July 4.

The 68-year-old veteran from Manitou Springs first went up the "Hill" in 1926. He holds the all-time record of nine victories, including five straight. His five in a row came from 1934 through 1939, excluding the year the race was not run. He also won three straight in 1941, '46 and '47. His last victory came in 1953.

Breaking Unser's record five straight victories, was his nephew Bobby, who last year scored his sixth consecutive win. Bobby, who is now called "the Young Man of the Mountain," is now tied with Glen Schultz for second place in the victory column with seven triumphs each.

While Bobby has not yet entered this year's race, Louie's other nephews, Louis J., a two-time stock car champion, and Al, the only driver besides Bobby to go up the "Hill" in under 13 minutes, are in the field for the "richest race per mile" in the world today.

Unser will be wheeling one of the sharpest championship cars entered, the Gilbert's Jeep and Cycle Special, owned by Colorado Springs businessman Don McCormick. McCormick built the car two years ago and it has been driven up the "ill" by Ken Davis and Joe Lehman. Don raced this car throughout the United States and Canada on the tough IMCA circuit. It is powered by a 327 cubic inch Chevrolet engine.

Louie is the sixth local driver entered in the championship division. The others are Paul Kleinschmidt, who has appeared in 12 previous races; Walt Miller, Rick Vermillion, Clark Yowell and Gib Ligon. Other local drivers include Al Daniels and Pat Livingston in sports cars and Frank Sanborn in the stock car division.

Seven Unsers in two generations have raced up the Peak. Uncle Louie and nephew Bobby hold 16 championship victories between them; while nephew Louis Jr., and his twin brother, the late Jerry, each scored back-to-back stock car wins.

Despite his 68-years, Louie puts in a full days work at Colorado Springs Auto Parts, where he has worked the past nine years.

The USC senior has company in the "big hitter" department, however. Today's lower bracket match paired two more of that same type. Marty Fleckman, the final survivor off Houston's team champions, has threatened to place several balls in orbit this week. So has Terry Small of San Jose State, his opponent. Small glowers at a teed - up golf ball so fiercely that spectators figure he's going to hit it with the first thing he can get his hands on.

Thus this tournament, where new stars are born annually, is obviously headed for a colorful, and exciting finish. The majority of the coaches still in attendance Thursday afternoon figured that any one of the four semi - finalists could go all the way.

Regardless of the outcomes of the final three matches, they can hardly surpass Thursday for sheer drama. Six of the 12 contests played that day ended up on extra holes. Bohen was involved in two of them, which gave him a string of three straight that have gone past regulation. Notre Dame's William Regnier forced him 19 holes Wednesday afternoon, Potter took him the same distance Thursday morning, and he required 20 holes to get past Giles.

Bohen is the first USC player to ever advance as far as the semi - finals in the national championships — and he certainly earned the trip. In addition to his flair for winning marathon matches, he started the week as the fifth man on Coach Stan Wood's slick quintet. Wood, who may be the only man here big enough to handle his late - blooming star, made the trip with an intention of winning the team title but by late Thursday he was willing to settle for an individual crown.

At that, Bohen nearly blew his quarter - final match with Georgia's accurate redhead, Vinny Giles. The USC player had a two - up lead going to the 16th but lost the next two holes with bogies. At 20 he nearly knocked the trade - name off the ball, however, dropping his tee shot within easy wedge distance to the green. Giles' second shot was long and his pitch back carried six feet past. He two - putted from there while Bohen got down in two from 11 feet and wrapped up the match.

They had just left the 20th hole when Fleckman and New Mexico State's Larry Beem replaced them. Fleckman had departed the script in the morning with a fairly easy 3 and 2 win over Kenneth Lindsey of Memphis State. But Beem, who shares the new medal play record of 67 at the Broadmoor with Giles, made him work overtime in the afternoon. Fleckman finally pulled it out with a 12 foot par putt at the 20th.

Small had an extra - holer in the morning round against Houston's Randy Petri but his afternoon chores were less strenuous. He built a three hole lead on the first seven and was never in serious trouble in whipping Paul DesJardins of Miami U., 3 and 2.

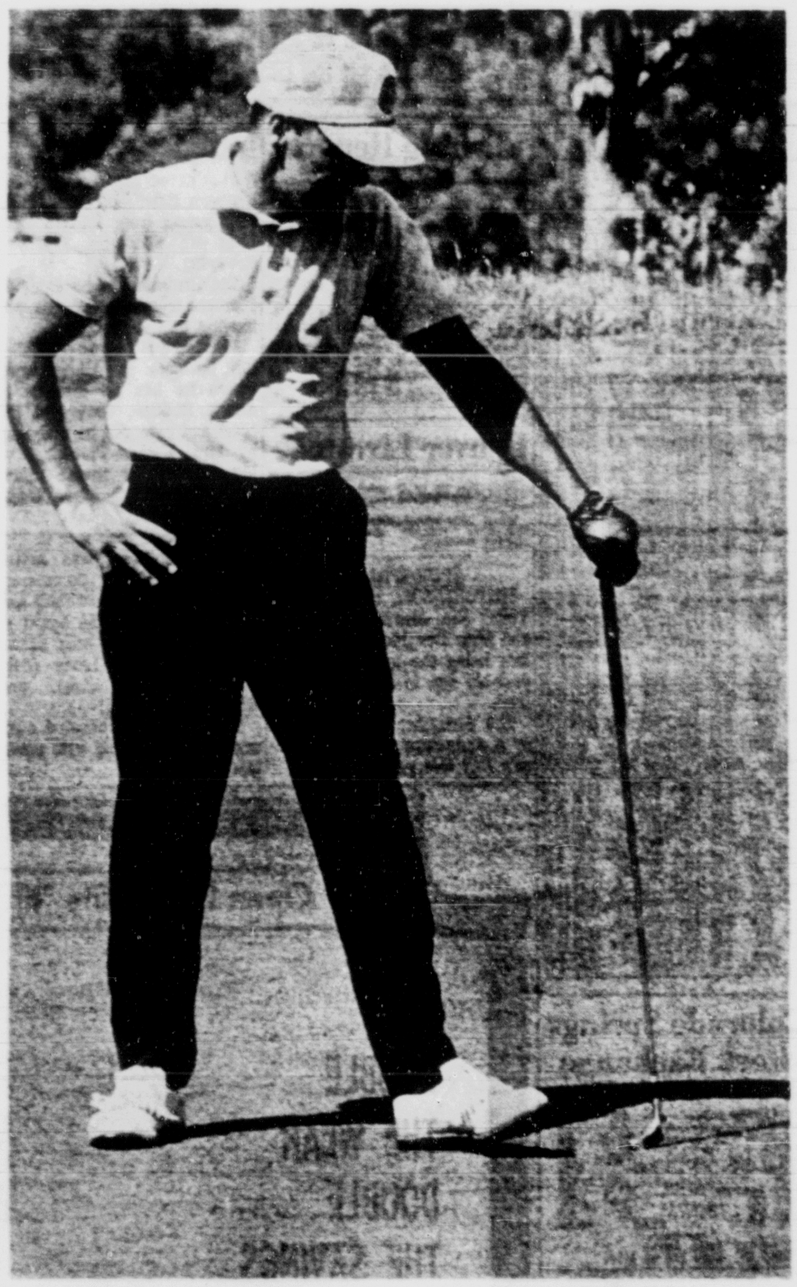
Starting times for the 36 hole matches today and Saturday are 9 a.m. and 1 p.m. There is no admission charge for this tournament.

THIRD ROUND RESULTS

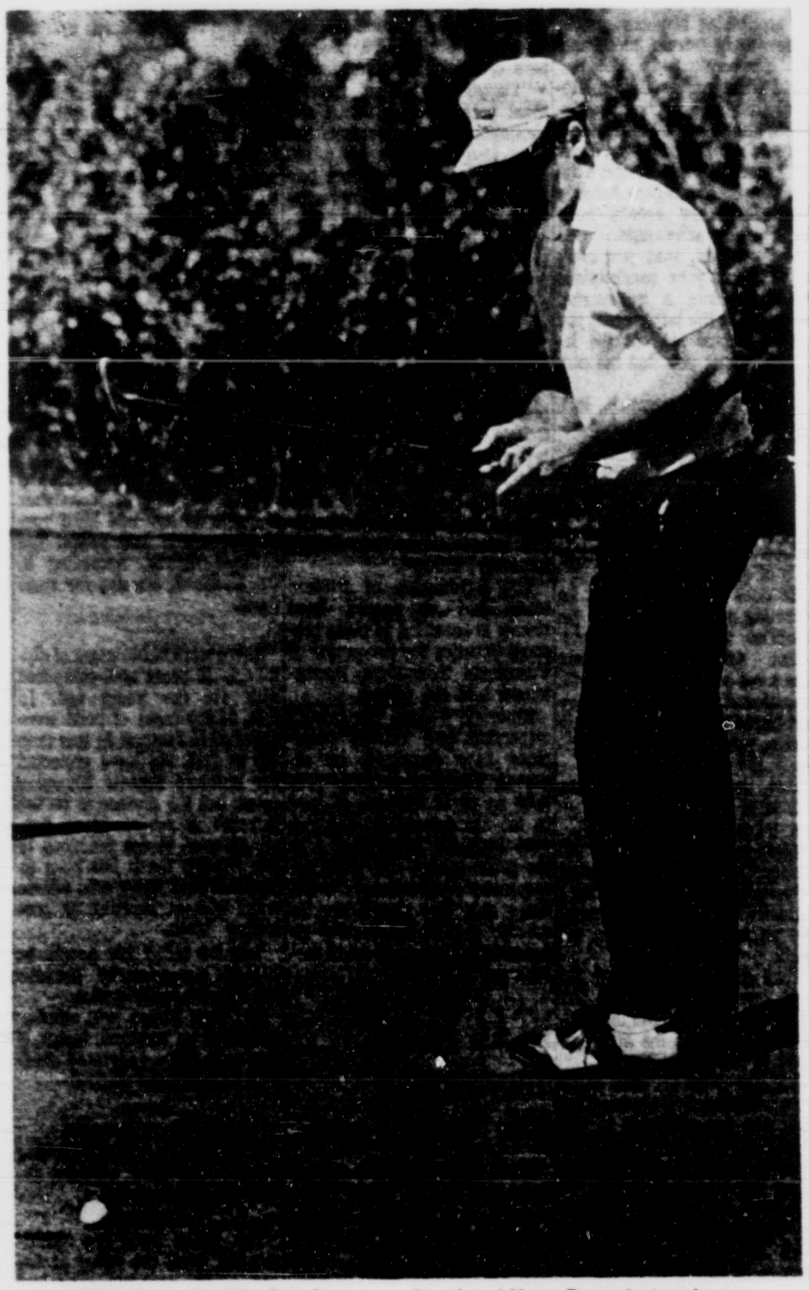
Martin Bohen, Southern California defeated Jeff Potter, Miami U., 1 up (19 holes). Vinny Giles, Georgia defeated Jim Jewell, Indiana U., 2 and 1. Robert Douma, Colorado State U. defeated James Danahy, Notre Dame, 3 and 2. Jim Colbert, Kansas State defeated Forest Evashevski, Jr., Michigan U., 1 up (22 holes). Marty Fleckman, Houston U. defeated Kenneth Lindsey, Memphis State, 3 and 2. Larry Beem, New Mexico State defeated Vernon Novak, Maryland U., 1 up (19 holes). Paul DesJardines, Miami U. defeated John Kurzynowski, Aquinas College, 3 and 2. Terry Small, San Jose State defeated Randy Petri, Houston U., 1 up (19 holes).

FOURTH ROUND RESULTS

Bohen defeated Giles, 1 up. Colbert defeated Douma, 1 up. Fleckman defeated Beem, 1 up (20 holes). Small defeated DesJardins, 3 and 2.



I CAN'T BELIEVE IT!—Kansas State's Jim Colbert stares in disbelief at a putt that refuses to drop during his fourth round match with Bob Douma of CSU in the NCAA Golf Tournament Thursday. Colbert, who had eight three-putt greens during the day, still knocked out two of the highly-regarded players, defeating Forest Evashevski in the morning and Douma in the afternoon. He played Southern California's Martin Bohen today. (Photo by Bob McIntyre)



ONE TURN TOO SHORT—Bob Douma of Colorado State University gazes at a putt that stopped just short of the hole during action in Thursday's rounds of the NCAA Golf Tournament at the Broadmoor. Douma glided past James Danahy of Notre Dame during the morning round before losing a one-up decision to Jim Colbert of Kansas State in the afternoon. He had been the lone surviving Colorado Player. At 2 p.m., Tom Keach and Bob Trevethick take on the Bennett-Biddle team in the men's doubles semi-finals.

Mark Dyer defeated Brad Baker, 6-2, 2-6, 6-4 to capture the boys' 14 and under singles championship on Thursday, and Bill Pearce downed Bill Blout, 3-6, 6-2, 6-3 for the boys' 16 and under singles crown.

Other matches Thursday found the team of Howard-Hatton topping Dave and Paul McClintock, 6-2, 6-1 and Hatton and Howard qualified for the other finals berth with a victory over Pearce and Jack Vickers, 6-2, 6-1.

Olmeda, Laver Net Tennis Wins

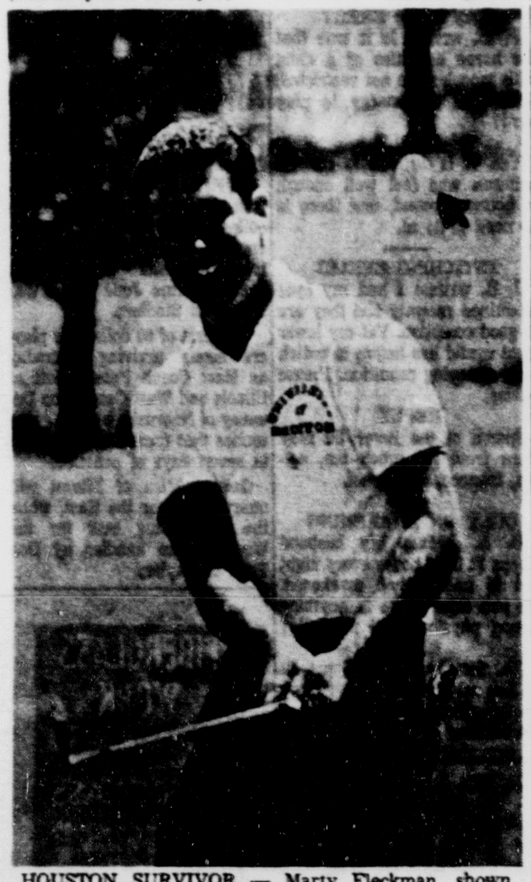
Rod Laver handcuffed Butch Buchholz in the second singles match, 11-9, 6-1.

Gonzales, 36, former pro tennis champion, took the first set from Olmeda 6-1, then dropped the last two by 7-5, 6-2 scores to the Peruvian-born ace.

In the only doubles match of the evening, Australia's Ken Rosewall and Lew Hoad downed Luis Ayala and Andres Gimeno 3-6, 7-5, 6-0.



HOUSTON SURVIVOR — Marty Fleckman, shown pitching to a green during Thursday's action in the NCAA Golf Tournament at the Broadmoor, was the last member of Houston's team champions remaining in the match play action which entered the semi-final round this morning. Fleckman defeated Kenneth Lindsey of Memphis State and Larry Beem of New Mexico State Thursday and was to meet Terry Small of San Jose State today. (Photo by Bob McIntyre)

Louis Unser, "the Old Man of the Mountain" and all-time Hill Climb champion, signed up today for his 33rd appearance in the Pikes Peak Auto Hill Climb.

The 42nd annual running of the race against the clock up massive 14,110 foot Pikes Peak is scheduled for Saturday, July 4.

The 68-year-old veteran from Manitou Springs first went up the "Hill" in 1926. He holds the all-time record of nine victories, including five straight. His five in a row came from 1934 through 1939, excluding the year the race was not run. He also won three straight in 1941, '46 and '47. His last victory came in 1953.

Breaking Unser's record five straight victories, was his nephew Bobby, who last year scored his sixth consecutive win. Bobby, who is now called "the Young Man of the Mountain," is now tied with Glen Schultz for second place in the victory column with seven triumphs each.

While Bobby has not yet entered this year's race, Louie's other nephews, Louis J., a two-time stock car champion, and Al, the only driver besides Bobby to go up the "Hill" in under 13 minutes, are in the fold for the "richest race per mile" in the world today.

Unser will be wheeling one of the sharpest championship cars entered, the Gilbert's Jeep and Cycle Special, owned by Colorado Springs businessman Don McCormick. McCormick built the car two years ago and it has been driven up the "ill" by Ken Davis and Joe Lehman. Don raced this car throughout the United States and Canada on the tough IMCA circuit. It is powered by a 327 cubic inch Chevrolet engine.

Louie is the sixth local driver entered in the championship division. The others are Paul Kleinschmidt, who has appeared in 12 previous races; Walt Miller, Rick Vermillion, Clark Yowell and Gib Ligon. Other local drivers include Al Daniels and Pat Livingston in sports cars and Frank Sanborn in the stock car division.

Seven Unsers in two generations have raced up the Peak. Uncle Louie and nephew Bobby hold 16 championship victories between them; while nephew Louis Jr., and his twin brother, the late Jerry, each scored back-to-back stock car wins.

Despite his 68-years, Louie puts in a full days work at Colorado Springs Auto Parts, where he has worked the past nine years.

Minnesota Sews Up Third NCAA Baseball Crown

By JIM VAN VALKENBURG
Associated Press Sports Writer

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—"Dewey Markus is the guy—put it in his hands and it's done," Coach Dick Siebert said after his Minnesota club beat Missouri 5-1 for its third straight election-year NCAA baseball crown.

"I've never singled out one man before," Siebert said of his fiery junior second baseman. "But Dewey picked us up after that brutal Texas trip. After that I didn't know if we belonged in the Big Ten. He chewed out every man who booted a grounder in practice.

"He made those head-first slides, and soon every guy on the club was sliding head-first—even into home," Siebert said. "You know, the kid is an inspiration—he's only 5-foot-7 and he had all those big guys following him around like lap dogs."

Joe Pollack, big junior right-hander, also drew high praise from Siebert for his four-hitter. He had a strong fast ball and threw a baffling change-up with two of three different speeds.

"Joe was in command," Siebert said. "This was probably his best game."

Shortly after the game, Markus signed with the Chicago Cubs for a nominal $2,500 bonus, with Siebert's blessing.

The opposing dugouts before the game presented a sharp contrast. Missouri was obviously tightly wound and determined. The Minnesota players were laughing and relaxed. Markus walked up and down telling jokes. Siebert hung by his hands from the dugout roof.

"I'm no watchdog," he said. "I don't lock my men in their rooms. I put trust in 'em and very few have ever failed me in 18 years at Minnesota. This is my way and I'm sticking with it because it wins.

"I played under Connie Mack with the A's," said the Gopher coach, a lifetime .290 hitter in the majors. "He treated us like men."

Minnesota won the NCAA in both its previous trips to the finals, 1956 and 1960. This was Missouri's fourth time in the finals and third runner-up finish, all under Coach Hi Simmons.

Missouri beat Minnesota 4-1 Monday, then the Gophers drew a bye into the finals and Missouri nipped Maine's giant killers, 2-1.

"I told the boys they had a fine season," Simmons said.

Missouri went into the tourney as the No. 1 team in the final poll of the nation's college coaches. The Tigers' pitching staff had an earned run average of 0.67 in the college world series. Missouri finished 27-5, Minnesota 31-12.

The final crowd of 10,562 brought a record series attendance to 61,871, up 9,114 despite five rainouts.

Nelson Tops Local Golfers In Jaycee Qualifying Meet

Nelson fired a 36-hole round of 78-75—153 to take top honors in the local meet.

Greg Johnson was second, thanks to a spectacular finish on the 18th hole of the second round. Johnson chipped his approach shot to within two feet of the cup and then dropped his putt to nose out Kip Reid by a single stroke. Johnson ended up with 156.

Reid shot a 157 for the two-day tournament, and in fourth place was Don Astley with a 161 for the 36 holes. All four of the top finishers will advance on to the state tournament at Greeley's Country Club and Highland Hills Country Club, July 20-23.

In the girls division, Kathy Danskin won with rounds of 105 and 115 for a 220 total.

Four winners from the state tournament will represent Colorado at Minneapolis-St. Paul, Aug. 3-8, in the national tournament.

12 U.S. Golfers To Compete in French Tourney

DEAUVILLE, France (AP)—A dozen American golfers began play today in the French Amateur Championship, a tournament no U.S. player has won since 1952.

Two of the top Americans, Woody Millen and Paul Coste, met in an opening round match. Coste, who is from Jamestown, R.I., reached the final of tournament in 1959, as have nine other Americans since Dick Chapman won in 1952. Millen is from Westbury, N.Y.

Wimbledon Bans Netter From Writing Job

LONDON (AP)—Mike Sangster, British Davis Cup player, was warned Thursday that he would be barred from Wimbledon Lawn Tennis Championship, next week if he writes for a Sunday newspaper during the tournament.

Sangster's first article is due to appear Sunday.

"I have not discussed it with the newspapers yet," Sangster said. "So I don't know what the position is. The rule has been pointed out to me and obviously if the article appears then I am breaking the rules."

Bobo Olson Rated Tossup In Comeback Trail Tonight

By MURRAY ROSE
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Bobo Olson, the 35-year-old former middleweight champion, who says he is fighting better than ever, was rated only even money against young Johnny Persol for their 10-round television bout at Madison Square Garden tonight.

Earlier in the week, the balding veteran from San Francisco had been a 9-5 choice over the 24-year-old New Yorker, a pro only 18 months.

On the basis of their recent performances, the ever-busy Bobo figures to have too much experience and skill for the comparative newcomer.

Persol, a decision victor over contender Eddie Cotton in piling up an all-winning record, was knocked out in the fourth round by Cotton in their return bout last March 13. His record is 11-1, including three knockouts.

Olson has an unbeaten streak of eight in his latest comeback campaign. He also has a good chance to get a title fight with light heavyweight champion Willie Pastrano in San Francisco this October.

"I've got to win this one," said Olson. "I've been waiting a long time to get another crack at the light heavy title and I can't blow the chance now."

The first and only time he had a shot at the 175-pound division crown also was his last fight in New York. That was at the Polo Grounds on June 22, 1955. Old Archie Moore knocked him out in the third round and Bobo ducked out of the ball park before reporters could talk to him.

"I'll be around after this one" promised Bobo.

Olson, ranked third among the light heavy contenders, has a 87-13-2 record, including 40 knockouts. Persol is ranked eighth.

The bout will be telecast nationally by ABC-TV. Starting time is 9 p.m., EST.

Scoring will be by the rounds system.

Dupas Wins With Decision But Still Far From Crown

By BEN THOMAS
Asociated Press Sports Writer

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—"It's been a long way back," Ralph Dupas commented as he walked into Municipal Auditorium Thursday night prior to his bout with Canada's Peter Schmidt.

Dupas scored a unanimous 10-round decision but the comeback trial may be ever further away for the one-time junior middleweight champion.

The 28-year-old ring veteran, knocked out in three of his last four scraps, appeared ineffective against his older, but less experienced foe, holder of the mythical Canadian welterweight title.

But Dupas said he had no intention of quitting.

"I intend to continue fighting and go against better men," he said afterwards. "Schmidt was a good test for me. When I was in close I kept throwing punches. I just failed to counter during the bout."

Dupas, a New Orleans native noted for his fancy footwork, started to show his dancing only in the closing rounds.

"In the early rounds, I was scared to move from side to side," he said, because I was not sure I could go the 10 rounds . . . I admit that this was not a good fight to look at, but I was scared. I guess it just takes time for everything."

Schmidt, 30, said he was ready to fight Dupas again in 30 days.

Dupas' manager, Angelo Dundee of Miami, sat in the back of the Auditorium for the bout. At ringside was Whitey Esneault, Dupas' former manager who trained him for this bout.

Esneault and Dundee had words over Dupas' contract and Esneault said he'd walk out if Dundee came into Ralph's corner. Dupas said he asked Dundee to stay in the background.

Dundee was non-commital about future plans for Dupas.

Referee Lucien Joubert and judge Maxie Docusen both scored it 7-2-1 while judge Peter Giarruso had it 6-2-2.

Bobo Olson Rated Tossup In Comeback Trail Tonight

By MURRAY ROSE
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Bobo Olson, the 35-year-old former middleweight champion, who says he is fighting better than ever, was rated only even money against young Johnny Persol for their 10-round television bout at Madison Square Garden tonight.

Earlier in the week, the balding veteran from San Francisco had been a 9-5 choice over the 24-year-old New Yorker, a pro only 18 months.

On the basis of their recent performances, the ever-busy Bobo figures to have too much experience and skill for the comparative newcomer.

Persol, a decision victor over contender Eddie Cotton in piling up an all-winning record, was knocked out in the fourth round by Cotton in their return bout last March 13. His record is 11-1, including three knockouts.

Olson has an unbeaten streak of eight in his latest comeback campaign. He also has a good chance to get a title fight with light heavyweight champion Willie Pastrano in San Francisco this October.

"I've got to win this one," said Olson. "I've been waiting a long time to get another crack at the light heavy title and I can't blow the chance now."

The first and only time he had a shot at the 175-pound division crown also was his last fight in New York. That was at the Polo Grounds on June 22, 1955. Old Archie Moore knocked him out in the third round and Bobo ducked out of the ball park before reporters could talk to him.

"I'll be around after this one" promised Bobo.

Olson, ranked third among the light heavy contenders, has a 87-13-2 record, including 40 knockouts. Persol is ranked eighth.

The bout will be telecast nationally by ABC-TV. Starting time is 9 p.m., EST.

Scoring will be by the rounds system.

Dupas Wins With Decision But Still Far From Crown

By BEN THOMAS
Asociated Press Sports Writer

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—"It's been a long way back," Ralph Dupas commented as he walked into Municipal Auditorium Thursday night prior to his bout with Canada's Peter Schmidt.

Dupas scored a unanimous 10-round decision but the comeback trial may be ever further away for the one-time junior middleweight champion.

The 28-year-old ring veteran, knocked out in three of his last four scraps, appeared ineffective against his older, but less experienced foe, holder of the mythical Canadian welterweight title.

But Dupas said he had no intention of quitting.

"I intend to continue fighting and go against better men," he said afterwards. "Schmidt was a good test for me. When I was in close I kept throwing punches. I just failed to counter during the bout."

Dupas, a New Orleans native noted for his fancy footwork, started to show his dancing only in the closing rounds.

"In the early rounds, I was scared to move from side to side," he said, because I was not sure I could go the 10 rounds . . . I admit that this was not a good fight to look at, but I was scared. I guess it just takes time for everything."

Schmidt, 30, said he was ready to fight Dupas again in 30 days.

Dupas' manager, Angelo Dundee of Miami, sat in the back of the Auditorium for the bout. At ringside was Whitey Esneault, Dupas' former manager who trained him for this bout.

Esneault and Dundee had words over Dupas' contract and Esneault said he'd walk out if Dundee came into Ralph's corner. Dupas said he asked Dundee to stay in the background.

Dundee was non-commital about future plans for Dupas.

Referee Lucien Joubert and judge Maxie Docusen both scored it 7-2-1 while judge Peter Giarruso had it 6-2-2.

Wimbledon Bans Netter From Writing Job

LONDON (AP)—Mike Sangster, British Davis Cup player, was warned Thursday that he would be barred from Wimbledon Lawn Tennis Championship, next week if he writes for a Sunday newspaper during the tournament.

Sangster's first article is due to appear Sunday.

"I have not discussed it with the newspapers yet," Sangster said. "So I don't know what the position is. The rule has been pointed out to me and obviously if the article appears then I am breaking the rules."

Minnesota Sews Up Third NCAA Baseball Crown

By JIM VAN VALKENBURG
Associated Press Sports Writer

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—"Dewey Markus is the guy—put it in his hands and it's done," Coach Dick Siebert said after his Minnesota club beat Missouri 5-1 for its third straight election-year NCAA baseball crown.

"I've never singled out one man before," Siebert said of his fiery junior second baseman. "But Dewey picked us up after that brutal Texas trip. After that I didn't know if we belonged in the Big Ten. He chewed out every man who booted a grounder in practice.

"He made those head-first slides, and soon every guy on the club was sliding head-first—even into home," Siebert said. "You know, the kid is an inspiration—he's only 5-foot-7 and he had all those big guys following him around like lap dogs."

Joe Pollack, big junior right-hander, also drew high praise from Siebert for his four-hitter. He had a strong fast ball and threw a baffling change-up with two of three different speeds.

"Joe was in command," Siebert said. "This was probably his best game."

Shortly after the game, Markus signed with the Chicago Cubs for a nominal $2,500 bonus, with Siebert's blessing.

The opposing dugouts before the game presented a sharp contrast. Missouri was obviously tightly wound and determined. The Minnesota players were laughing and relaxed. Markus walked up and down telling jokes. Siebert hung by his hands from the dugout roof.

"I'm no watchdog," he said. "I don't lock my men in their rooms. I put trust in 'em and very few have ever failed me in 18 years at Minnesota. This is my way and I'm sticking with it because it wins.

"I played under Connie Mack with the A's," said the Gopher coach, a lifetime .290 hitter in the majors. "He treated us like men."

Minnesota won the NCAA in both its previous trips to the finals, 1956 and 1960. This was Missouri's fourth time in the finals and third runner-up finish, all under Coach Hi Simmons.

Missouri beat Minnesota 4-1 Monday, then the Gophers drew a bye into the finals and Missouri nipped Maine's giant killers, 2-1.

"I told the boys they had a fine season," Simmons said.

Missouri went into the tourney as the No. 1 team in the final poll of the nation's college coaches. The Tigers' pitching staff had an earned run average of 0.67 in the college world series. Missouri finished 27-5, Minnesota 31-12.

The final crowd of 10,562 brought a record series attendance to 61,871, up 9,114 despite five rainouts.

Nelson Tops Local Golfers In Jaycee Qualifying Meet

Nelson fired a 36-hole round of 78-75—153 to take top honors in the local meet.

Greg Johnson was second, thanks to a spectacular finish on the 18th hole of the second round. Johnson chipped his approach shot to within two feet of the cup and then dropped his putt to nose out Kip Reid by a single stroke. Johnson ended up with 156.

Reid shot a 157 for the two-day tournament, and in fourth place was Don Astley with a 161 for the 36 holes. All four of the top finishers will advance on to the state tournament at Greeley's Country Club and Highland Hills Country Club, July 20-23.

In the girls division, Kathy Danskin won with rounds of 105 and 115 for a 220 total.

Four winners from the state tournament will represent Colorado at Minneapolis-St. Paul, Aug. 3-8, in the national tournament.

Four other Americans played in first round matches today. Walter W. Dierks, Tenafly, N.J., played J. A. Flaherty of Britain; Tom Draper, Birmingham, Mich., met A. C. Basson, South Africa; William P. Castleman of White Sulphur Springs, W.Va., took on P. Vissar of South Africa, and Floyd Burdette of Royal Oak, Mich., met A. Prunet of France.

Drag Racing Program Set for CDR Sunday

One of the most famous teams in Drag Racing History will make an appearance this Sunday at Continental Divide Raceways during the Drag Racing program.

The team known in Drag Racing circles as Weekly, Rivero, Fox and Holding, will bring with them their 354 cubic inch Chrysler Dragster which is the fastest car with this type of engine on record.

Weekly, Rivero, Fox and Holding combined talents to build their Dragster which has made appearances all over the United States. The car currently holds the National Hot Rod Association Record for Class A Fuel Dragsters at 192.32 miles per hour, and formerly was listed as the number one Dragster in the entire nation.

This record - holding Dragster has been seen by many Denverites, as it was featured in the movie "Bikini Beach Party" starring Frankie Avalon and Annette Funicello, which was recently shown in the Denver Area.

The Weekly, Rivero, Fox and Holding slingshot is said to develop over 1,050 horse power on a run. It is powered by a Chrysler 354 cubic inch hemispherical engine with the chassis of the car designed by Tommy Ivo. The car has been timed taking the quarter mile in less than eight seconds.

The four owners of the car each normally perform certain duties which keep their car in top shape and in condition all the time. Norm Weekly drives the Dragster, while Jim Fox does most of the engine work including the fine tuning. Dennis Holding works as business agent for the group setting up tours and keeping books and Ronny Rivero, the fourth man, is presently employed by the U.S. Government as a private in the Army.

Officials at C.D.R. have announced that Weekly, Rivero, Fox and Holding will run against Nick Colbert in three races. The first match will be at 1:00 p.m.

Colbert and his Denver based Chrysler Dragster defeated the famous Tommy Ivo at C.D.R. several weeks ago and the match race this Sunday should be a good indication of just what Colbert's Dragster can do against top competition. The Colorado land speed record of 182 miles once again will be in jeopardy of being broken.

Time trials will start at 8:00 a.m. this Sunday with racing starting at 1:00 p.m., the price of admission will be $1.50, with children under 8 admitted free. Continental Divide Raceways is located one mile south of Castle Rock on U.S. Highway 85-87.

Rainiers Win Two In PCL

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Seattle Rainiers, sitting out rainstorms all week, opened up shop Thursday night and came out on the healthy top of three Pacific Coast League heartbreakers suffered by Hawaii and Tacoma.

Most of the trouble was suffered by Hawaii as Seattle defeated the Islanders in a doubleheader, 1-0 and 3-2. Tacoma's trouble came as the visiting San Diego Padres grabbed off a 10-inning 3-2 victory—all of which put Seattle one-half game ahead of Tacoma in their battle for third place in the league's Western Division.

In other games, Indianapolis stopped Denver's three - game winning streak 6-1 and Oklahoma City defeated Dallas 8-4.

Rain washed out Arkansas at Salt Lake and Spokane at Portland.

Hawaii's first heartbreak came in the fourth inning of the seven-inning opener when Seattle bunched two hits on top of a walk ad Russ Gibson hit a sacrifice fly to send Barry Shetrone home.

Hawaii hurler Bill Kelso was the loser, despite allowing only three hits.

Hawaii gave Seattle a scare when they scored two runs in the final stanza of the seven-inning nightcap, but Rainier reliever Merlin Nippert stopped the rally by retiring Islander Jack Hiatt on a fly ball.

San Diego walloped Tacoma pitchers Dick Estelle and Bill Hands for 10 hits in its 3-2 victory. Hands was the loser.

By MATT KRAMER

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — The United States found a nervous but ebullient candidate for the Olympic 10,000 meter race Thursday.

Little Danny Murphy of San Jose cracked the national collegiate meet record of 31:15.3 by coming from behind in the last mile to run away from the field in 29:37.8 in the NCAA meet.

Murphy, who is so nervous his stomach would not let him compete much of this season, had considered the 5,000-meter race his best event until Thursday.

He will be in the 5,000 meter race today and his performance may determine whether San Jose can carry off the team title.

Murphy showed the confidence he picked up Thursday.

"It's the 10,000 meters for me," he chortled. He admitted that his stomach bothered him through two-thirds of the race.

By that time he had found out that he could outlast Vic Zwolak of Villanova, the defending champion. He was harassing Doug Brown, a stocky Montana sophomore, who had set the pace almost from the outset.

"I kept telling him to run faster," said Murphy. "And when he didn't, I felt I could take over."

With a little more than a half mile to go, the 5-8, 130-pound Murphy cut loose. He quickly opened up a lead over Brown. By the end it was 70 yards. Murphy said his stomach felt fine at the finish.

Brown and nine other runners also cracked the previous record, set by Selwyn Jones of Michigan State in 1956. Murphy's time was nearly 1½ minutes over the world mark and was :47.7 over the American record.

The day, interrupted by showers which left puddles on the track, also saw two meet records tied.

Finals are scheduled today only in the hammer throw, broad jump and 5,000 meters. The remaining finals come Saturday.

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — Summaries of opening day action Thursday in the three-day NCAA track and field meet. Field event qualifiers go into finals, running event qualifiers go into semifinals with finals only in 10,000 meter run.

Yankees Attempt to Revive Their Fans' Home Support

NEW YORK (AP) — Yankee Stadium used to be a picnic area every Sunday in the days of Joe DiMaggio. Hero sandwiches, salami, hot sausages, watermelon and maybe a little jug of vino. You came early and stayed late.

In recent years the swank Stadium Club and the dry, dry martini have covered the Yanks with a Madison Avenue glaze. The image of the pin-striped, coldly efficient Yankee has grown.

The Yankee management took steps last winter to alter that image. Yogi Berra, everybody's friend, was promoted to manager and efficient Ralph Houk moved upstairs to become general manager.

In an effort to restore some of the camaraderie of old, the Yanks have opened special picnic areas under the stands. They used them for the first time Thursday night before the twilight game with Boston. The concession crew loaded up with box lunches, pop for the kids and beer for the old man.

The twilight starting time, 5 p.m., EST, was designed to lure back some of the former city folk who have escaped to the surburbs and to Shea Stadium where the newly born Mets play.

The Yanks, as usual, had a saver. It also was Senior Citizens Night. Anybody over 60 was admitted free, if he paid the tax.

A 96-piece band from LaSalle-Peru, Ill., state champions of Illinois, entertained at pre-game ceremonies. A 65 voice male chorus from Phoenix, Ariz., also in two to appear at the World's Fair, sang the National Anthem.

People who find watching the Yanks like attending a stock holders meet of AT&T should have been there. The box lunch wasn't even the same.

Yanks—368,133 for 24 home dates.

Mets—637,405 for 23 home dates.

Bo Belinsky Asks Angels For Transfer to Hawaii

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Bo Belinsky, the Los Angeles Angels' celebrated southpaw, says he'd rather play in a minor key with Hawaii than try to make it big in the majors.

In short, says Belinsky, the pressures on a personality player make him yearn for the carefree days of his youth—like last year when the Angels sent him down to their Hawaii farm club.

"I went to general manager Fred Haney recently and asked him to send me back to Hawaii where I'd be happy," said Belinsky.

"I thought I was getting an ulcer. I didn't want to see or talk with anybody. I was living like a hermit."

Belinsky's attitude toward the little grass shack on the beach at Waikiki has changed greatly since the Angels notified him last May 25 that he was being demoted to the Pacific Coast League club.

He balked for a month before reporting, but all that seems to be water over the reef now.

"It just isn't worth it. I've learned, to sacrifice my youth and personal ways to be a major league ball player," Belinsky said.

"If the management doesn't like me being out at a party, let them get rid of me. I'm just sick and tired of catering to the ball club."

Belinsky was at the height of his career—partywise — when the Angels decided to let him swing to a hula beat for awhile.

His request to relinquish his present spot as No. 7 in the field of 11 Angel pitchers was received by the management with less than enthusiastic approval. It was vetoed.

In the first place, before he could go to Hawaii, he'd have to be passed on waivers by the other major league clubs.

"Haney was real nice about it," said Bo. "We had a good heart-to-heart talk. I have no grudge with Haney.

"I told him I didn't care at all about money—even if he were to give me a $20,000 raise. I just wanted to relax."

Belinsky, 27, said he was worried about what people said about him when he returned to the Angels for spring training.

"They said I wasn't concerned about baseball.

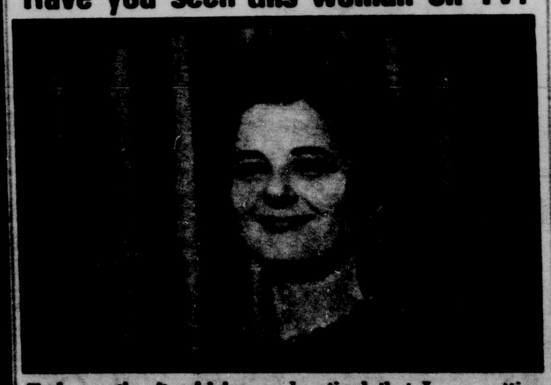
"Now, I just can't see any future in bearing down like that to prove a point. Of course, I'm concerned about baseball.

"I love the game and hope to stay in it as long as I can. But I'm simply going to be loose and relaxed about it.

"It's not that I'm not going to take the game seriously.

"But if I'm seen in a night spot, that's my business. No one else's.

Have you seen this woman on TV?



"I do mostly city driving, and noticed that I was getting two to three miles more per gallon with Keotane," reports Miss Louise Dodd. "I have yet to have the car fail to start for me." Car engines and drivers differ. That's one reason why Skelly cannot guarantee you the same results Miss Dodd noticed. But you can get the same additive — Keotane — in Skelly Keotane Gasoline. Try 3 tankfuls. See what Keotane can do for your car!

Cliff Rickey Gets Stiff Tennis Test

LONDON (AP)—Cliff Richey, 17-year-old American tennis hopeful, faced Australia's Roy Emerson today in the toughest match of his life—the semifinals of a strange, topsy-turvy tournament at London's Queen's Club.

Richey, U.S. junior champion from Dallas, Tex., has won through to the last four while more experienced players have been knocked out.

Thursday he defeated Osamu Ishiguro of Japan 6-4, 6-3 with a tremendous display of forehand driving.

This tournament always produces surprises, because top-ranking players use it primarily as practice for Wimbledon, which starts next Monday.

This year rain has caused the tournament to be switched indoors to wooden courts, accounting for more upsets.

"I came here to practice on grass," Fletcher commented after his defeat.

The wooden courts suited Richey. He hit the ball so hard his shots zipped off the fast surface before Ishiguro could set himself.

Richey so far has been the big success of the tournament. In previous rounds he defeated Roger Taylor, British Davis Cupper, and Francis Godbout of Canada.

It will be a major sensation if he stops Emerson today. The Aussie ace looked in fine form beating Edison Manderino of Brazil 6-2, 6-1.

Lejus plays Rafael Osuna of Mexico, who overcame John Newcombe of Australia 6-4, 6-4.

Margaret Smith, current Wimbledon queen, is in the semi-finals of the women's singles—but only after a long and hard struggle against Anna Dmitrieva, the Russian left-hander. Miss Dmitrieva led 4-0 at one stage of the second set but Miss Smith prevailed 6-4, 8-6.

Lesley Turner, Australia's No. 2, also had to fight grimly for a semifinals place. Tory Ann Fretz of Harrisburg, Pa., playing with her arm heavily bandaged because of a sprain, battled for 90 minutes before Miss Turner won 6-3, 5-7, 7-5.

Rojas Decisions Danny Kid

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Raul Rojas punched out a unanimous decision over veteran Danny Kid Thursday night in a bruising 10-round featherweight bout.

Rojas, of San Pedro, floored Kid in the sixth round and staggered him several times in the seventh.

The victory gave unbeaten Rojas his 20th straight win. Kid, from the Philippines, was No. 10 ranked featherweight.

Drag Racing Program Set for CDR Sunday

One of the most famous teams in Drag Racing History will make an appearance this Sunday at Continental Divide Raceways during the Drag Racing program.

The team known in Drag Racing circles as Weekly, Rivero, Fox and Holding, will bring with them their 354 cubic inch Chrysler Dragster which is the fastest car with this type of engine on record.

Weekly, Rivero, Fox and Holding combined talents to build their Dragster which has made appearances all over the United States. The car currently holds the National Hot Rod Association Record for Class A Fuel Dragsters at 192.32 miles per hour, and formerly was listed as the number one Dragster in the entire nation.

This record - holding Dragster has been seen by many Denverites, as it was featured in the movie "Bikini Beach Party" starring Frankie Avalon and Annette Funicello, which was recently shown in the Denver Area.

The Weekly, Rivero, Fox and Holding slingshot is said to develop over 1,050 horse power on a run. It is powered by a Chrysler 354 cubic inch hemispherical engine with the chassis of the car designed by Tommy Ivo. The car has been timed taking the quarter mile in less than eight seconds.

The four owners of the car each normally perform certain duties which keep their car in top shape and in condition all the time. Norm Weekly drives the Dragster, while Jim Fox does most of the engine work including the fine tuning. Dennis Holding works as business agent for the group setting up tours and keeping books and Ronny Rivero, the fourth man, is presently employed by the U.S. Government as a private in the Army.

Officials at C.D.R. have announced that Weekly, Rivero, Fox and Holding will run against Nick Colbert in three races. The first match will be at 1:00 p.m.

Colbert and his Denver based Chrysler Dragster defeated the famous Tommy Ivo at C.D.R. several weeks ago and the match race this Sunday should be a good indication of just what Colbert's Dragster can do against top competition. The Colorado land speed record of 182 miles once again will be in jeopardy of being broken.

Time trials will start at 8:00 a.m. this Sunday with racing starting at 1:00 p.m., the price of admission will be $1.50, with children under 8 admitted free. Continental Divide Raceways is located one mile south of Castle Rock on U.S. Highway 85-87.

Rainiers Win Two In PCL

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Seattle Rainiers, sitting out rainstorms all week, opened up shop Thursday night and came out on the healthy top of three Pacific Coast League heartbreakers suffered by Hawaii and Tacoma.

Most of the trouble was suffered by Hawaii as Seattle defeated the Islanders in a doubleheader, 1-0 and 3-2. Tacoma's trouble came as the visiting San Diego Padres grabbed off a 10-inning 3-2 victory—all of which put Seattle one-half game ahead of Tacoma in their battle for third place in the league's Western Division.

In other games, Indianapolis stopped Denver's three - game winning streak 6-1 and Oklahoma City defeated Dallas 8-4.

Rain washed out Arkansas at Salt Lake and Spokane at Portland.

Hawaii's first heartbreak came in the fourth inning of the seven-inning opener when Seattle bunched two hits on top of a walk ad Russ Gibson hit a sacrifice fly to send Barry Shetrone home.

Hawaii hurler Bill Kelso was the loser, despite allowing only three hits.

Hawaii gave Seattle a scare when they scored two runs in the final stanza of the seven-inning nightcap, but Rainier reliever Merlin Nippert stopped the rally by retiring Islander Jack Hiatt on a fly ball.

San Diego walloped Tacoma pitchers Dick Estelle and Bill Hands for 10 hits in its 3-2 victory. Hands was the loser.

By MATT KRAMER

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — The United States found a nervous but ebullient candidate for the Olympic 10,000 meter race Thursday.

Little Danny Murphy of San Jose cracked the national collegiate meet record of 31:15.3 by coming from behind in the last mile to run away from the field in 29:37.8 in the NCAA meet.

Murphy, who is so nervous his stomach would not let him compete much of this season, had considered the 5,000-meter race his best event until Thursday.

He will be in the 5,000 meter race today and his performance may determine whether San Jose can carry off the team title.

Murphy showed the confidence he picked up Thursday.

"It's the 10,000 meters for me," he chortled. He admitted that his stomach bothered him through two-thirds of the race.

By that time he had found out that he could outlast Vic Zwolak of Villanova, the defending champion. He was harassing Doug Brown, a stocky Montana sophomore, who had set the pace almost from the outset.

"I kept telling him to run faster," said Murphy. "And when he didn't, I felt I could take over."

With a little more than a half mile to go, the 5-8, 130-pound Murphy cut loose. He quickly opened up a lead over Brown. By the end it was 70 yards. Murphy said his stomach felt fine at the finish.

Brown and nine other runners also cracked the previous record, set by Selwyn Jones of Michigan State in 1956. Murphy's time was nearly 1½ minutes over the world mark and was :47.7 over the American record.

The day, interrupted by showers which left puddles on the track, also saw two meet records tied.

Finals are scheduled today only in the hammer throw, broad jump and 5,000 meters. The remaining finals come Saturday.

THE WINNER LOOKS BACK — Jan Underwood of Oregon State, his face and body speckled with mud from the wet track, turns to look at his competition as he won an 800-meter heat in Thursday's opening day of the NCAA track championship competition at Eugene, Ore. Yankees Attempt to Revive Their Fans' Home Support

NEW YORK (AP) — Yankee Stadium used to be a picnic area every Sunday in the days of Joe DiMaggio. Hero sandwiches, salami, hot sausages, watermelon and maybe a little jug of vino. You came early and stayed late.

In recent years the swank Stadium Club and the dry, dry martini have covered the Yanks with a Madison Avenue glaze. The image of the pin-striped, coldly efficient Yankee has grown.

The Yankee management took steps last winter to alter that image. Yogi Berra, everybody's friend, was promoted to manager and efficient Ralph Houk moved upstairs to become general manager.

In an effort to restore some of the camaraderie of old, the Yanks have opened special picnic areas under the stands. They used them for the first time Thursday night before the twilight game with Boston. The concession crew loaded up with box lunches, pop for the kids and beer for the old man.

The twilight starting time, 5 p.m., EST, was designed to lure back some of the former city folk who have escaped to the surburbs and to Shea Stadium where the newly born Mets play.

The Yanks, as usual, had a saver. It also was Senior Citizens Night. Anybody over 60 was admitted free, if he paid the tax.

A 96-piece band from LaSalle-Peru, Ill., state champions of Illinois, entertained at pre-game ceremonies. A 65 voice male chorus from Phoenix, Ariz., also in two to appear at the World's Fair, sang the National Anthem.

People who find watching the Yanks like attending a stock holders meet of AT&T should have been there. The box lunch wasn't even the same.

Yanks—368,133 for 24 home dates.

Mets—637,405 for 23 home dates.

Vanderbilt basketball coach Roy Skinner formerly coached the Paducah Junior College team in Kentucky.

Bo Belinsky Asks Angels For Transfer to Hawaii

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Bo Belinsky, the Los Angeles Angels' celebrated southpaw, says he'd rather play in a minor key with Hawaii than try to make it big in the majors.

In short, says Belinsky, the pressures on a personality player make him yearn for the carefree days of his youth—like last year when the Angels sent him down to their Hawaii farm club.

"I went to general manager Fred Haney recently and asked him to send me back to Hawaii where I'd be happy," said Belinsky.

"I thought I was getting an ulcer. I didn't want to see or talk with anybody. I was living like a hermit."

Belinsky's attitude toward the little grass shack on the beach at Waikiki has changed greatly since the Angels notified him last May 25 that he was being demoted to the Pacific Coast League club.

He balked for a month before reporting, but all that seems to be water over the reef now.

"It just isn't worth it. I've learned, to sacrifice my youth and personal ways to be a major league ball player," Belinsky said.

"If the management doesn't like me being out at a party, let them get rid of me. I'm just sick and tired of catering to the ball club."

Belinsky was at the height of his career—partywise — when the Angels decided to let him swing to a hula beat for awhile.

His request to relinquish his present spot as No. 7 in the field of 11 Angel pitchers was received by the management with less than enthusiastic approval. It was vetoed.

In the first place, before he could go to Hawaii, he'd have to be passed on waivers by the other major league clubs.

"Haney was real nice about it," said Bo. "We had a good heart-to-heart talk. I have no grudge with Haney.

"I told him I didn't care at all about money—even if he were to give me a $20,000 raise. I just wanted to relax."

Belinsky, 27, said he was worried about what people said about him when he returned to the Angels for spring training.

"They said I wasn't concerned about baseball.

"Now, I just can't see any future in bearing down like that to prove a point. Of course, I'm concerned about baseball.

"I love the game and hope to stay in it as long as I can. But I'm simply going to be loose and relaxed about it.

"It's not that I'm not going to take the game seriously.

"But if I'm seen in a night spot, that's my business. No one else's.

Cliff Rickey Gets Stiff Tennis Test

LONDON (AP)—Cliff Richey, 17-year-old American tennis hopeful, faced Australia's Roy Emerson today in the toughest match of his life—the semifinals of a strange, topsy-turvy tournament at London's Queen's Club.

Richey, U.S. junior champion from Dallas, Tex., has won through to the last four while more experienced players have been knocked out.

Thursday he defeated Osamu Ishiguro of Japan 6-4, 6-3 with a tremendous display of forehand driving.

This tournament always produces surprises, because top-ranking players use it primarily as practice for Wimbledon, which starts next Monday.

This year rain has caused the tournament to be switched indoors to wooden courts, accounting for more upsets.

"I came here to practice on grass," Fletcher commented after his defeat.

The wooden courts suited Richey. He hit the ball so hard his shots zipped off the fast surface before Ishiguro could set himself.

Richey so far has been the big success of the tournament. In previous rounds he defeated Roger Taylor, British Davis Cupper, and Francis Godbout of Canada.

It will be a major sensation if he stops Emerson today. The Aussie ace looked in fine form beating Edison Manderino of Brazil 6-2, 6-1.

Lejus plays Rafael Osuna of Mexico, who overcame John Newcombe of Australia 6-4, 6-4.

Margaret Smith, current Wimbledon queen, is in the semifinals of the women's singles—but only after a long and hard struggle against Anna Dmitrieva, the Russian left-hander. Miss Dmitrieva led 4-0 at one stage of the second set but Miss Smith prevailed 6-4, 8-6.

Lesley Turner, Australia's No. 2, also had to fight grimly for a semifinals place. Tory Ann Fretz of Harrisburg, Pa., playing with her arm heavily bandaged because of a sprain, battled for 90 minutes before Miss Turner won 6-3, 5-7, 7-5.

Rojas Decisions Danny Kid

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Raul Rojas punched out a unanimous decision over veteran Danny Kid Thursday night in a bruising 10-round featherweight bout.

Rojas, of San Pedro, floored Kid in the sixth round and staggered him several times in the seventh.

The victory gave unbeaten Rojas his 20th straight win. Kid, from the Philippines, was No. 10 ranked featherweight.

Acceptance Must Be Earned

The real tragedy, in the present state of racial tension, is that the Negro, who has often been put upon in his progress from forest to freedom, is being used as a pawn. No permanent gain can come to the Negro or to anyone else through the use of violence.

What the Negro wants, and is laboring to attain, is full acceptance. But by relying on politics and agitation, which seems such a simple and direct way to get anything you want, he is making himself far less acceptable than he was before. It is almost as though he were saying: "Take me to your bosom, or I will kill you."

This is a great tragedy and from it no lasting good can come.

Certainly it is true, Negroes have been made to feel an inferiority in many of the relationships which have occurred in this country since they were first brought here. But hard work, humility and sincerity were slowly but surely advancing their status. Impatiently, they hope to attain the highest possible goals immediately. And so, through rioting, beatings, killings and legislation, they hope to attain the acceptance they seek. The goal they have is not compatible with the methods adopted to reach it.

We were favorably impressed by an article written by Major Hughes Alonzo Robinson of Fort Valley, Georgia. Major Robinson is a retired army officer, an educator and an industrial executive. He is also black. His comments were carried in the Albany, Georgia, Herald.

"The Negroes have lost, due primarily to sit-in demonstrations, good will of the white citizen in every section of the country, and especially in the large metropolitan areas of the country.

"Many young Negroes have been encouraged by the racial elements who head up the organizations to demonstrate a hostile attitude toward many white people, even toward their employers. By reason of their attitude in this regard some 550,000 jobs have been given to others that usually are held by Negroes. . .

"The sit-in demonstrations are costing the Negroes approximately $1.5 billion annually at the present time. It is true the sit-in demonstrations won a few battles and the privileges of eating and sleeping in places denied them previously; however, privileges with no money to pay for them are worthless . . .

"Many of the leading politicians are under the erroneous impression that the professional agitators represent the majority of the Negroes in the United States. The contrary is true; they represent only about 5 per cent of the Negroes, and this 5 per cent, for the most part, are those with extreme views on racial matters, and usually left-wingers. . .

"The agitation about schools, hotels, motels and public accommodations is a waste of time. You cannot legislate the mind and heart of men. Individualism must not be permitted to be destroyed by agitators.

"During my entire period of existence, I have never associated myself with any group that agitates against some other racial group, and yet I find myself holding positions of importance in the federal government, in state government and in private interests for a long period of years. All employment and public accommodations are individual matters and should be determined on merit alone. Under this philosophy every individual, regardless of race, has equal opportunity to advance. Without initiative and without preparation, the individual meets with keen competition. . .

"The cordial relationship which existed between the races in many areas has been destroyed by the racial elements and extreme views to the left. Demonstrations are usually in the form of intimidation. The competent are to be told to make room for the incompetent. They seek to replace the private enterprise system with a public enterprise system. This is anti-United States.

"As the incentive of individualism is gradually destroyed, free enterprise will be abolished. This is not the road to happiness, but to the same disasters that befell autocracies in the past centuries. Free men of intelligence have risen before to quell the intolerance and tyrannies of minorities as well as majorities. They will, in time, do so again."

We commend Major Robinson for his farseeing observations. Acceptance is a matter of merit, a slow process of earning one's own way. Forced acceptance, although it might be compelled under arms, will harden hearts and breed a reaction that will set back the cause of the Negro by centuries.

Retaliation

Massive retaliation, in which whole cities or nations are laid waste because of the evil done in that area by a leading politician, is a return to barbarism.

The Folly of Anti-Trust

The government men who inhabit the anti-trust department have an odd way of attaining what they proclaim as their objective. For some time, there has been a general decline in the total number of newspapers in the United States.

It's no secret that the reason for this decline is the increasing costs of putting out a newspaper. And one of the major increases in these costs has been in the wage area, where union demands have been, in many cases, backed up by government pressure or support.

But the particular facet of this problem which comes to the attention of the anti-trust boys is that fewer and fewer cities have competing newspapers.

So, in an effort to increase the total number of newspapers, the anti-trust department moved against Scripps Howard in Cincinnati, owner of both morning and evening newspapers, the Post and Times-Star and the Enquirer. The Justice Department, which is carrying the load for the Anti-Trust people, hopes to stop Scripps Howard from publishing the Enquirer, which is the morning and Sunday paper for the big Ohio city.

Vaguely, in the minds of government officialdom, it would appear that if Scripps Howard could be restrained from publishing one of the newspapers, this would open the door and another publisher could get in as a genuine competitor. Scripps Howard says that the two papers, despite their single ownership, are scrapping all the time in a keen rivalry for circulation and ads; that they occupy two separate buildings and are entirely different in all respects, save ownership.

But government men have no idea what it takes to make a business work. They always imagine they do. But actually, they can't quite figure it out.

Now, it is possible that if Scripps Howard were forced to sell the Enquirer and a real pro, who knew how to operate bought it, the new publisher would move in and a contest ensue at least as vigorous as the present competition. But in this event no particular gain would have been obtained. Probably about the same number of men would be employed as at present; about the same circulation and the same number of ads would accumulate in the new owner's hands; and after this mighty display of force and violence, Cincinnati would be right where it is now, with two competing newspapers.

But with this difference: Neither newspaper would really dare to compete fully. Because if full competitive devices were used, the charge of anti-trust could be brought and it would be argued that each of the new owners was trying to put the other out of business. And that would be equivalent to seeking a monopoly.

So, in point of fact, there would be no improvement whatever. Anti-trust would simply have demonstrated its ability to knock heads together and the net result, after a forced sale, accompanying losses and so on, would be zero.

But if it happened that the Cincinnati paper was scooped up by someone who didn't really know the score, it is quite possible that Scripps Howard would give it such a bad time that it would run the newcomer into the ground. And then where would Scripps Howard be? If it operates two newspapers, it is in violation of anti-trust. If it competes successfully with a second newspaper, it is in violation of anti-trust. If there is only one newspaper in Cincinnati, it is a monopoly and hence in violation of anti-trust.

How do you get around that sort of thing? The answer is that you can't. The anti-trust laws in this country are about as ridiculous as laws have ever been. And it appears quite likely that the grand total of this new move by the Justice Department to increase the number of competing dailies, will result in fewer competing dailies.

Ten years ago there were 106 cities in the U.S. with competing dailies. Now, there are 66. Assuming that a newspaper group or chain is nothing more than a condition in which a single firm owns or controls two or more dailies in two or more cities, then we have now some 130 such groups in the nation in charge of 654 dailies. At the close of World War II there were 76 groups owning 368 dailies.

But even in cities where only one newspaper is published, advertisers and readers are far removed from a monopoly position. Out of town newspapers, radio stations, television stations, monthly and weekly periodicals, billboards, hand - bills and even motion picture theaters vie for business from the same customers, offer news and articles of information and seek ads.

The anti-trust intrusion might help to introduce some monopolies. At the moment, the only intelligent course would be for the government to drop its action in Ohio.

They'll Do It Every Time — By Jimmy Hatlo

The Local Scene

A Beaver Named John L. Lewis

By RUFUS L. PORTER

A friend of mine named Jim Heard was an electrical wizard. He put in most of his life working for General Electric. When he retired he came to Colorado and found himself a remote retreat "far from the maddening crowd's ignoble strife" in the old ghost town of Winfield on Clear Creek, about midway between Buena Vista and Leadville.

Winfield is 14 miles from Highway 24. Turn left at the Ortero dam and drive eight miles up the gulch and you come to the quaint, picturesque and altogether delightful ghost town of Vicksburg, which has a few occupied homes during the summer months. One of them belongs to Mr. and Mrs. Art Wallace of Victor. She was born there and he was born six miles farther upstream at Winfield.

These two towns are relics of the silver boom that hit the area in the 1880s. It was through the Wallaces that I met Jim Heard. He had built himself a brand new cabin in the old town of Winfield. The cabin consisted of one large room. Outside, it resembled any other mountain cabin. But inside the resemblance ceased. His house was heated, lighted and he cooked by electricity. It was many miles to the nearest electric line.

The first thing Jim did after finishing his cabin was to start building a concrete dam across the creek to give him water power to create his juice. He had the dam about half completed when he was given some unexpected help. He awoke one morning to a loud splashing sound and rushed out to find that the great granddaddy of all beavers had felled a large tree across the stream from the opposite side. The tree had landed precisely against the upstream side of Jim's half finished dam and the water pressure held it firmly there.

"Well," said Jim, "I was never one to turn down expert help when it was offered, so I just started cutting timber and throwing it into the water and John L. Lewis put it in place and in less than a week the dam was finished. Look, isn't it a beauty?"

And it was. At least 25 feet long, the concrete reached barely halfway across. From there on it was the usual logs, sticks, brush and mud of which all beaver dams are built. But they hold, man, they hold. Heard reckoned that his was the only dam ever built by man and beaver working together. They often go to great pains to tear each other's dams out.

John L. Lewis was always at home and seemingly happy in his new surroundings. No other beaver ever shared his new home. I saw him many times.

"But why did you name him John L. Lewis?" I asked Jim.

"Look at his eyebrows," he said.

I can see right now that I am not going to be able to tell this tale in one column. But I will make it as brief as possible.

There was one old timer living in Winfield when Jim moved up there and they used to visit back and forth. Jim rigged up a couple of walkie-talkies so they could converse when the weather was real bad. Even living only two or three blocks apart, it gets bad enough in those latitudes, and altitudes, to be unsafe to go out at night.

The old timer, I forget his name (I could get it from Art Wallace, but it is not relevant to my story), was one of the first settlers in Winfield. When the boom busted there, he had roamed the wide world and hit most of its hardrock mining camps. But he came back to Winfield when age caught up with him and stayed there for many years, until his death at 92 or 93.

Jim called him one wintry night and got no response. So, he put on his snow shoes, took his electric torch and went to investigate, in the teeth of a howling blizzard. He found the old boy dead.

Another old timer had moved in to spend the winter in Vicksburg, so Heard gave him the other half of his walkie-talkie set and they had each other's company, even though the snow was 10 or 12 feet deep.

But the other guy only stayed one winter. After that, Jim and John L. Lewis spent about eight months of the year as the sole occupants of the entire valley. But John L. wasn't much in evidence during the winter months.

But, still, Jim didn't lack for friends. From the very start of his sojourn in the valley, he had been a ham radio operator, and he had friends around the world, many of them as remotely situated as himself. He spent hours talking to people who lived in foreign lands thousands of miles from his mountain retreat. And he was widely known among the Colorado "hams."

When he took sick (and this time he knew he needed medical help), he coolly called a friend who had never seen him, but who lives in Colorado Springs, and asked him to have help out at the highway as soon as possible.

It was in the dead of winter and the snow was 10 feet deep and Jim was a very sick man. But he donned his winter apparel, strapped on his snowshoes and trudged the 14 miles to the main road. He must have felt sad indeed to leave his cabin and his friend, John L. Lewis, knowing that he would never make it back.

Help arrived on Highway 24 about the same time Jim did and he was taken to a hospital, a rest home or something of the sort, in Grand Junction. That was in the late 40's. I think that I heard some years later that he had died there.

I remember one tale he told me about the beaver, and Art Wallace will vouch for this. One Halloween night John L. Lewis cut down a huge quaking aspen so that it fell directly across Jim's outhouse and caved in the roof. "He's a playful feller," said Jim.

Up to this point this tale is strictly true. From here on many are apt to believe that it is pure phantasy. Maybe I'd better not tell it. But I think I will sometime when I am stuck for something to write about.

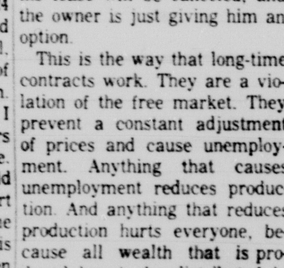
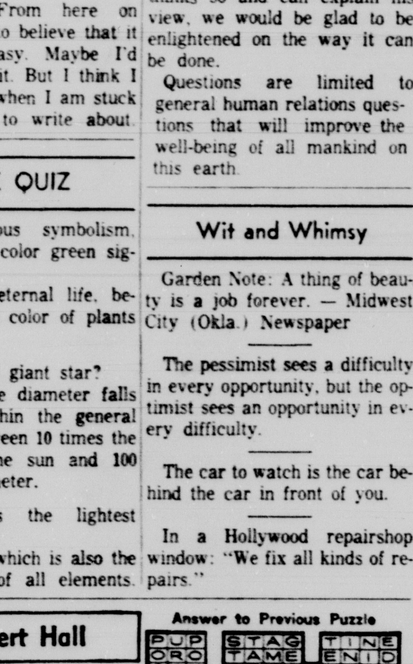
Answer to Previous Puzzle





Question Box

(We invite questions on economics and the proper functions of government which will not injure anyone.)

Question No. 522: "Is a three or four-year union contract with an agreement to raise wages each year to the best interest of the workers and the consumers?"

Answer: We do not believe that it is to the best interest of the workers or the consumers for the simple reason that no one knows what the prices are going to be one, two, three, or four years ahead. Wages and prices should be able to be constantly adjusted up or down so that all the people who want to work can get a job, and thus production can go up.

It is freezing of wages and prices, made possible by government giving the unions the advantage over the employer, and protective tariffs, that interfere with prices and wages being adjusted so as to furnish full employment.

For this reason it is not to the advantage of either the workers or the consumers to have a long-time union contract. Undoubtedly, the only reason the employers concede to this is to try to prevent constant strikes and stoppage of work. But when you make a concession that is not in harmony with moral principles or economics, it is bound to be harmful. Since no one knows how much inflation or how business will be a year from now, let alone two, three, or four years, it is harmful to tie the hands of either party.

Of course, it is really not a contract because if prices and wages go up faster than the scale, the workers will leave and take other jobs. It ties the hands of the employer but does not tie the hands of the unions.

It is like making a contract with an irresponsible renter giving him a long term lease which is binding on the owner but not binding on the renter if he has nothing to collect. If he does not pay the rent, then his lease will be canceled, and the owner is just giving him an option.

This is the way that long-time contracts work. They are a violation of the free market. They prevent a constant adjustment of prices and cause unemployment. Anything that causes unemployment reduces production. And anything that reduces production hurts everyone, because all wealth that is produced has to be distributed in order to benefit its owner.

We cannot think of any way that wealth can be hoarded and benefit its owner. If anyone thinks so and can explain his view, we would be glad to be enlightened on the way it can be done.

Questions are limited to general human relations questions that will improve the well-being of all mankind on this earth.

RISE AND FALL

To the Editor:

Just a cursory study of history would indicate that all of creation is a matter of life and death. We are told that man reaches the peak of maturity at about twenty years of age and from then on elements of decay start to take their toll. It appears that this is true of nations. They rise and they fall. Youngsters in the prime of life are not aware of the processes of death working in their lives and as a consequence they give little or no thought to eventualities.

Historians tell us that leaders in the Roman empire did not realize that the processes of decay in that great nation had set in fifty years before it became obvious.

America appears to be at the peak of her greatness now and it would be interesting to know how many of her political leaders are aware of the active processes of death at work today and when the passing of the American dream of individual freedom will become a fact. Medical science does prolong human life and political science might prolong the life of a nation. It seems that in neither case can the death processes be stopped.

Since the life of nations cannot be assured or insured it would seem that parents ought to be vitally concerned with the character of their sons and daughters. The character of the individuals who survive the fall of a nation will determine whether it will be a life of servitude, the like of which millions of persons have lived under for centuries, or a rebirth of freedom similar to the American dream of 1776.

According to the Bible, which the founders of America declared vital to the new nation, the Creator determined that the home was to be the seat of all character building.

BAND CONCERTS

To the Editor:

With "the good old summertime" rollin' around again I'm wondering whether you would be kind enough to reprint the following for the benefit of those "old timers" who missed it last year.

No doubt there are thousands of Li'l Londoners still around who remember those delightful band concert nights up in Acacia Park back in the 20's.

In those days we were all music-happy. Why? Because there were no television sets with their various musical programs. Radio was in its infancy and not too satisfactory. Records were not highly developed enough and they were poor substitutes for "live" music.

Furthermore, in that era, there were few autos so one could thoroughly enjoy the concerts without the squeaking and sputtering of cars going around the block, like bees buzzing around one's head, thereby distracting one and distorting the music, as happens today.

On concert nights, by 7:30 p.m., one could see people converging on that pleasant, popular square, many with seat cushions under arms. Everyone was in a gala mood — talking, laughing. And over the crowd and excitement one was sure to hear the nasal-voiced chant of "Baby cries, papa buys — baby cries, papa buys," as Asa Forbes, with a huge cluster of multi-colored balloons held high, wove through the throng and paced the diagonal walks, dispensing his wares.

Soon, the benches were filled, and people, "park deep," were standing as far back as Platte Avenue, all anticipating the wonderful treat to come. And then, if there were a south wind, one might hear the courthouse clock strike eight, then a click on the music rack, as Lou Fink, director, gracefully raised his baton and signaled the band into one of those great Sousa marches that always puts a thrill into the heart of every American.

For an encore, perhaps they played "Carolina Moon." And, if you happened to look upward through the park trees, as like as not, you'd see the big, silvery moon smiling down and playing peek-a-boo, as though to say, "That song's about me." We must remember that, back in those days, the moon was still a happy, dashing young fellow, and not the wrinkled, worried old vet that he is today, ever wondering how he will dodge the next moonshot sent up by those ungrateful people down there in return for all the happiness and romance he has given them over the years.

Then followed an overture. Maybe "Atlantis," "Poet and Peasant," or "Norma." Or, a charming Strauss waltz which wafted us away across the Atlantic and into the gay 90's to some brilliantly uniformed embassy ball. Next, rhythmic fox-trots, tangos, descriptive numbers.

One descriptive number that I always liked was called "Custer's Last Battle." (Perhaps this was because "yours truly" used to play the piano mood music for the silent movies way back when a nickelodeon was really a NICKELodeon). This number took us out to a little fort on the far frontier in 1876 where we saw the gallant Seventh Cavalry go galloping away, with flags and guidons flying, as the band played their very own lilting, sparkling tune, "Garry Owen."

Later, as the cavalry approached the Indian country, we heard the ominous sound of distant war drums. Suddenly, the tempo quickened and the band played louder and louder, crescendoing into a mixture of fight music, Indian and bugle call themes, depicting the hell and the chaos of battle. The battle raged on and on, then the music softened, the fighting ceased. Not a single "boy in blue" was left alive on the field. As a requiem, the band ended by playing "Nearer My God to Thee." Well could we ponder the terrific sacrifices made by those brave soldiers in order to open up this beautiful western country where we, that very evening, sat enjoying the "concert in the park."

To shake us out of the sad mood, Lou Fink then called for a real swingy number like "Ain't We Got Fun," and soon again everyone was humming, swaying and beating time. Next, perhaps, the ever popular singer, Bernard Vessey (whose golden voice was just recently stilled by death), would sing "Colorado, Colorado, I Love You," voicing, as it were, his gratitude for the privilege of living in the West — in this great state, made possible by the sacrifices of such soldiers as those mentioned above in the Custer episode. (Mr. Vessey had just moved here from a Central state, I believe.) Another song that he sang beautifully was "Marcheta."

Finally, the band swung into the closing number, after which the happy crowd dispersed in every direction, with many a one stopping at a fountain-on-the-corner in the vicinity to enjoy a tall, delicious ice cream soda, bubbling over at the top, symbolizing the musical gems that capped our day with good things to overflowing.

What happy memories those concerts in Acacia Park bring back!

A SPLENDID VIEW

To the Editor:

Suspense mounts as the day of the ball draws near. We are told that the stately Antlers will feel the first blows toward the end of September. We do not especially mourn the Antlers and its fate. This would be foolish.

But we dread what might take its place. Perhaps it is better for us to be suspended in ignorance and its equated bliss than to have extra time to agonize in the knowledge of what is to come.

We do not mourn the passing of the Antlers. We will desperately mourn the view of Pikes Peak from Pikes Peak Avenue if it is taken from us. Knowing men advise that what will take the place of the Antlers Hotel will have to be big. So much money is already involved that the simple truths of business tells us that what replaces the Antlers must generate several millions of dollars of business a year. Our hope is that the lack of aesthetic vision and the height of the project building will not be commensurate with the scope of the project.

We know from Paris and Versailles, Naples and Caserta, Stockholm and San Francisco, Rome and Vienna, that for hundreds of years intelligent humanists have been concerned with enhancing a view. The classic notion, both in city planning and in landscape architecture, is to look down a long view — a vista — and finally to have your view terminated by something of immense delight — a gazebo, a piece of sculpture, a fountain, a piece of architecture, or most wonderfully, a mountain. We have in Colorado Springs a world-famous view. From anywhere on East Pikes Peak Avenue, the view of Pikes Peak is splendid. General Palmer planned it that way. The builders of the Antlers had the good sense and good taste to create a building which would frame the mountain.

If the citizens of this area and the countless thousands of tourists who come here annually are deprived of the magnificent view of the mountain, a grave injustice, indeed, a crime against the people, will have been committed. If the building which is to replace the Antlers is to erase the view of Pikes Peak or impair it, it will be a monument to the lack of vision and taste which caused it to be built.

We urge those in whose hands this project rests (is it quite fair to the residents of Colorado Springs to keep so much about it secret?) to consider strongly the proposition that the building or buildings which are to replace the Antlers Hotel should do no less for the view of Pikes Peak from the East than does the Antlers.

NOT AN ECHO:

To the Editor:

It's a wonder we have as good a government as we have. I say this because I just got through reading that eye-opening book, "A Choice, Not An Echo" by Phyllis Schlafly (Pere Marquette Press, 75 cents).

The author is the president of the Illinois Federation of Republican Women. To be sure the book is on politics. And as the title suggests, she endorses Barry Goldwater. But what she says about Goldwater wouldn't fill two pages. The gist of her writing is about today's issues, and what fascinated me most is her looking back to see how rotten politics can get: how, for instance, we got saddled with such candidates as Wendell Willkie, Governor Dewey, and yes — General Eisenhower — instead of Taft. She has plenty to say about kingmakers, a small bunch of men on the eastern sea coast. She names a number of them and tells how they foisted some of these candidates on us. And we thought the public and the electorate demanded them. Goldwater, who has to depend on grassroot support, could be stopped in one of these smoke-filled rooms without much effort. But perhaps the kingmakers have no stomach, nor the will, to oppose "Lyndon," their darling.

This book is must reading if you're interested in politics, especially if you are a bit conservative. And most people are more or less conservative — that is, their mind is against a squandering of unnecessary funds on other people. Of course, they may and usually do vote for the dinner bucket and not for principles.

Ever striving for the Pikes Peak Region to be an even better place to live

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government. Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is self-control, no more, no less. It must be consistent with the truths expressed in such great moral guides as the Golden Rule and the Declaration of Independence.

Acceptance Must Be Earned

The real tragedy, in the present state of racial tension, is that the Negro, who has often been put upon in his progress from forest to freedom, is being used as a pawn. No permanent gain can come to the Negro or to anyone else through the use of violence.

What the Negro wants, and is laboring to attain, is full acceptance. But by relying on politics and agitation, which seems such a simple and direct way to get anything you want, he is making himself far less acceptable than he was before. It is almost as though he were saying: "Take me to your bosom, or I will kill you."

This is a great tragedy and from it no lasting good can come.

Certainly it is true, Negroes have been made to feel an inferiority in many of the relationships which have occurred in this country since they were first brought here. But hard work, humility and sincerity were slowly but surely advancing their status. Impatiently, they hope to attain the highest possible goals immediately. And so, through rioting, beatings, killings and legislation, they hope to attain the acceptance they seek. The goal they have is not compatible with the methods adopted to reach it.

We were favorably impressed by an article written by Major Hughes Alonzo Robinson of Fort Valley, Georgia. Major Robinson is a retired army officer, an educator and an industrial executive. He is also black. His comments were carried in the Albany, Georgia, Herald.

"The Negroes have lost, due primarily to sit-in demonstrations, good will of the white citizen in every section of the country, and especially in the large metropolitan areas of the country.

"Many young Negroes have been encouraged by the racial elements who head up the organizations to demonstrate a hostile attitude toward many white people, even toward their employers. By reason of their attitude in this regard some 550,000 jobs have been given to others that usually are held by Negroes. . .

"The sit-in demonstrations are costing the Negroes approximately $1.5 billion annually at the present time. It is true the sit-in demonstrations won a few battles and the privileges of eating and sleeping in places denied them previously; however, privileges with no money to pay for them are worthless . . .

"Many of the leading politicians are under the erroneous impression that the professional agitators represent the majority of the Negroes in the United States. The contrary is true; they represent only about 5 per cent of the Negroes, and this 5 per cent, for the most part, are those with extreme views on racial matters, and usually left-wingers. . .

"The agitation about schools, hotels, motels and public accommodations is a waste of time. You cannot legislate the mind and heart of men. Individualism must not be permitted to be destroyed by agitators.

"During my entire period of existence, I have never associated myself with any group that agitates against some other racial group, and yet I find myself holding positions of importance in the federal government, in state government and in private interests for a long period of years. All employment and public accommodations are individual matters and should be determined on merit alone. Under this philosophy every individual, regardless of race, has equal opportunity to advance. Without initiative and without preparation, the individual meets with keen competition. . .

"The cordial relationship which existed between the races in many areas has been destroyed by the racial elements and extreme views to the left. Demonstrations are usually in the form of intimidation. The competent are to be told to make room for the incompetent. They seek to replace the private enterprise system with a public enterprise system. This is anti-United States.

"As the incentive of individualism is gradually destroyed, free enterprise will be abolished. This is not the road to happiness, but to the same disasters that befell autocracies in the past centuries. Free men of intelligence have risen before to quell the intolerance and tyrannies of minorities as well as majorities. They will, in time, do so again."

We commend Major Robinson for his farseeing observations. Acceptance is a matter of merit, a slow process of earning one's own way. Forced acceptance, although it might be compelled under arms, will harden hearts and breed a reaction that will set back the cause of the Negro by centuries.

Retaliation

Massive retaliation, in which whole cities or nations are laid waste because of the evil done in that area by a leading politician, is a return to barbarism.

By RUFUS L. PORTER

A friend of mine named Jim Heard was an electrical wizard. He put in most of his life working for General Electric. When he retired he came to Colorado and found himself a remote retreat "far from the maddening crowd's ignoble strife" in the old ghost town of Winfield on Clear Creek, about midway between Buena Vista and Leadville.

Winfield is 14 miles from Highway 24. Turn left at the Ortero dam and drive eight miles up the gulch and you come to the quaint, picturesque and altogether delightful ghost town of Vicksburg, which has a few occupied homes during the summer months. One of them belongs to Mr. and Mrs. Art Wallace of Victor. She was born there and he was born six miles farther upstream at Winfield.

These two towns are relics of the silver boom that hit the area in the 1880s. It was through the Wallaces that I met Jim Heard. He had built himself a brand new cabin in the old town of Winfield. The cabin consisted of one large room. Outside, it resembled any other mountain cabin. But inside the resemblance ceased. His house was heated, lighted and he cooked by electricity. It was many miles to the nearest electric line.

The first thing Jim did after finishing his cabin was to start building a concrete dam across the creek to give him water power to create his juice. He had the dam about half completed when he was given some unexpected help. He awoke one morning to a loud splashing sound and rushed out to find that the great granddaddy of all beavers had felled a large tree across the stream from the opposite side. The tree had landed precisely against the upstream side of Jim's half finished dam and the water pressure held it firmly there.

"Well," said Jim, "I was never one to turn down expert help when it was offered, so I just started cutting timber and throwing it into the water and John L. Lewis put it in place and in less than a week the dam was finished. Look, isn't it a beauty?"

And it was. At least 25 feet long, the concrete reached barely halfway across. From there on it was the usual logs, sticks, brush and mud of which all beaver dams are built. But they hold, man, they hold. Heard reckoned that his was the only dam ever built by man and beaver working together. They often go to great pains to tear each other's dams out.

John L. Lewis was always at home and seemingly happy in his new surroundings. No other beaver ever shared his new home. I saw him many times.

"But why did you name him John L. Lewis?" I asked Jim.

"Look at his eyebrows," he said.

I can see right now that I am not going to be able to tell this tale in one column. But I will make it as brief as possible.

There was one old timer living in Winfield when Jim moved up there and they used to visit back and forth. Jim rigged up a couple of walkie-talkies so they could converse when the weather was real bad. Even living only two or three blocks apart, it gets bad enough in those latitudes, and altitudes, to be unsafe to go out at night.

The old timer, I forget his name (I could get it from Art Wallace, but it is not relevant to my story), was one of the first settlers in Winfield. When the boom busted there, he had roamed the wide world and hit most of its hardrock mining camps. But he came back to Winfield when age caught up with him and stayed there for many years, until his death at 92 or 93.

Jim called him one wintry night and got no response. So, he put on his snow shoes, took his electric torch and went to investigate, in the teeth of a howling blizzard. He found the old boy dead.

Another old timer had moved in to spend the winter in Vicksburg, so Heard gave him the other half of his walkie-talkie set and they had each other's company, even though the snow was 10 or 12 feet deep.

But the other guy only stayed one winter. After that, Jim and John L. Lewis spent about eight months of the year as the sole occupants of the entire valley. But John L. wasn't much in evidence during the winter months.

But, still, Jim didn't lack for friends. From the very start of his sojourn in the valley, he had been a ham radio operator, and he had friends around the world, many of them as remotely situated as himself. He spent hours talking to people who lived in foreign lands thousands of miles from his mountain retreat. And he was widely known among the Colorado "hams."

When he took sick (and this time he knew he needed medical help), he coolly called a friend who had never seen him, but who lives in Colorado Springs, and asked him to have help out at the highway as soon as possible.

It was in the dead of winter and the snow was 10 feet deep and Jim was a very sick man. But he donned his winter apparel, strapped on his snowshoes and trudged the 14 miles to the main road. He must have felt sad indeed to leave his cabin and his friend, John L. Lewis, knowing that he would never make it back.

Help arrived on Highway 24 about the same time Jim did and he was taken to a hospital, a rest home or something of the sort, in Grand Junction. That was in the late 40's. I think that I heard some years later that he had died there.

I remember one tale he told me about the beaver, and Art Wallace will vouch for this. One Halloween night John L. Lewis cut down a huge quaking aspen so that it fell directly across Jim's outhouse and caved in the roof. "He's a playful feller," said Jim.

Up to this point this tale is strictly true. From here on many are apt to believe that it is pure phantasy. Maybe I'd better not tell it. But I think I will sometime when I am stuck for something to write about.

The Folly of Anti-Trust

The government men who inhabit the anti-trust department have an odd way of attaining what they proclaim as their objective. For some time, there has been a general decline in the total number of newspapers in the United States.

It's no secret that the reason for this decline is the increasing costs of putting out a newspaper. And one of the major increases in these costs has been in the wage area, where union demands have been, in many cases, backed up by government pressure or support.

But the particular facet of this problem which comes to the attention of the anti-trust boys is that fewer and fewer cities have competing newspapers.

So, in an effort to increase the total number of newspapers, the anti-trust department moved against Scripps Howard in Cincinnati, owner of both morning and evening newspapers, the Post and Times-Star and the Enquirer. The Justice Department, which is carrying the load for the Anti-Trust people, hopes to stop Scripps Howard from publishing the Enquirer, which is the morning and Sunday paper for the big Ohio city.

Vaguely, in the minds of government officialdom, it would appear that if Scripps Howard could be restrained from publishing one of the newspapers, this would open the door and another publisher could get in as a genuine competitor. Scripps Howard says that the two papers, despite their single ownership, are scrapping all the time in a keen rivalry for circulation and ads; that they occupy two separate buildings and are entirely different in all respects, save ownership.

But government men have no idea what it takes to make a business work. They always imagine they do. But actually, they can't quite figure it out.

Now, it is possible that if Scripps Howard were forced to sell the Enquirer and a real pro, who knew how to operate bought it, the new publisher would move in and a contest ensue at least as vigorous as the present competition. But in this event no particular gain would have been obtained. Probably about the same number of men would be employed as at present; about the same circulation and the same number of ads would accumulate in the new owner's hands; and after this mighty display of force and violence, Cincinnati would be right where it is now, with two competing newspapers.

But with this difference: Neither newspaper would really dare to compete fully. Because if full competitive devices were used, the charge of anti-trust could be brought and it would be argued that each of the new owners was trying to put the other out of business. And that would be equivalent to seeking a monopoly.

So, in point of fact, there would be no improvement whatever. Anti-trust would simply have demonstrated its ability to knock heads together and the net result, after a forced sale, accompanying losses and so on, would be zero.

But if it happened that the Cincinnati paper was scooped up by someone who didn't really know the score, it is quite possible that Scripps Howard would give it such a bad time that it would run the newcomer into the ground. And then where would Scripps Howard be? If it operates two newspapers, it is in violation of anti-trust. If it competes successfully with a second newspaper, it is in violation of anti-trust. If there is only one newspaper in Cincinnati, it is a monopoly and hence in violation of anti-trust.

How do you get around that sort of thing? The answer is that you can't. The anti-trust laws in this country are about as ridiculous as laws have ever been. And it appears quite likely that the grand total of this new move by the Justice Department to increase the number of competing dailies, will result in fewer competing dailies.

Ten years ago there were 106 cities in the U.S. with competing dailies. Now, there are 66. Assuming that a newspaper group or chain is nothing more than a condition in which a single firm owns or controls two or more dailies in two or more cities, then we have now some 130 such groups in the nation in charge of 654 dailies. At the close of World War II there were 76 groups owning 368 dailies.

But even in cities where only one newspaper is published, advertisers and readers are far removed from a monopoly position. Out of town newspapers, radio stations, television stations, monthly and weekly periodicals, billboards, hand - bills and even motion picture theaters vie for business from the same customers, offer news and articles of information and seek ads.

The anti-trust intrusion might help to introduce some monopolies. At the moment, the only intelligent course would be for the government to drop its action in Ohio.

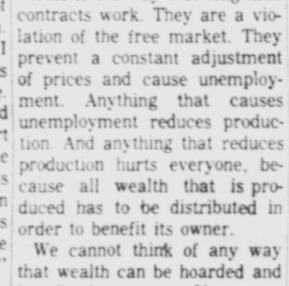
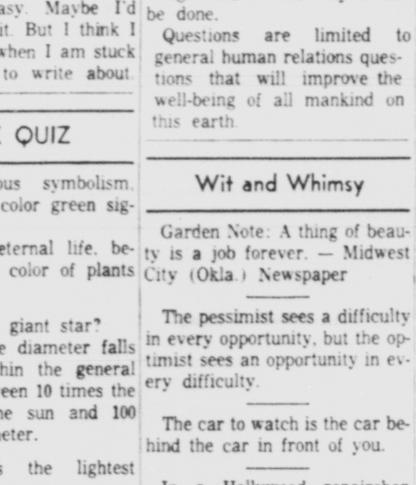
Answer to Previous Puzzle





Question Box

(We invite questions on economics and the proper functions of government which will not injure anyone.)

Question No. 522: "Is a three or four-year union contract with an agreement to raise wages each year to the best interest of the workers and the consumers?"

Answer: We do not believe that it is to the best interest of the workers or the consumers for the simple reason that no one knows what the prices are going to be one, two, three, or four years ahead. Wages and prices should be able to be constantly adjusted up or down so that all the people who want to work can get a job, and thus production can go up.

It is freezing of wages and prices, made possible by government giving the unions the advantage over the employer, and protective tariffs, that interfere with prices and wages being adjusted so as to furnish full employment.

For this reason it is not to the advantage of either the workers or the consumers to have a long-time union contract. Undoubtedly, the only reason the employers concede to this is to try to prevent constant strikes and stoppage of work. But when you make a concession that is not in harmony with moral principles or economics, it is bound to be harmful. Since no one knows how much inflation or how business will be a year from now, let alone two, three, or four years, it is harmful to tie the hands of either party.

Of course, it is really not a contract because if prices and wages go up faster than the scale, the workers will leave and take other jobs. It ties the hands of the employer but does not tie the hands of the unions.

It is like making a contract with an irresponsible renter giving him a long term lease which is binding on the owner but not binding on the renter if he has nothing to collect. If he does not pay the rent, then his lease will be canceled, and the owner is just giving him an option.

This is the way that long-time contracts work. They are a violation of the free market. They prevent a constant adjustment of prices and cause unemployment. Anything that causes unemployment reduces production. And anything that reduces production hurts everyone, because all wealth that is produced has to be distributed in order to benefit its owner.

We cannot think of any way that wealth can be hoarded and benefit its owner. If anyone thinks so and can explain his view, we would be glad to be enlightened on the way it can be done.

Questions are limited to general human relations questions that will improve the well-being of all mankind on this earth.

RISE AND FALL

To the Editor:

Just a cursory study of history would indicate that all of creation is a matter of life and death. We are told that man reaches the peak of maturity at about twenty years of age and from then on elements of decay start to take their toll. It appears that this is true of nations. They rise and they fall. Youngsters in the prime of life are not aware of the processes of death working in their lives and as a consequence they give little or no thought to eventualities.

Historians tell us that leaders in the Roman empire did not realize that the processes of decay in that great nation had set in fifty years before it became obvious.

America appears to be at the peak of her greatness now and it would be interesting to know how many of her political leaders are aware of the active processes of death at work today and when the passing of the American dream of individual freedom will become a fact. Medical science does prolong human life and political science might prolong the life of a nation. It seems that in neither case can the death processes be stopped.

Since the life of nations cannot be assured or insured it would seem that parents ought to be vitally concerned with the character of their sons and daughters. The character of the individuals who survive the fall of a nation will determine whether it will be a life of servitude, the like of which millions of persons have lived under for centuries, or a rebirth of freedom similar to the American dream of 1776.

According to the Bible, which the founders of America declared vital to the new nation, the Creator determined that the home was to be the seat of all character building.

BAND CONCERTS

To the Editor:

With "the good old summertime" rollin' around again I'm wondering whether you would be kind enough to reprint the following for the benefit of those "old timers" who missed it last year.

No doubt there are thousands of Li'l Londoners still around who remember those delightful band concert nights up in Acacia Park back in the 20's.

In those days we were all music-happy. Why? Because there were no television sets with their various musical programs. Radio was in its infancy and not too satisfactory. Records were not highly developed enough and they were poor substitutes for "live" music.

Furthermore, in that era, there were few autos so one could thoroughly enjoy the concerts without the squeaking and sputtering of cars going around the block, like bees buzzing around one's head, thereby distracting one and distorting the music, as happens today.

On concert nights, by 7:30 p.m., one could see people converging on that pleasant, popular square, many with seat cushions under arms. Everyone was in a gala mood — talking, laughing. And over the crowd and excitement one was sure to hear the nasal-voiced chant of "Baby cries, papa buys — baby cries, papa buys," as Asa Forbes, with a huge cluster of multi-colored balloons held high, wove through the throng and paced the diagonal walks, dispensing his wares.

Soon, the benches were filled, and people, "park deep," were standing as far back as Platte Avenue, all anticipating the wonderful treat to come. And then, if there were a south wind, one might hear the courthouse clock strike eight, then a click on the music rack, as Lou Fink, director, gracefully raised his baton and signaled the band into one of those great Sousa marches that always puts a thrill into the heart of every American.

For an encore, perhaps they played "Carolina Moon." And, if you happened to look upward through the park trees, as like as not, you'd see the big, silvery moon smiling down and playing peek-a-boo, as though to say, "That song's about me." We must remember that, back in those days, the moon was still a happy, dashing young fellow, and not the wrinkled, worried old vet that he is today, ever wondering how he will dodge the next moonshot sent up by those ungrateful people down there in return for all the happiness and romance he has given them over the years.

Then followed an overture. Maybe "Atlantis," "Poet and Peasant," or "Norma." Or, a charming Strauss waltz which wafted us away across the Atlantic and into the gay 90's to some brilliantly uniformed embassy ball. Next, rhythmic fox-trots, tangos, descriptive numbers.

One descriptive number that I always liked was called "Custer's Last Battle." (Perhaps this was because "yours truly" used to play the piano mood music for the silent movies way back when a nickelodeon was really a NICKELodeon). This number took us out to a little fort on the far frontier in 1876 where we saw the gallant Seventh Cavalry go galloping away, with flags and guidons flying, as the band played their very own lilting, sparkling tune, "Garry Owen."

Later, as the cavalry approached the Indian country, we heard the ominous sound of distant war drums. Suddenly, the tempo quickened and the band played louder and louder, crescendoing into a mixture of fight music, Indian and bugle call themes, depicting the hell and the chaos of battle. The battle raged on and on, then the music softened, the fighting ceased. Not a single "boy in blue" was left alive on the field. As a requiem, the band ended by playing "Nearer My God to Thee." Well could we ponder the terrific sacrifices made by those brave soldiers in order to open up this beautiful western country where we, that very evening, sat enjoying the "concert in the park."

To shake us out of the sad mood, Lou Fink then called for a real swingy number like "Ain't We Got Fun," and soon again everyone was humming, swaying and beating time. Next, perhaps, the ever popular singer, Bernard Vessey (whose golden voice was just recently stilled by death), would sing "Colorado, Colorado, I Love You," voicing, as it were, his gratitude for the privilege of living in the West — in this great state, made possible by the sacrifices of such soldiers as those mentioned above in the Custer episode. (Mr. Vessey had just moved here from a Central state, I believe.) Another song that he sang beautifully was "Marcheta."

Finally, the band swung into the closing number, after which the happy crowd dispersed in every direction, with many a one stopping at a fountain-on-the-corner in the vicinity to enjoy a tall, delicious ice cream soda, bubbling over at the top, symbolizing the musical gems that capped our day with good things to overflowing.

What happy memories those concerts in Acacia Park bring back!

A SPLENDID VIEW

To the Editor:

Suspense mounts as the day of the ball draws near. We are told that the stately Antlers will feel the first blows toward the end of September. We do not especially mourn the Antlers and its fate. This would be foolish.

But we dread what might take its place. Perhaps it is better for us to be suspended in ignorance and its equated bliss than to have extra time to agonize in the knowledge of what is to come.

We do not mourn the passing of the Antlers. We will desperately mourn the view of Pikes Peak from Pikes Peak Avenue if it is taken from us. Knowing men advise that what will take the place of the Antlers Hotel will have to be big. So much money is already involved that the simple truths of business tells us that what replaces the Antlers must generate several millions of dollars of business a year. Our hope is that the lack of aesthetic vision and the height of the project building will not be commensurate with the scope of the project.

We know from Paris and Versailles, Naples and Caserta, Stockholm and San Francisco, Rome and Vienna, that for hundreds of years intelligent humanists have been concerned with enhancing a view. The classic notion, both in city planning and in landscape architecture, is to look down a long view — a vista — and finally to have your view terminated by something of immense delight — a gazebo, a piece of sculpture, a fountain, a piece of architecture, or most wonderfully, a mountain. We have in Colorado Springs a world-famous view. From anywhere on East Pikes Peak Avenue, the view of Pikes Peak is splendid. General Palmer planned it that way. The builders of the Antlers had the good sense and good taste to create a building which would frame the mountain.

If the citizens of this area and the countless thousands of tourists who come here annually are deprived of the magnificent view of the mountain, a grave injustice, indeed, a crime against the people, will have been committed. If the building which is to replace the Antlers is to erase the view of Pikes Peak or impair it, it will be a monument to the lack of vision and taste which caused it to be built.

We urge those in whose hands this project rests (is it quite fair to the residents of Colorado Springs to keep so much about it secret?) to consider strongly the proposition that the building or buildings which are to replace the Antlers Hotel should do no less for the view of Pikes Peak from the East than does the Antlers.

NOT AN ECHO:

To the Editor:

It's a wonder we have as good a government as we have. I say this because I just got through reading that eye-opening book, "A Choice, Not An Echo" by Phyllis Schlafly (Pere Marquette Press, 75 cents). The author is the president of the Illinois Federation of Republican Women. To be sure the book is on politics. And as the title suggests, she endorses Barry Goldwater. But what she says about Goldwater wouldn't fill two pages. The gist of her writing is about today's issues, and what fascinated me most is her looking back to see how rotten politics can get: how, for instance, we got saddled with such candidates as Wendell Willkie, Governor Dewey, and yes — General Eisenhower — instead of Taft. She has plenty to say about kingmakers, a small bunch of men on the eastern sea coast. She names a number of them and tells how they foisted some of these candidates on us.

And we thought the public and the electorate demanded them. Goldwater, who has to depend on grassroot support, could be stopped in one of these smoke-filled rooms without much effort. But perhaps the kingmakers have no stomach, nor the will, to oppose "Lyndon," their darling.

This book is must reading if you're interested in politics, especially if you are a bit conservative. And most people are more or less conservative — that is, their mind is against a squandering of unnecessary funds on other people. Of course, they may and usually do vote for the dinner bucket and not for principles.

FISH WAS HUNGRY

EUREKA, Kan. (AP) — Bill Lewis of Eureka caught a catfish that must have thought he'd found the grandaddy of all worms.

The fish had swallowed a 30-inch long water moccasin and still was hungry enough to take Lewis' bait and get itself caught.

Priest Who Tried to Get To Pope to Go on Vacation

LOS ANGELES (AP) —The young priest who tried to get the Pope to remove his cardinal is going on a retreat, a vacation, and to a new parish, says a chancery spokesman.

"So far as we are concerned, the case is resolved," the spokesman said.

The Rev. William H. DuBay, had written the Pope accusing the Los Angeles archbishop, James Francis Cardinal McIntyre of "gross malfeasance in office" for failing to speak out on racial matters.

Father DuBay was reportedly summoned to the chancery of the Los Angeles archdiocese Thursday—for the second time since he made his letter public at a June 11 news conference.

Since the original announcement, Father DuBay has said he could make no further statement on the matter.

After today's appearance, unofficial spokesmen for the priest said apparently he would drop his drive.

One source said that Father DuBay was asked to "protest his loyalty" to Cardinal McIntyre Thursday—which would have the effect of preventing him from complaining further against the cardinal.

At his news conference earlier this month Father DuBay said: "Having been disciplined several times for speaking on the issue, I was threatened a year ago with suspension of priestly duties if I continued to preach that integration is a moral issue.

"In private Cardinal McIntyre stated that there are many valid reasons for segregation, and declared that, 'After all, white parents have a right to protect their daughters.'"

The cardinal himself has made no comment on the matter. He is also on a retreat. The chancery has declined to mention the matter.

Thursday, The Tidings, the 127,000-weekly circulation paper which is the official voice of the archdiocese, denied the young priest's accusations in a lengthy editorial.

Thursday night Msgr. Benpriest's accusations in a lengthy editorial.

Thursday night Msgr. Benjamin G. Hawkes, chancellor of the archdiocese, told newsmen: "Father DuBay has gone on retreat and after that will go on vacation. As far as we are concerned, the case is closed."

Newsmen were informed Father DuBay would go on retreat Monday at St. John's Major Seminary at Camarillo, Calif., and then go on three week's vacation. After that he will become a parish priest at some undisclosed location.

He was an assistant to the pastor at St. Albert the Great Catholic Church in Compton, Calif., in a predominantly Negro area, when he made his letter public.

Grave of Chief Big Bow Cannot Be Found

HOBART, Okla. (AP)—Kiowa Indian Chief Big Bow has proved to be as elusive in death as he was when he was alive.

Reburial ceremonies set for next Saturday have been postponed indefinitely because the remains, thought to have been buried on a farm near this southeastern Oklahoma town, cannot be located.

Big Bow, who died at the turn of the century at 68, was once known as the "terror of the frontier." He surrendered to military authorities in 1874 and later served as an Army scout. He was to have been reburied at Ft. Sill, Okla.

Florence C of C Approves Noel Decoration Buy

The Florence Chamber of Commerce board of directors, meeting Wednesday night at the chamber's office building, gave tentative approval to the purchase of new Christmas street decorations in the amount of about $1,700.

The board, after reviewing numerous displays offered by a representative of the Holiday Decorations company, agreed to poll the general membership in the chamber's newsletter regarding the plan. Essentially, the board plans to decorate the business blocks between Santa Fe and Petroleum on Main street as a starter.

The new decorations are of the across - street type and include two huge garlands of aluminum foil with a huge gold star in the center of a circle of lights plus two large red bells hanging at the streetside ends.

The proposed addition to the Christmas lighting displays in downtown Florence would supplement the large tree and bell pole displays as well as the strings of lights used across the streets.

In other business, the board gave its wholehearted support to the St. Joseph hospital fund-raising campaign and proposed new construction project, and also agreed to send delegates to the formal ground breaking ceremonies at the new women's prison site.

The board further endorsed the proposed constitutional amendment being sought by the Colorado Council to get a one-cent sales tax hike on the state books, thereby taking some of the pressure off state property taxpayers.

FISH WAS HUNGRY

EUREKA, Kan. (AP) — Bill Lewis of Eureka caught a catfish that must have thought he'd found the grandaddy of all worms.

The fish had swallowed a 30-inch long water moccasin and still was hungry enough to take Lewis' bait and get itself caught.

Priest Who Tried to Get To Pope to Go on Vacation

LOS ANGELES (AP) —The young priest who tried to get the Pope to remove his cardinal is going on a retreat, a vacation, and to a new parish, says a chancery spokesman.

"So far as we are concerned, the case is resolved," the spokesman said.

The Rev. William H. DuBay, had written the Pope accusing the Los Angeles archbishop, James Francis Cardinal McIntyre of "gross malfeasance in office" for failing to speak out on racial matters.

Father DuBay was reportedly summoned to the chancery of the Los Angeles archdiocese Thursday—for the second time since he made his letter public at a June 11 news conference.

Since the original announcement, Father DuBay has said he could make no further statement on the matter.

After today's appearance, unofficial spokesmen for the priest said apparently he would drop his drive.

One source said that Father DuBay was asked to "protest his loyalty" to Cardinal McIntyre Thursday—which would have the effect of preventing him from complaining further against the cardinal.

At his news conference earlier this month Father DuBay said: "Having been disciplined several times for speaking on the issue, I was threatened a year ago with suspension of priestly duties if I continued to preach that integration is a moral issue.

"In private Cardinal McIntyre stated that there are many valid reasons for segregation, and declared that, 'After all, white parents have a right to protect their daughters.'"

The cardinal himself has made no comment on the matter. He is also on a retreat. The chancery has declined to mention the matter.

Thursday, The Tidings, the 127,000-weekly circulation paper which is the official voice of the archdiocese, denied the young priest's accusations in a lengthy editorial.

Thursday night Msgr. Benpriest's accusations in a lengthy editorial.

Thursday night Msgr. Benjamin G. Hawkes, chancellor of the archdiocese, told newsmen: "Father DuBay has gone on retreat and after that will go on vacation. As far as we are concerned, the case is closed."

Newsmen were informed Father DuBay would go on retreat Monday at St. John's Major Seminary at Camarillo, Calif., and then go on three week's vacation. After that he will become a parish priest at some undisclosed location.

He was an assistant to the pastor at St. Albert the Great Catholic Church in Compton, Calif., in a predominantly Negro area, when he made his letter public.

Grave of Chief Big Bow Cannot Be Found

HOBART, Okla. (AP)—Kiowa Indian Chief Big Bow has proved to be as elusive in death as he was when he was alive.

Reburial ceremonies set for next Saturday have been postponed indefinitely because the remains, thought to have been buried on a farm near this southeastern Oklahoma town, cannot be located.

Big Bow, who died at the turn of the century at 68, was once known as the "terror of the frontier." He surrendered to military authorities in 1874 and later served as an Army scout. He was to have been reburied at Ft. Sill, Okla.

The Florence Chamber of Commerce board of directors, meeting Wednesday night at the chamber's office building, gave tentative approval to the purchase of new Christmas street decorations in the amount of about $1,700.

The board, after reviewing numerous displays offered by a representative of the Holiday Decorations company, agreed to poll the general membership in the chamber's newsletter regarding the plan. Essentially, the board plans to decorate the business blocks between Santa Fe and Petroleum on Main street as a starter.

The new decorations are of the across - street type and include two huge garlands of aluminum foil with a huge gold star in the center of a circle of lights plus two large red bells hanging at the streetside ends.

The proposed addition to the Christmas lighting displays in downtown Florence would supplement the large tree and bell pole displays as well as the strings of lights used across the streets.

In other business, the board gave its wholehearted support to the St. Joseph hospital fund-raising campaign and proposed new construction project, and also agreed to send delegates to the formal ground breaking ceremonies at the new women's prison site.

The board further endorsed the proposed constitutional amendment being sought by the Colorado Council to get a one-cent sales tax hike on the state books, thereby taking some of the pressure off state property taxpayers.

Special Session Not Needed, Governor Told

DENVER (UPI) — Former Democratic State Rep. Andy Lucas of Adams County, who filed the suit that resulted in Colorado's new system of legislative reapportionment being struck down, today urged Gov. John Love not to call a special session of the Legislature hastily.

Love has been considering calling a special session to find a new way to distribute seats in the Legislature.

Lucas asked Love to give a three-judge federal court time to determine the right direction for Colorado to go.

The U.S. Supreme Court, which declared the system unconstitutional Monday, referred the case back to the lower court and directed it to rule on what steps Colorado should take to find a new system.

"These sessions are expensive and Colorado cannot afford one at this time and the Republican controlled Legislature cannot, in a short special session, come up with a compromise plan," Lucas said.

"Let the Denver U.S. District Court determine the right direction to go . . ." he said.

Nine-Day Exhibit to Be Held in Northglen Area

Twenty home svalued at more than half a million dollars will go on display Saturday when Colorado Springs' 1964 Parade of Homes opens.

Fourteen houses, each different, will be opened for inspection in Northglen Heights Subdivision and six, each different, in Northglen Park Subdivision. Both areas are in northeast Colorado Springs.

Among homes on exhibit in Northglen Heights will be a duplicate of the Formica house at the New York World's Fair.

Pointing up the quality of homes in this country over those in the U.S.S.R. will be a typical Russian house constructed in Northglen Park from a Russian language magazine's plans. Registeration at the Russian House, which will be removed when the Parade of Homes ends June 28, will qualify Parade of Homes visitors for the $350 grand prize and $150 worth of appliances to be given away.

Registration will also qualify persons for an expense-paid trip to the World's Fair for two, plus spending money, and will enter names of those who register in nationwide competition for a $25,00 home and other prizes to be awarded by individual companies or national manufacturers.

Houses in the Parade of Homes will be open from 1 to 9 p.m. daily and Sunday. Ticket sales will close at 8 p.m. each day.

All of the homes in Northglen Heights are furnished and landscaped; those in Northglen Park are furnished.

A ribbon cutting ceremony at 1 p.m. Saturday will mark the start of the Parade of Homes.

Participating in this year's Parade of Homes are 18 builders. Thirteen companies have put up the 14 homes valued at $479,00 in Northglen Heights, and five have erected homes valued at $111,000 in Northglen Park.

Northglen Park builders are American Builders Inc., Davis-Becker Construction Co., El Paso Homes Inc., Gendron Homes and Scandaliato Building Co.

A book containing drawings and descriptions of each home in the parade will be given to each person buying an admission ticket during the nine-day showing, and all persons attending will be asked to vote for the best - designed home, the home that gives the most for the money and the most livable home.

There are free parking areas adjacent to each parade site, and soft drinks will be available.

Northglen Heights is reached by driving east on Constitution Avenue to Northglen Street and then north on Northglen. Northglen Park is reached by driving north on Circle Drive to Palmer Park Boulevard, east on Palmer Park Boulevard to Murray Boulevard and then north on Murray Boulevard to Sawyer Way.

Home Builders' Research Gets Practical Application

Time was when a house was built brick by brick, stick by stick, and by a man with a handful of nails in his pocket . . . and maybe one or two nails held in his teeth.

But home building, like many other things, has changed vastly in recent years. It has taken enormous strides. It has become more efficient. It has adopted industrial engineering methods. "Wonder" tools are used.

For example, a new machine cuts 60 pieces of lumber in one minute. It was demonstrated at the recent annual convention of the National Association of Home Builders, along with new power - nailing devices and many other innovations which make today's home a better built home.

Members of the NAHB went to school at the convention for courses on new methods of construction, given at the "College of Building Knowledge." The techniques they saw demonstrated largely involved component construction — use of large parts which are factory-made rather than put together on the construction site.

The one and one - half story truss used in the 1963 Experimental House of the NAHB came in for discussion and review. Builders learned how the new truss added only 26 per cent to the roof area but doubled the floor space. This was of particular interest to them because of the desire of home buyers for more space, especially storage space.

Home builders also saw plastic folding closet doors that are completely factory finished and, when delivered to the construction site, can be put in place with only eight screws. This cuts labor costs, one of the big problems in the industry's battle to hold the line on house costs.

Also featured in the studies were new metal channels to fit between partition studs and outside wall studs, so drywall sheets fit into them. The construction goes a long way to prevent corner cracking that has long troubled this type of construction. The new channels greatly strengthen the walls themselves.

More than 50 educational programs were held at the Convention, which stressed the increasing professional nature of the organized home building industry.

Home Ownership Provides More Than Place to Live

By WILLIAM BLACKFIELD
President,
National Association of Home Builders

A new home is a consumer's best buy. The house itself is an excellent product — the best made house in the world.

Today's home buyer gets more house for his money. He gets more bathrooms, more bedrooms, more storage space and more conveniences. His home is better designed. It is built for better living.

But in buying a home, the consumer gets more than a place in which to live, tine though it is. He gets greater financial stability and security. More people started on the road to financial independence through owning their own home than in any other way.

Mortgage payments on a home are stable. Rents may rise, but payments remain the same. The home buyer can plan intelligently for the family's needs for years ahead, instead of on a month - to - month basis. With every payment, the home buyer increases his equity in his investment.

How big a house a consumer buys depends, naturally, on his income and his needs. But government studies reveal that new homes over the last 10 years or so have tended to offer more in floor space.

In 1950, the average new home with an FHA - insured mortgage had 894 square feet of floor space. By 1962, this floor space had increased to 1,162 square feet. This was an increase of 268 square feet — more than enough for, say, an extra room 18 x 14 feet.

The median house constructed by members of the Builders' Economic Council of the National Association of Home Builders has 1,206 square feet of floor space.

House costs, of course, have risen along with everything else in the last 10 to 15 years, though less than most items. The major factor in the increase has been the sharp rise in the cost of land. Builders have absorbed a good portion of this higher land cost through economies resulting from more efficient construction.

Studies disclose that a 1961 FHA house identical in size with one built in 1952 would cost an additional $471 — not counting the land costs. But the price of land for that house jumped by $1,367 in that decade.

There is little prospect that land costs will decline. The nation's population is growing at the rate of three million a year. In another six years, we will be a country of 215 million. By 1980, the population is expected to be 260 million.

Almost all the future growth of the United States will take place in the urban areas. Within a few years, about 85 per cent of the population will be living in urban or metropolitan centers.

To provide homes for this rapidly growing population, we will both have to build further and further out in the suburbs, and make economical use of land in and close to the city. And we will need new approaches to building a community, to preserve open green areas and prevent land waste.

Considering the land situation, it is no wonder that the same answer is often given to the question, "When is the best time to buy a home?" That answer: "Last year — five years ago — 10 years ago — Now."

President Johnson recently spoke of his desire to see every American have a home. This ideal is not too far from total achievement. Today, more than six out of every 10 families own their own homes. Only 20 years ago, the ideal was far from attainment. In 1940, only four out of every 10 families were home owners.

A tremendous economic revolution has taken place in the United States in the last two decades. It has thrust forward a large, well - to - do middle class. One of the healthy aspects of the mounting family income is that the larger purse has been used for better living. Wise investments have been the rule.

Some economists estimate that with the continued steady climb in family income almost all families will be able to own their own homes by 1970.

How to Get Into Hot Water Without Trying

Stepping into a steaming bath is comforting. But when you buy an 'economy' model, undersize water heater and it goes to pieces, you end up in another kind of hot water.

Every homeowner should consider five factors before buying a water heater, says the Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Information Bureau.

First, consider capacity. The underside water heater, pushed beyond capacity, wears out rapidly. Inside surfaces corrode because they are over-exposed to dissolved oxygen. To determine the proper capacity water heater for your home, consider the number of bathrooms, water-using appliances, and people. Then consult a reliable plumbing contractor. He will be able to calculate the proper water heater to fill your needs.

Next, consider using two water heaters. It is sometimes advisable to install one water heater to serve bathrooms at one end of a house and another to serve the kitchen-utility-laundry room on the other end.

For safety's sake, make sure the heater you purchase has temperature and pressure relief valves. These valves automatically reduce both pressure and temperature to keep them from exceeding safe limits.

Care of the water heater is a must. For example, draining a few quarts of water from the tank periodically removes heat-retarding sediment. This will help the heater work better, last longer. Remember, too, that the flame should be whitish blue. Any other color indicates the need for adjustment. A noisy flame also needs adjustment. And soot in the burner compartment indicates low efficiency and the need for professional help.

California alone produces about 43 per cent of the world supply of lemons.

To determine the proper capacity water heater for your home, consider the number of bathrooms, water-using appliances, and people. Then consult a reliable plumbing contractor. He will be able to calculate the proper water heater to fill your needs.

Next, consider using two water heaters. It is sometimes advisable to install one water heater to serve bathrooms at one end of a house and another to serve the kitchen-utility-laundry room on the other end.

For safety's sake, make sure the heater you purchase has temperature and pressure relief valves. These valves automatically reduce both pressure and temperature to keep them from exceeding safe limits.

Care of the water heater is a must. For example, draining a few quarts of water from the tank periodically removes heat-retarding sediment. This will help the heater work better, last longer. Remember, too, that the flame should be whitish blue. Any other color indicates the need for adjustment. A noisy flame also needs adjustment. And soot in the burner compartment indicates low efficiency and the need for professional help.

California alone produces about 43 per cent of the world supply of lemons.

Sound Control Of Homes Finds Favor With Buyers

The newest development in home building is sound conditioning. Most new homes this year have some form of sound proofing. It may be in the construction, in the ceilings, the windows, the doors, the walls or floors. How much sound conditioning is used depends on the price bracket of the home, for the new feature adds to the construction cost.

Public response to noise control has been immediate and hearty, for most families want a quiet home.

Fox and Jacobs Construction Co. of Dallas, Tex., was a pioneer in sound control. It built a research house in 1962 to see if it would be technically feasible to sound condition a residential structure and to determine the cost and the public interest. It has since built sound conditioned homes.

E. L. Krodel, research director for the firm, cited this letter from a home buyer as an example of the public response:

"The total effect of your sound conditioning efforts is excellent. We are highly pleased. The floor plan is most efficient in insulating the master bedroom from the rest of the house. We have three small children and would probably be headed for a mental institution if it weren't for the sound conditioning."

Fox and Jacobs, a member of the National Association of Home Builders, recently sent a questionnaire to its "quiet house" buyers to determine their reaction to sound conditioning after an occupancy of three to four months.

"The results of this questionnaire were gratifying in that the majority of the people felt that this was a much needed feature in today's homes," Krodel reported.

He was among the speakers at a special program on sound control at the recent convention-exposition of the NAHB in Chicago.

The FHA recently gave a boost to sound - proofing by drawing up noise control standards for apartment houses with federally insured mortgages.

Milton Smithman, technical director of the NAHB, said that sound conditioning is "one of the most important factors to consider in relation to occupancy ratios in apartments." He said NAHB members are looking for ways and means to sound condition both homes and apartments.

No one is promising that noise will be eliminated completely, nor can it be. But it can be cut down by use of acoustical materials and new construction techniques.

GOOD IDEA

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Wranglers suggested that the cattle on the vast Glenmoore Ranch near Ventura, Calif., be given tranquilizers when it was announced the ranch would be the location site for the new Three Stooges' movie "The Three Stooges Meet The Gunslingers."

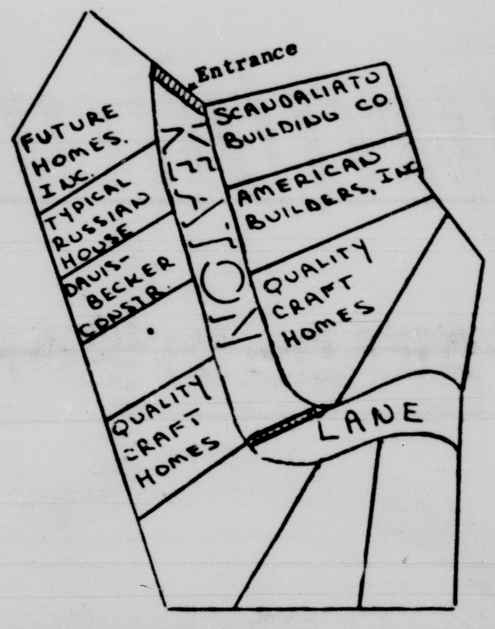
NORTHGLEN PARK



PARADE AREAS—Shown here are the two areas where the 1964 Colorado Springs Parade of Homes will be held, starting Saturday. Thirteen companies have built homes in Northglen Heights and five in Northglen Park. The areas may be reached by driving east on U.S. Highway 24, Palmer Park Boulevard or Constitution Street to Murray Boulevard, which leads to the sites.

Rigid Styles Of Decorating Are Out of Date

Furnishing a new home can be a sheer delight. Everything is so spotlessly clean and shining. The design of new homes makes placement of furniture easy.

What's more, interior decoration today emphasizes things comfortable and efficient to use and easy to care for. Individuality is welcomed. The day of rigid rules about decorating is past.

Mrs. Janice Holm Lloyd, a home economics graduate who was among the speakers at the school of "Modernizing Your Homemaking Ideas," held recently at the National Housing Center in Washington, D.C., said this about the new freedom in decorating:

"The homemaker can now choose from the greatest variety in furniture styles ever available. Different furniture styles are being mixed to achieve particularly personalized effects, and groupings are being defined with unique area rugs and unusual room dividers. Multi - purpose furniture, because of our increased mobility and desire for greater flexibility in arranging furniture, is being emphasized by manufacturers.

"There is a new flair in the use of color, and a tremendous range from which to choose. You can select those colors which make us feel good, and which reflect the particular mood you want to establish.

"Textures and patterns in fabrics are available in more variety, too, from very rough homespun and see - through linens to the most elegant velvets and silk taffetas."

Mrs. Lloyd said variety is also a trend in wall treatments, with scrubbable wall coverings "giving competition to painted walls." She noted that the attitude toward wall - to - wall draperies is changing, too. Sheer glass curtains are returning, she said, and there is variety in drapery styles and hardware, with wooden poles and rings receiving new attention. Shutters and decorative shades often are replacing Venetian blinds.

Study of Acoustics Over 2,500 Years Old

The study of acoustics goes back more than 2,500 years. But only in this century have acoustical principles been applied to building design. Today, the national Asociation of Home Builders is spearheading programs to help its members construct sound-conditioned homes.

Indictment of Denver Importer Is Sought

DENVER (UPI)— A federal official said Wednesday he would again ask for the indictment of a Denver importer on charges of trading with the enemy.

The importer, H. Medill Sarkisian was freed June 5 of similar charges when U.S. Dist. Judge A. Serman Cristensen of Salt Lake City dismissed three separate counts on a tecnicality.

Christensen said the language in the charges against the 53-year-old importer were vague. The man was charged with purchasing and importing $21,875 worth of goods from Communist China, in violation of a 1950 law.

In 1961, Sarkisian was fined $3,000 and given a 1-year suspended jail sentence after he was convicted of smuggling charges.

U.S. Atty. Lawrence Henry said he would seek another indictment against Sarkisian "from a future grand jury to obviate the technical differences (of the last trial)."

Colorado Commission Seeks Expense Fund

DENVER (AP) — Members of the Colorado Commission on Interstate Government said they would ask the legislature for an appropriation for $15,000 to cover costs of transportation and clerical expenses for the fiscal year starting July 1, 1965.

The commission was allocated $9,750 for the current fiscal year and a like amount for the year starting next July 1.

The commission consists of five state senators, five state representatives and five members appointed by the governor.

Members of the commission said it was essential that Colorado be represented at regional and national meetings of the Council of state governments.

Security Council Blasts South Africa

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—The U.N. Security Council today voted a new condemnation of South Africa's racial policies and ordered a study of possible punitive measures.

A compromise resolution, sponsored by Norway and Bolivia, was approved 8-0, with France, the Soviet Union and Czechoslovakia abstaining.

The South African goovernment has ignored similar condemnations in the past.

The council once more avoided a direct showdown on African, Asian and Soviet demands for immediate economic penalties—sanctions — to force the end of apartheid policies.

Thailand Airmen Pilot Missions Against Reds

WASHINGTON (AP)—Several pilots from Thailand have been flying combat missions against Communist positions for the neutralist government of Premier Souvanna Phouma in Laos, according to official sources here.

U.S. authorities say the number of Thai pilots is small, probably three or four men, but that they are said to be making important contributions to the operation of the Lao air force.

The air force consists of about 10 propeller-driven T28 planes built and supplied to Laos by the United States. Souvanna Phouma has a few Lao pilots but not enough, U.S. officials say, to operate effectively against the Pathet Lao forces.

The Thai pilots, according to the U.S. government's understanding, are not in Laos as military men assigned by their own government, but rather as individuals who volunteered to serve with the Lao government on an individual basis.

Home in 'Parade' to Give Idea How Russians Live

What are Russian homes like?

Pikes Peak Region residents will have an opportunity to see first hand what homes are like in the U.S.S.R. when they visit the Parade of Homes sites beginning Saturday.

To give residents of the area an idea of how Soviet homes compare with American, seven Colorado Springs lumber companies joined together to erect "The Russian House" at 1564 Keaton Lane.

Individual homes are fast-disappearing in Russia, most people being housed in small apartments, and those still in use lack most of the conveniences that the average American householder takes as a matter of course.

The Parade of Homes Russian house was chosen as being typical of those in the U.S.S.R.; the plans are neither the most pretentious nor the most modes. It's 16 by 24 feet in size, embracing 384 square feet of living space.

Since Russian materials weren't available, the house was built with American materials, which are similar to those used in Russia. It's typical of what is available to the average Soviet working man who doesn't live in large, multi-family apartment type buildings. It's the kind of home promoted by the Soviet government in areas such as farms and small villages in White Russia, the western section of the country and one of the most-advanced areas. Many homes in that area have no plumbing facilities at all.

The Russian House has two rooms plus a bathroom. As the plan showed only one water tap, it was assumed that if it were for running water it was for cold water.

The plan showed a woodburning, coal or kerosene type stove and sink in the kitchen. The stove furnishes the only heat in the house and is connected in some instances to a brick core which absorbs the flue heat and gives some heat to the kitchen-bath area.

The third room is a combination living-bedroom and has two small windows. Window space is kept to a minimum to conserve heat. This accounts also for the space devoted to an entering foyer.

The plan shows only one door to the outside. An additional door has been added to facilitate movement of the convention visitors through the house. Interior doors are omitted for the same reason.

Cost is estimated at 550 rubles per square meter. In this basis the house — which contains 38.34 square meters would cost 21,000 rubles. At the official Soviet rate of exchange of $1.11 to a ruble, the house would cost $22,000. At the free market rate of 40 cents to a ruble it would cost $8,400.

Russian furniture, of course, was not available, but the constructors of the Parade of Homes Russian House have attempted to depict the type and style of furniture used in the U.S.S.R. Research indicates that the Russian styles are similar to those of America in the 1920s.

Almost everyone, if not everyone, who visits the Parade of Home sites are expected to visit the Russian House since that's where registrations must be made to be eligible for the parade's $350 grand prize.

Lumber companies participating in the project were Abrahamson, Collier, Crissey-Fowler, El Paso, Newton, Walker Brothers and Weller West Side. Material was pre-cut by Newton Lumber Co., transporting was done by El Paso Lumber Co. and assembling at the site was done by Abrahamson Lumber Co. Collier and Crissey-Fowler Lumber Companies provided the furnishings for the house, and Weller will dispose of the building when the parade is over. Walker Brothers Lumber Co. was in charge of promotion.

Cancer Dispute Rages About Contraceptive

SKOKIE, Ill. (AP)—The developers of a nationally marketed birth control pill, Enovid, said today a recent medical finding indicating that use of the oral contraceptive speeds development of cancers present in laboratory animals "is at complete variance with other laboratory and clinical data."

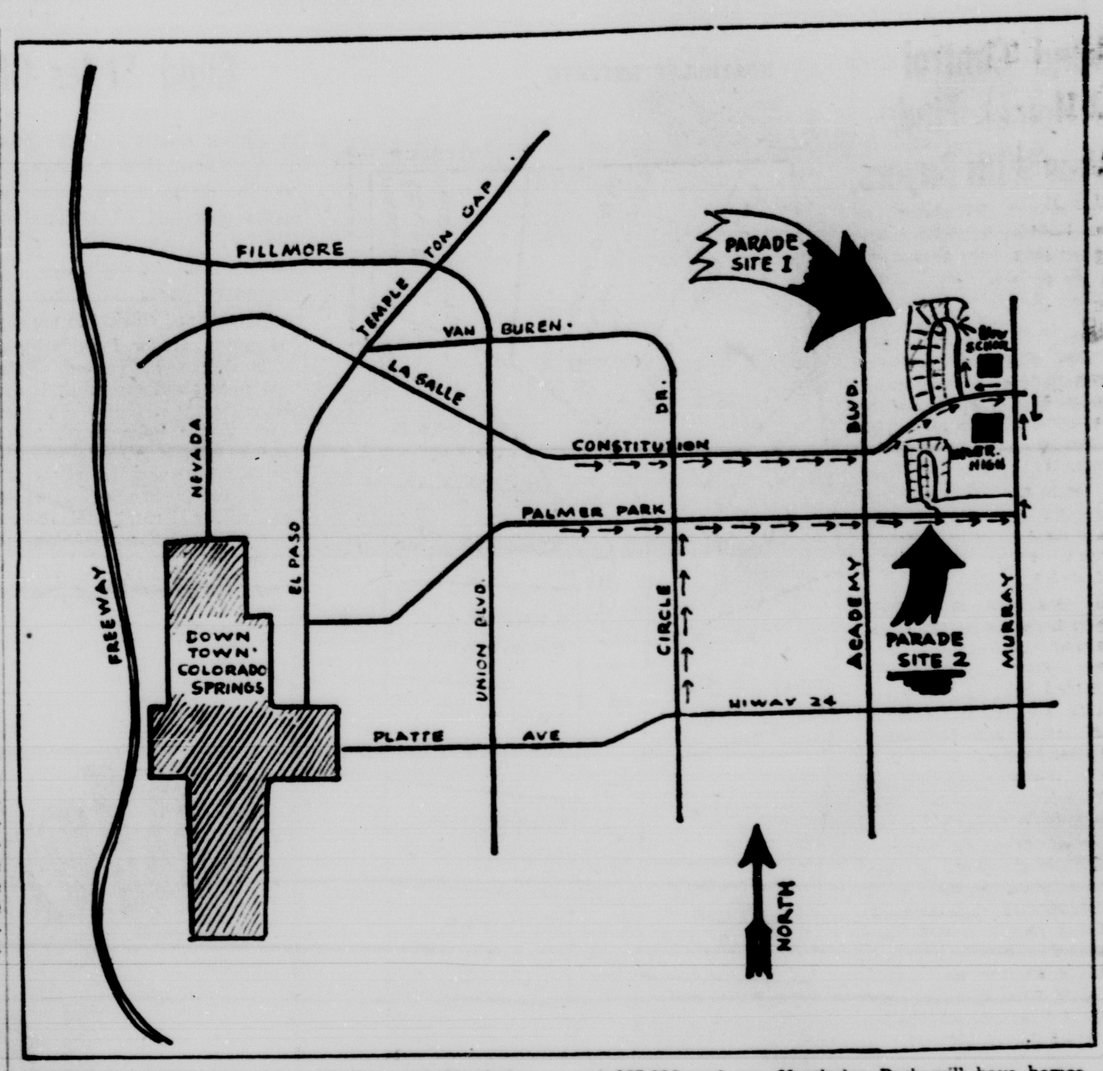
The finding, to be presented next week at the American Medical Association meeting in San Francisco, was announced by doctors at the University of Oregon Medical School.

The doctors, in a preliminary report published in the journal of the AMA, said Enovid accelerated the development and growth of tumors on rats with hormone-sensitive breast cancer.

A spokesman for G. D. Searle & Co., developer of Enovid, said:

"Published data does not indicate that the incidence of cancer of the reproductive organs in women receiving Enovid is above the normal rate in women not receiving Enovid.

"In fact, the data suggests that the incidence of breast and genital cancer in women receiving Enovid actually is less than the normal expectancy in women not receiving Enovid."



PARADE SITES—Northglen Heights and Northglen Park Subdivisions are sites this year for the Colorado Springs Parade of Homes, and this map shows how to get to them. Northglen Heights will have homes of $25,000 and up; Northglen Park will have homes ranging from $15,500 to $20,000 in price. Homes will be open from 1 to 9 p.m. daily during the parade, which begins Saturday and continues through June 28.

Take care in installing a television aerial, says the National Association of Home Builders. Carlessness can cause roof leaks.

Home Owners Given Break at Tax Time

Home owners get a break at income tax time. The interest they pay on mortgages and real estate taxes are deductible from Federal income tax returns and from state returns as well.

Remove every trace of wax or polish before revarnishing or repainting a floor or furniture. Paint products will not stick to wax.

Thailand Airmen Pilot Missions Against Reds

WASHINGTON (AP)—Several pilots from Thailand have been flying combat missions against Communist positions for the neutralist government of Premier Souvanna Phouma in Laos, according to official sources here.

U.S. authorities say the number of Thai pilots is small, probably three or four men, but that they are said to be making important contributions to the operation of the Lao air force.

The air force consists of about 10 propeller-driven T28 planes built and supplied to Laos by the United States. Souvanna Phouma has a few Lao pilots but not enough, U.S. officials say, to operate effectively against the Pathet Lao forces.

The Thai pilots, according to the U.S. government's understanding, are not in Laos as military men assigned by their own government, but rather as individuals who volunteered to serve with the Lao government on an individual basis.

What are Russian homes like?

Pikes Peak Region residents will have an opportunity to see first hand what homes are like in the U.S.S.R. when they visit the Parade of Homes sites beginning Saturday.

To give residents of the area an idea of how Soviet homes compare with American, seven Colorado Springs lumber companies joined together to erect "The Russian House" at 1564 Keaton Lane.

Individual homes are fast-disappearing in Russia, most people being housed in small apartments, and those still in use lack most of the conveniences that the average American householder takes as a matter of course.

The Parade of Homes Russian house was chosen as being typical of those in the U.S.S.R.; the plans are neither the most pretentious nor the most modes. It's 16 by 24 feet in size, embracing 384 square feet of living space.

Since Russian materials weren't available, the house was built with American materials, which are similar to those used in Russia. It's typical of what is available to the average Soviet working man who doesn't live in large, multi-family apartment type buildings. It's the kind of home promoted by the Soviet government in areas such as farms and small villages in White Russia, the western section of the country and one of the most-advanced areas. Many homes in that area have no plumbing facilities at all.

The Russian House has two rooms plus a bathroom. As the plan showed only one water tap, it was assumed that if it were for running water it was for cold water.

The plan showed a woodburning, coal or kerosene type stove and sink in the kitchen. The stove furnishes the only heat in the house and is connected in some instances to a brick core which absorbs the flue heat and gives some heat to the kitchen-bath area.

The third room is a combination living-bedroom and has two small windows. Window space is kept to a minimum to conserve heat. This accounts also for the space devoted to an entering foyer.

The plan shows only one door to the outside. An additional door has been added to facilitate movement of the convention visitors through the house. Interior doors are omitted for the same reason.

Cost is estimated at 550 rubles per square meter. In this basis the house — which contains 38.34 square meters would cost 21,000 rubles. At the official Soviet rate of exchange of $1.11 to a ruble, the house would cost $22,000. At the free market rate of 40 cents to a ruble it would cost $8,400.

Russian furniture, of course, was not available, but the constructors of the Parade of Homes Russian House have attempted to depict the type and style of furniture used in the U.S.S.R. Research indicates that the Russian styles are similar to those of America in the 1920s.

Almost everyone, if not everyone, who visits the Parade of Home sites are expected to visit the Russian House since that's where registrations must be made to be eligible for the parade's $350 grand prize.

Lumber companies participating in the project were Abrahamson, Collier, Crissey-Fowler, El Paso, Newton, Walker Brothers and Weller West Side. Material was pre-cut by Newton Lumber Co., transporting was done by El Paso Lumber Co. and assembling at the site was done by Abrahamson Lumber Co. Collier and Crissey-Fowler Lumber Companies provided the furnishings for the house, and Weller will dispose of the building when the parade is over. Walker Brothers Lumber Co. was in charge of promotion.

Cancer Dispute Rages About Contraceptive

SKOKIE, Ill. (AP)—The developers of a nationally marketed birth control pill, Enovid, said today a recent medical finding indicating that use of the oral contraceptive speeds development of cancers present in laboratory animals "is at complete variance with other laboratory and clinical data."

The finding, to be presented next week at the American Medical Association meeting in San Francisco, was announced by doctors at the University of Oregon Medical School.

The doctors, in a preliminary report published in the journal of the AMA, said Enovid accelerated the development and growth of tumors on rats with hormone-sensitive breast cancer.

A spokesman for G. D. Searle & Co., developer of Enovid, said:

"Published data does not indicate that the incidence of cancer of the reproductive organs in women receiving Enovid is above the normal rate in women not receiving Enovid.

"In fact, the data suggests that the incidence of breast and genital cancer in women receiving Enovid actually is less than the normal expectancy in women not receiving Enovid."

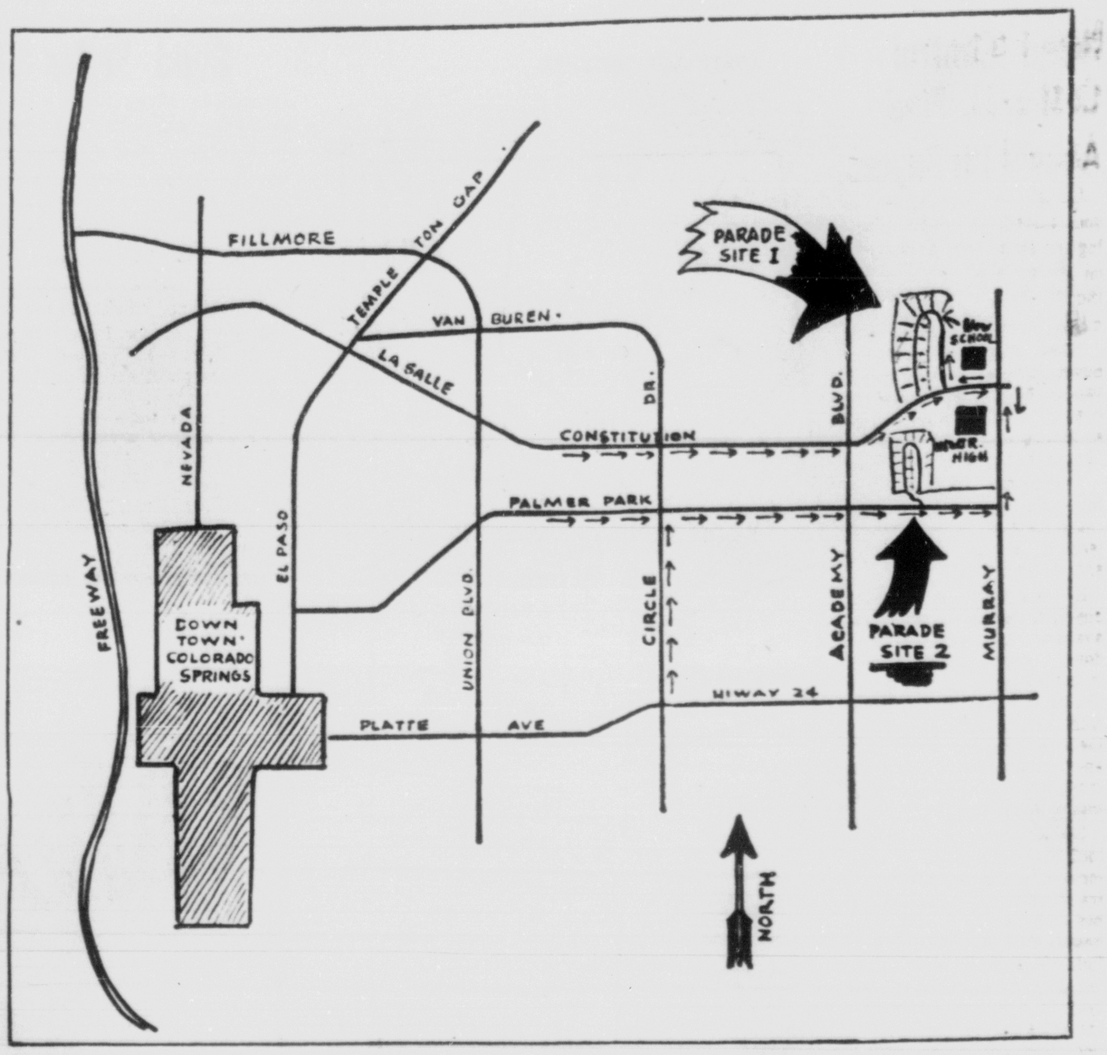
COMFORTABLE LIVING has been planned for in Homes for Americans Plan HA239P, in a house of just 1,159 square feet. The master bedroom has a huge walk-in closet and private lavatory. The living room's prefabricated fireplace is an optional feature. The family room extends from the kitchen and the carport contains a large storage area convenient to the kitchen. In an alternate design, a formal dining room is provided for by building the family room behind the carport. The basement has space for storage and laundry. Outside construction is of vertical siding with an accent of brick, plus a decorative stone planter. Plan HA239P was designed by architect Samuel Paul, 89-30 161 St., Jamaica 32, N. Y.



PARADE SITES—Northglen Heights and Northglen Park Subdivisions are sites this year for the Colorado Springs Parade of Homes, and this map shows how to get to them. Northglen Heights will have homes of $25,000 and up; Northglen Park will have homes ranging from $15,500 to $20,000 in price. Homes will be open from 1 to 9 p.m. daily during the parade, which begins Saturday and continues through June 28.

Take care in installing a television aerial, says the National Association of Home Builders. Carlessness can cause roof leaks.

Home Owners Given Break at Tax Time

Home owners get a break at income tax time. The interest they pay on mortgages and real estate taxes are deductible from Federal income tax returns and from state returns as well.

Remove every trace of wax or polish before revarnishing or repainting a floor or furniture. Paint products will not stick to wax.

New Home Should Cost 2-2½ Times Annual Income

Annual income should be your guide if you're house hunting this spring, and an authority on the subject offers a rule-of-thumb that first-time buyers might do well to apply.

"Most people can afford to buy a home within the range of two-and-a-half-times their annual income," says Dick Beck, a housing expert for Allied Chemical's Barrett Division.

"Net income is the basis for this figuring," he adds, "because there is often quite a difference between gross income and take-home pay."

He also advises first-time buyers to have some extra funds available above the cost of the down payment. This ready cash is needed for such expenses as closing fees, which may range from two to four per cent of the total purchase price, insurance costs and charges for moving the family and furnishings into the new home.

It might even be advisable to include in the funds allocated for purchasing the house an extra amount for expansion purposes in case you decide on a basement recreation room or finishing an attic bedroom. Often it is wise to discuss these projects with the builder while the house is still under construction.

With materials and labor already on the site, expansion projects can often be accomplished at considerable savings.

Regarding the neighborhood, Mr. Beck advises: "Don't be carried away by too 'exurban' a location. Consider transportation and commuting costs; the proximity of shopping and recreational areas, and the location of schools."

Beck offers this financial table as a guide for first-time buyers who will not be making a sizable down payment:

Weekly Take-Home Pay	Price Range That Can Be Afforded*
$130	$13,000-16,000
150	15,000-18,000
170	17,000-21,000
190	19,000-23,000
200	20,000-25,000
220	22,000-27,500
250	25,000-31,000
270	27,000-33,000
300	30,000-37,000

This will vary according to income taxes, local assessments, etc.

No More Half-Pints Stocked in Utah

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Utah liquor buyers wanting a short snort soon will have a choice between buying a wee 1.6 ounce bottle or a full pint.

No more half-pint bottles of whiskey are going to be stocked in the state stores, the liquor commission announced, saying the discontinuance is because of budgetary limitations. He said $2.5 million is available annually for liquor stocks.

Soldering Irons and Guns For Small, Exacting Jobs

If soldering jobs turn up around the house or if you are a hobbyist who likes to tinker with assemble-it-yourself hi-fi components, a soldering iron becomes an important part of your tool collection.

Among the more popular electric irons are the gun type tools. Such an iron has a pistol grip and a switch located where the trigger ought to be. Pull the trigger and you have heat.

Using such a gun is similar to using any soldering iron. Keep the soldering tip clean and well tinned. Tinning is a process by which you cover the copper tip of any gun or iron with solder.

File the tip clean so that it is free of dirt and oxidation. Then heat and coat with flux. With the flux melted and coating the tip completely, apply solder which will cover the cleaned area. Tinning makes the solder flow more evenly.

With a gun, be certain that the tip is kept tightly fastened. Nuts at the base of the tip should be checked. Never make repairs when it is plugged in.

Before you buy your soldering gun, find out what accessories are available. Almost all of them have interchangeable tips.

One that you will want to add first is the cutting tip. This has a tiny round blade at the end of the two wires and slips into the gun in place of the soldering tip.

With this you can cut just about anything except metal. For example: an irksome job is removing putty. But get that cutting tip hot and it will slice through the dried putty as hough it were butter.

It's a handy thing, too, for cutting resilient floor tile or even plastic wall tile. Turn the tile over. Make your mark on the back side and run the cutting tip over it.

A tip with a flat blade that can be applied against a larger surface is a smoothing tip. With it you can mend plastic items, make smooth seams, heat-seal freezer packages.

New Concepts Of Land Use Makes Strides

By JOSEPH A. SINGER
Philadelphia, Pennsylvania
Chairman,
Land Use and Development Committee National Association of Home Builders

The acceptance of new land development and community planning techniques over the past few years by builders, developers, planners and community officials has been impressive.

Three or four years ago one was likely to draw a blank stare if such terms as "planned unit development," "density zoning," and "clustering" were mentioned in a conversation about community development. Today, such expressions are heard on all sides, in newspapers, magazines, trade publications, and among professionals and laymen alike.

Ground has been broken, homes and related facilities have been built, and more are entering the construction pipeline every day. More environments are based on a total community concept, including ample open space, well planned ciculation, and living units fitted both to the terrain and the needs of the market.

Let's define our terms. A "planned unit development" is any type of large - scale development planned under a zoning provision in which the usual requirements of minimum lot size are set aside, allowing much more flexibility in layout and design. Such a development usually will include single and multifamily homes, in a variety of combinations. Much of the tract is usually given to open space and recreational facilities. Commercial and industrial activities may also be included.

"Density zoning," sometimes known as "open space zoning," is based on density of occupancy for an area rather than on lot sizes. The determination of density should be based on transportation., accessibility, sewer and water facilities, etc.

Within the established density figure, the developers are then free to build the types of units they think prospective residents will like best. They may group these units in a variety of patterns different from the normal uniform gridiron or curvilinear street plan.

In so grouping, developers frequently turn to "clustering" homes around short cul - de - sac streets. Several such clusters may be grouped together, leaving significant areas of open space between cluster groups.

The National Association of Home Builders gave early stimulus to these ideas. In 1959 a program was organized jointly with the Urban Land Institute which has set the groundwork for much subsequent accomplishment in this field.

The most recent fruit of this research effort is Technical Bulletin No. 47 — "Innovations vs Traditions in Community Development," published by the Urban Land Institute. The report illustrates a wide range of planning concepts which may be applied to development tracts of varying size in different parts of the United States.

Now that we are bridging the gap from theory to accomplishment, the Land Use Research Program is concentrating on details and specific information required for practical, on - the - scene adaptation.

NAHB and ULI expect to issue shortly a comprehensive analysis of the legal side of density zoning and planned unit development. Model ordinance language, plus tips to developers on how to organize and set up the proper forms and covenants for such types of development, will be covered.

Later, detailed data on engineering costs and market response will be covered.

One of the main hurdles has been bridged, however. Against the background of large population increases all cities will face in the coming decades, a basic understanding has been developed — that we must adopt new patterns and new forms for urban growth in order to protect and enhance conditions for better living.

Laundry-Mud Room Does Two Jobs at Once

With building and remodeling season here once again, many homeowners may be considering adding laundry facilities to their homes. This is an improvement highly recommended by the Plumbing - Heating - Cooling Information Bureau, who advises going a step further by making a mud room at the same time.

Space for the laundry - mud room is available in most homes — in the basement, converted porch, breezeway or end of a garage. With proper arrangement of the laundry equipment and the installation of a small shower - equipped bathroom, this new room can serve a practical, dual purpose every day of the year.

The value of a laundry is well - known — as the place for washing, drying and ironing clothes, it is praised as indispensable by housewives that have them. And the mud room has proven equally valuable. With access from outside the house, it provides the perfect place for cleaning up after outdoor work or play without tracking dirt through the house.

Erhard Urges Russians To Grant German Vote

BONN, Germany (AP) — Chancellor Ludwig Erhard appealed to the Soviet Union today to grant the German people the right of self-determination.

He spoke at a memorial service for the more than 500 persons killed in East Germany during the revolt against communism on June 17, 1953. The day is an official holiday in West Germany dedicated to German unity.

In Berlin, West German President Heinrich Luebke and Mayor Willy Brandt laid wreaths on the graves of Berliners who were killed in the Soviet repression of the revolt.

Man Knocked Down By Shopping Cart

DENVER (UPI)—Rudolph H. Schiff, a Denver clothing salesman, Wednesday filed a $5,000 civil court suit for damages he said he received when he was run down and knocked unconscious by a runaway grocery cart.

Schiff said the accident happened April 16 at a King Soopers store parking lot. He said a wind-driven car struck him in the back "with great force" as he was getting into his car.

Installation of Drawers Increases Storage Space

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Ask a woman whether she needs more storage and shelf space and you can be almost certain she'll say yes.

Shallow compartments for wearing apparel and accessories are needed in bedrooms usually, in addition to other needs, and more drawer space is required than available in kitchens. Kitchen storage space often is wasted because original planning did not utilize properly the space that is available.

New instant storage drawers may be installed by the home handyman in a jiffy and are the answer to many situations.

Modular drawers and slide panels molded of durable styrene plastic are available at building supply yards. The home handyman may install them by spreading cement on a panel of plywood or hardwood and then pressing a plastic panel to the backing. Molded drawers, wood and glass shelves may slide in on the panel slides. They are adaptable to many types of installation, including pole systems and storage walls.

The drawers of beige plastic are available in a standard depth of 17½ inches and in heights of three and six inches, and in five widths ranging from about 16 to 46 inches. Birch or walnut fronts are optional, and one might paint the drawer fronts to match room decor.

Kitchen requirements for pots could be the six - inch height.

STORAGE FOR SMALL ITEMS—Half the closet behind the sliding mirror doors is equipped for the hanging of clothes. The half which is shown has been converted to storage space for small items by the addition of pull-out plastic drawers and a shelf.

These may be useful also for some small appliances. Drawers may be intersperced with shelves in a linen closet for more efficiency, and since drawers move easily on the preformed slides even in the presence of moisture, they may be used in bathrooms and in basement workshops.

Drawers may be planned to the height requirements of tall men who dislike bending down to remove clothing from dresser drawers. The easy - to - wash compartments may be used in the nursery and a teenager's room, ideal for collections of the moment that make for considerable clutter.

The drawers may be used without attached fronts in closets, cupboards or cabinets since they are available with molded pulls.

If drawers are to be part of a new closet in a bedroom, a wood closet frame may be installed to size, slide panels and drawers added exactly to fit requirements. One side of a closet may be used for hanging garments, the other side for drawers or shelves, and an area above utilized for storage.

U.S. Jets Refuel in Viet Nam for Raids

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—U.S. jet planes flying reconnaissance and raid missions in Laos are believed to have been using South Vietnamese airfields as refuelling points for some time, reliable sources reported today.

Officially, American spokesmen in Saigon have no comment on this matter but jets of the type used in Laos have been seen in at least four airfields in Viet Nam—Danang in the north, Nhatrang, Bien Hoa and Saigon.

These aircraft first started showing up in Viet Nam a few days after the United States decided to fly photo missions over the Plaine des Jarres in Laos.

New Building Materials Appear On Market

New building materials appear on the market with such frequency these days that it is almost impossible to keep track of them.

One way not to fall too far behind in mentally cataloging new products and different applications of old ones is by attending as many public and trade exhibitions as possible.

An especially noticeable feature of many of the attractive room layouts at the New York World's Fair has been the increasing variety of uses of laminated plastic. Once used mostly as a surfacing for coffee tables, refreshment bars and countertops, this material is moving into every room in the house and, in some cases, outdoors. One of the displays we saw showed laminated plastic used on the walls and virtually all other surfaces in a boys' bedroom, including a two-tiered bunk.

Other types of plastic also are playing important roles in new product developments both from a functional and decorative point of view. Acrylic color coatings are being used by a number of manufacturers. Such coatings are applied to asbestos cement panels for use on curtain and interior walls. Storm windows and doors feature bonded resilient acrylic finishes to offset cracking, peeling, fading and corroding.

One company is using a plastic for its aluminum siding. Another features a finish of colored plastic blending with ceramics on a "self-cleaning" siding.

STOCKHOLM—Swedish miners are being trained abroad.

Builder Urges Putting Utilities Underground

There is no valid reason wy even the least expensive new homes cannot have underground electrical service, according to California civil engineer and land developer George C. Bestor writing in the Urban Land Institute's latest Technical Bulletin, "Buried Cables." The ULI of Washington, D. C., is an independent research organization specializing in urban planning and development.

Technical advances and knowledge gained from 30 years experience have made it possible for builders to bury both electric and telephone cables for as little as $100 per house. New materials and methods have increased the reliability and ease of maintenance of underground cables, he says.

Aesthetic improvement, safety, and the prevention of damage to lines by storm and snow are among the most impressive reasons for placing wires underground. People are no longer "blind" to the blemish of overhead wiring. The majority engineers now acknowledge the superior efficiency of the underground system compared to overhead wiring, according to Bestor.

Bestor warns lagging developers to go underground or be "caught with their wires up." Surveys prove home buyers are motivated to buy by the improved appearance of the neighborhood where no wires nor poles mar the landscape. In the luxury market, any tract developed without underground wiring will soon be obsolete.

The cost of underground wiring depends to a large extent on the attitude of the utilities. Usually the developer pays the utility company for the cost above that of overhead wiring and passes this cost on to the home buyer. Many utility companies believe that underground lines are in the long run less expensive than overhead lines and are willing to absorb part of their additional initial cost. Some utilities aggressively promote underground cables, making developers attractive offers in conjunction with guaranteed use of a particular power supply, Mr. Bestor writes.

Technical Bulletin No. 42, "Buried Cables," is available at $2 per copy from the Urban Land Institute, 1200 18th St., N. W., Washington, D. C., 20036.

Aircraft Carrier to Be Named for Kennedy

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Navy's newest Forrestal-class aircraft carrier will be named the USS John F. Kennedy, the White House announced today.

President Johnson gave his approval to naming the 80,700-ton vessel for the chief executive who was assassinated last Nov. 22.

A contract for construction of the conventionally powered attack carrier was awarded last April 30 to the Newport News Shipbuilding & Drydocking Co., Newport News, Va.

This will be the second naval vessel named for a member of the Kennedy family. Already in service is a destroyer named for the late president's brother, Joseph P. Kennedy Jr., a naval aviator killed in a bombing mission in Europe during World War II.

SHELLEY WINTERS BACK

NEW YORK (AP) — Shelley Winters comes back to Broadway next season in "The Days of the Dancing," a drama by James Bridges.

A break-in tour of summer theaters under the direction of Timmy Everett is scheduled. The play was well-received when tested at Venice, Calif., the locale of its story. Miss Winters is to portray a mind reader helping a group of lonely, young people find themselves.

STEPS OUT OF MUSICALS

NEW YORK (AP) — Gower Champion takes time out from the staging of musical comedies to direct a straight play for Broadway next season.

Swamped with bids for his services, Champion has chosen Roger O. Hirson's "World War Two and a Half," being produced by Alexander H. Cohen.

Shows he previously directed were the song-and-dance hits "Bye, Bye, Birdie," "Carnival" and the current hit, "Hello, Dolly!"

OTHELLO PLUS O'NEILL

NEW YORK (AP) — James Earl Jones is having a strenuous summer - long workout in one dramatic crisis after another.

Recently starred in the racial play, "The Blood Knot," Jones' next assignment is the title role in "Othello" at the Central Park Shakespeare Festival. In August he does O'Neill's "The Emperor Jones" at the Boston Arts Festiva. After that he returns to "Othello" for a Philadelphia engagement.

Vacation Home Mart May Double In Next Decade

The interest of American families in acquiring vacation or second homes has been growing steadily in the last 10 years. Reports to the National Association of Home Builders indicate that at least 75,000 families or individuals will be shopping for such homes this year.

Some researchers predict the number of persons buying vacation homes will double in the next 10 years. They point out the growth in population along with increased family incomes and leisure time has heightened the interest of Americans in second homes they can enjoy now for weekends or vacations and to which they can retire at a later time.

Surveys show that apartment dwellers and home owners in crowded residential areas constitute one of the largest groups buying vacation homes. They seek elbow room, attractive scenery and privacy.

Vacation homes today are for the most part, no longer cabins. They are comfortable homes equipped with all the utilities and convenience appliances. Frequently they are of a more daring design than the city or suburban home.

Communities made up entirely of vacation-retirement homes are on the increase. They are carefully planned communities with facilities for recreational activities, including a golf course, swimming pool and club house as well as tennis courts and other attractions.

Speakers at a conference on vacation homes held at the National Housing Center in Washington, D. C., pointed out that the number of paved miles of highways will double in the next 10 years. They said this will put more potential vacation development areas within a short drive of most metropolitan centers.

Other points made by speakers:

. . . People who buy a vacation home want to "rough" it in style — they want a bath, not a path.

. . . The do-it-yourself buyer is on the wane. Few persons can cope with the complicated building chores and just don't want to be bothered with the hard work involved.

. . . Most vacation home buyers are in the 40-and-over age bracket. Some 80 percent buy with retirement in mind, although frequently they re-sell their second home within 10 years.

Designed for truly luxurious living, this tri-level plan features ingenious handling of traffic flow through strategically located stairways off the tiled entrance hall.

The living room, set off by the long-low hearth on the fireplace, joins the dining room to provide a wealth of space for gracious entertaining. Of particular interest is the wood storage box incorporated in the fireplace, with a door from the outside.

The excellent plan of the U-shaped kitchen literally "has everything", dishwasher, range and oven and a desk for houshold planning and your social calendar.

Large and comfortable bedrooms highlight the upper level, with a large hall bath of gleaming ceramic tile and built-in vanity, while the master bedroom features a personal dressing room with a private bath.

At the lower level there is an entrance from the garage — saves the house from muddy feet and snow, and features a large airy recreation room, another full ceramic tile bath and utility area.

Viet Buddhist Crisis Blamed for Setbacks

By PETER ARNETT

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Gen. Paul D. Harkins, retiring U.S. commander in South Viet Nam, said today the Buddhist crisis of last year put back the war effort against the Communist Viet Cong by nine months.

"But with implementation of the pacification program we are gradually winning back control," Harkins told newsmen at a farewell interview.

He will hand over command to Gen. William C. Westmoreland on Saturday and leave for Washington and retirement the same day. Harkins has been in Viet Nam since February, 1962.

Harkins' prescription for success in Viet Nam was "keep doing what we are doing. Keep pressure on and we can win."

Look Beyond Bloom When You Pick Out House

Is summer a good time to buy an all-year-round house?

It is as good a time as any if you can manage to see through Nature's beautiful props.

A house is likely to look better in summer when it is in full bloom, even though its bloom is just a hedge in the front yard, grass and a newly painted white fence.

Some houses depend largely on summer landscaping for charm. But that shouldn't curb a prospective buyer's enthusiasm if she likes the house. Once she sizes up what the house will look like in other seasons, she can determine how to fill in the gaps and what the cost will be.

What lies behind the heavy screen of bushes? Another house? An incinerator? A dug well? An unsightly old wreck of a car or boat on someone's property?

What will be the view from the house when leaves disappear from the tallest trees? Acres of rooftops and television aerials? A mass of power stanchions?

Is the house in the path of winter winds or do trees break the effect of cold blasts?

If the house is on top of the hill, will there be road problems in winter? In some areas, hills attract the snow plows first. But ask milkmen and newspaper delivery people who must use roads every day how the road fares. And it is good to get a few opinions — some people see the pessimistic view of everything.

Once you establish what needs to be done, determine whether improvements can be made and estimate the expense.

Screens of evergreens may be put in the ground in the fall. The initial costs of tall trees may seem expensive at first but they more than pay their way in the pleasure they afford. Tall, stately evergreens that are picturesque at every season can do a beautiful job of hiding unpleasant sights. There are less expensive alternates but properly chosen evergreen are worth the investment.

Bushes that are seasonal bloomers may be used with the all-year-round beauty of the tree screen. Or they may be transplanted to another area.

Some plants were ideal choices when the house was built, but as the neighborhood changes, so does one's outlook from a house. Many people go on lamenting the encroachments around them, rather than sizing up the problem realistically, and doing something about it.

That's the attitude that should be taken by a would-be buyer. All other things being acceptable, can the house be made to look pretty all year round?

Another point that would-be gardeners can invesitgate is the animal population. Dogs and cats that are used to roaming in a neighborhood can't be muzzled suddenly by the new neighbor — not without making enemies of the pet owners. It's a good question to contemplate and one that can be solved too by using screening around the garden. But it is much better to know that you plan to do that, than to become resigned to it later with resentment against the creatures who lived in the neighborhood before you bought the house.

Do One Home Job, Then Sit And Enjoy It

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Dole out those home building projects one at a time, is the advice of one do-it-yourselfer.

"You should see the list of handyman projects my wife has prepared for me," he writes. She goes through all the magazines, catalogs, newspaper building sections for months and clips out everything she can find in the way of home and grounds improvements. When she has a box full of pictures, some with directions, she hands it to me, expecting that I will run right out and start building and digging."

It annoys him that she doesn't realize the labor involved, much less the planning, and he says it's because he made earlier projects look so easy.

"What she really asks me to do is become architect, builder and planner on every project, not to mention the boodle of cash these arty projects would take. She expects me to do the job overnight on a shoestring budget, he says, and before the end of summer she'd like to have all the projects done that she has her heart set on.

"She'd like a small tool shed, so that lawn mower, garden tools and other outdoor work equipment could be neatly stored" (only the picture she has shown him is in an area about as large as their present house, placed in a rock and woodland setting that would have done the late architect Frank Lloyd Wright proud.)

Her rose arbor designed for a dozen plants would pale the gardnes in a botanical park, he points out, and "the statuary she plans was a photograph from a museum."

At one point he offered to build a small flagstone terrace off the dining room (his own idea) but she said it was too small for a large party.

"And I really cringed when the sauna became popular, because I knew that sooner or later a picture of one would find its way into our little box. But this time, she suspected that I would blow my top, so pinned to the photograph was a note, that if I could make it large enough for 10 people, we might be able to open the sauna to friends and neighbors and make it pay."

That idea threw him into such a fit of hysterical laughter, he says, that she didn't speak to him for a week.

There's no doubt that some women do try to keep their husbands occupied at various involved tasks which are beyond their skills, only to miss the opportunity of having the lawn mowed or a shelf put up in the kitchen.

Many men do enjoy planning and building, combining a hobby and a home project, but even those fellows get bored with the whole work idea occasionally. They'd like to enjoy porch or patio or something they've built, instead of going on to something new at the completion of each job.

Perhaps there is no more reason to expect a man who excels in his regular job — insurance man or advertising executive — to be a whiz at building, than it would be to expect builders to take over their jobs and skills at a moment's notice.

More Presses Needed For Minting Dollars

DENVER (UPI)— Mrs. Fern V. Miller, Denver Mint superintendent, said Wednesday additional presses would be needed if Denver was to mint any of the 45 million new silver dollars, a proposal now under study.

"The Treasury Department has assured us we will receive additional presses in the near future," Mrs. Miller said. "With those, we might be set back a little if we have to mint silver dollars, but we could adjust and there would be no serious problems."

The Senate Appropriations Committee Wednesday gave approval to minting 45 million cartwheels at the Denver and Philadelphia mints. Similar action now must be taken by a Senate-House conference committee and approved by the House.

Give Your Hot Water Boiler Plenty of Air

For greater operating efficiency, the boiler of your hydronic (hot water) heating system should have plenty of fresh air, says the Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Information Bureau.

Never seal off your boiler room. If the temperature in your boiler area is uncomfortable for you, it will be the same for the boiler. The ideal temperature is about 65 to 70 degrees during winter operation. The outside limits are 50 to 85 degrees for acceptable operation.

Summer Is Best Time To Build Home Fireplace

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

One blistering hot summer day, a woman took to the axe and knocked out a large chunk of a living room wall. Her object: a fireplace.

"Why in the world worry about a fireplace now, and why didn't you wait until we made all the proper plans?" her husband asked, regaining his composure after a view of the rubble.

"If I had waited, I'd never get it. You've had an excuse for every season," replied his wife.

A drastic approach, though carefully thought out. But there is no doubt that summer is the ideal time to build a fireplace.

Homeowners live outdoors a great deal during warm weather, and it is easier than in cool months to keep the house aired as plaster and lathe fly.

A fireplace isn't cheap, but it can bring great charm and happiness to the family, far more perhaps than a breakfront, soft or credenza that might cost as much to fill the same amount of wall space. They don't pay off in quite the same way on a dreary, damp, cold winter day.

Many homeowners, equipped with books found in the public library or government pamphlets, do build their own fireplaces. There are fireplace units with built-in damper, smoke chamber and smoke shelf that form the basic mold around which you can install firebricks and what have you. Some skilled masons prefer these units. Warm-air outlets and cool-air inlets in certain units may be disguised. The important point is to follow rules for safety, and to choose recommended materials.

It is safer to have a professional do the job, and often costs no more. The peace of mind in knowing that it has been done properly by an experienced person may be reassuring.

The location of a fireplace is a prime consideration and it can't be an afterthought.

In a small room, it should not be directly opposite a door. One likes a sofa or large chairs opposite a fireplace usually, not so hot as when sofas flank a fireplace in a small room. In a large room, sofas on either side of a fireplace may be placed far enough away from the hearth for comfort.

It is good to have a mantel above the fireplace, particularly in a traditional style house. The mantel need not be symmetrical. In a small room, a hand-hewn beam several feet larger than the fireplace can offer a special rustic kind of charm to give the entire room an air of individuality.

If one wants a fireplace without the fuss and bother of removing a wall, there are ready-made modern styles to be used indoors, particularly good in contemporary homes. These are ready to go when a flue and-or chimney is installed. Old French stoves and Franklin stoves offer their share of fun, satisfaction and warmth, too.

In old houses, closed-off fireplaces often are discovered by probing walls. These may be exposed usually by removal of the covering matter, wood or plaster. If the fireplace was holed up, the fill should be easy to remove. Few people bothered to cement the filling, so it can be pulled out easily.

One should check on our chimneys from every standpoint, particularly for wooden beams often used as footing. These are not considered safe. But torn down, chimney materials may be used to build anothee chimney, so it hasn't been a total loss, if labor is available.

It wasn't the explosion that injured his head, but the gas tank he fell against.

Summer Is Best Time To Build Home Fireplace

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

One blistering hot summer day, a woman took to the axe and knocked out a large chunk of a living room wall. Her object: a fireplace.

"Why in the world worry about a fireplace now, and why didn't you wait until we made all the proper plans?" her husband asked, regaining his composure after a view of the rubble.

"If I had waited, I'd never get it. You've had an excuse for every season," replied his wife.

A drastic approach, though carefully thought out. But there is no doubt that summer is the ideal time to build a fireplace.

Homeowners live outdoors a great deal during warm weather, and it is easier than in cool months to keep the house aired as plaster and lathe fly.

A fireplace isn't cheap, but it can bring great charm and happiness to the family, far more perhaps than a breakfront, soft or credenza that might cost as much to fill the same amount of wall space. They don't pay off in quite the same way on a dreary, damp, cold winter day.

Many homeowners, equipped with books found in the public library or government pamphlets, do build their own fireplaces. There are fireplace units with built-in damper, smoke chamber and smoke shelf that form the basic mold around which you can install firebricks and what have you. Some skilled masons prefer these units. Warm-air outlets and cool-air inlets in certain units may be disguised. The important point is to follow rules for safety, and to choose recommended materials.

It is safer to have a professional do the job, and often costs no more. The peace of mind in knowing that it has been done properly by an experienced person may be reassuring.

The location of a fireplace is a prime consideration and it can't be an afterthought.

In a small room, it should not be directly opposite a door. One likes a sofa or large chairs opposite a fireplace usually, not so hot as when sofas flank a fireplace in a small room. In a large room, sofas on either side of a fireplace may be placed far enough away from the hearth for comfort.

It is good to have a mantel above the fireplace, particularly in a traditional style house. The mantel need not be symmetrical. In a small room, a hand-hewn beam several feet larger than the fireplace can offer a special rustic kind of charm to give the entire room an air of individuality.

If one wants a fireplace without the fuss and bother of removing a wall, there are ready-made modern styles to be used indoors, particularly good in contemporary homes. These are ready to go when a flue and-or chimney is installed. Old French stoves and Franklin stoves offer their share of fun, satisfaction and warmth, too.

In old houses, closed-off fireplaces often are discovered by probing walls. These may be exposed usually by removal of the covering matter, wood or plaster. If the fireplace was holed up, the fill should be easy to remove. Few people bothered to cement the filling, so it can be pulled out easily.

One should check on our chimneys from every standpoint, particularly for wooden beams often used as footing. These are not considered safe. But torn down, chimney materials may be used to build anothee chimney, so it hasn't been a total loss, if labor is available.

Fixing Flat Tire Can Be Dangerous

SAVANNAH, Ga. (AP) — A Savannah man, Albert L. McCoy, found that fixing flat tires can be dangerous—even at a service station.

He was inflating a tractor tire when it exploded, sending him to the hospital with head injuries.

It wasn't the explosion that injured his head, but the gas tank he fell against.

Give Your Hot Water Boiler Plenty of Air

For greater operating efficiency, the boiler of your hydronic (hot water) heating system should have plenty of fresh air, says the Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Information Bureau.

Never seal off your boiler room. If the temperature in your boiler area is uncomfortable for you, it will be the same for the boiler. The ideal temperature is about 65 to 70 degrees during winter operation. The outside limits are 50 to 85 degrees for acceptable operation.

BRITISH CONSTRUCTION LAGS

In Britain, some 300,000 new residential units are being built annually. These additions don't meet the rising demand due to population growth and immigration. 3,000,000 persons immigrated into Britain during the last ten years. The National Housing Center's Library Bulletin reports that of the 17 million homes in Great Britain, almost 50% were built before 1919. Nearly 3 million have been in existence more than 100 years.

Good home insulation is well worth its cost in future savings on cooling and heating bills, says the National Association of Home Builders.

SEVERAL ADVANTAGES

Cooling is only one of the many advantages of air conditioning a home, says the Plumbing - Heating - Cooling Information Bureau. Other advantages include the reducing of humidity and filtering of dust and pollen from room air.

Population Shifts From Rural to Urban

There has been a massive shift in population from rural areas to urban centers in this country since World War II. Suburbs have replaced farm land in ever-widening circles around metropolitan centers. The growth in population is such that millions of new homes will still be needed between now and 1970.

Magic as a form of entertainment has been popular in India and other Asiatic countries for thousands of years.

Here's the Answer

QUESTION: My brother and I are going to build a small, two-room vacation cabin. We have considerable knowledge of ordinary construction, but need some advice on this particular project, since we would like to undertake a cabin made of logs.

ANSWER: You've set yourselves quite a task, but it can be done, especially by two persons with some construction experience. Don't try it, though, unless you have a chain saw for slicing and making cuts in the logs. You'll have to check with local authorities regarding foundation regulations. Most areas require that the foundation be made of concrete of a specified depth. Logs are then sliced and placed on the foundation with the flat side down, bolted to the concrete.

After adding three or four tiers of logs, placed horizontally, the rest of the walls are made from logs set vertically. The top logs must be beveled so that the roof rests securely on them. Window frames and other openings can be made from 2 by 6s. How much and what kind of insulation you use depends on how through a job you want to do. But you'd better be sure to use caulking compound to keep the cabin weather-tight. You can get a good start on this by cutting and notching the logs properly so that they fit together tightly.

There are many variations of cabins you can build, some of which call for placing the logs horizontally from the base to the top. You should have no trouble with this because of your construction know-how.

QUESTION: We're having our heating system renovated now so that it will be all set for the winter. We will be using a thermostat for the first time. Can you tell us which room it should be installed in?

ANSWER: Your heating dealer undoubtedly will make that decision, but you can discuss it with him if you have some knowledge of a few fundamentals. A thermostat should be placed in a room where the family spends much or most of its time, which is why it so often is installed in a living room.

There is an exception to that. If the living room has a fireplace which isn't just a decoration and which is actually used, locate the thermostat someplace else. Otherwise, when the fireplace is being used, the thermostate will not go into action and you may have one warm room and half a dozen cool rooms.

For the same reason, don't place the thermostat where it will be in the line of the sun's rays. Don't put it on an outside wall. Don't put it near a door. To sum it up, the thermostate should never be placed where it will be warmed more than the rest of the room or the rest of the house — nor should it be placed where it will be cooled more than the rest of the room or the rest of the house. You want it to reflect normal temperature conditions.

QUESTION: I am a physician who gets his relaxation from do-it-your-self activities. Perhaps you can help me with a repair project I hope to get to one of these days. The flat roof of our garage is covered with roll roofing. In one corner, there is a section about three feet by five feet which appears to be dried out and has a number of blisters in it. I feel that it is only a question of time before a leak develops there. How do I make a satisfactory patch?

ANSWER: You are wise to repair the damaged area before any leak occurs. A little surgery is in order. Using a sharp knife, cut out a rectangular piece of the roofing around the trouble spot. Do not cut deeply; just enough to take off the top layer of roofing felt. Now do the same thing with the next layer of felt. Except this time cut out a smaller rectangle than previously. Most roofs have three or four such layers. Next, spread roofing cement over the area and press down a patch of new felt. Spread more cement over the patch, then place a larger patch of felt on top of that, once again pressing it down firmly but not roughly.

Drive roofing nails around the edges of the last patch. The final step is to spread cement generously around the edges, being sure that all nailheads are well covered.

NEW MATERIAL CUTS

A new kind of building material that looks and cuts like wood but weathers like brick or rock has been developed by National Gypsum Company.

This unique material is a combination of specially - processed wood and asbestos fibres and cement, that provides strength and fire-resistant qualities found in rock plus the easy workability of wood.

First commercial use of the material — called Woodrock — will be in the form of clapboard siding for new home construction. According to the manufacturer, completed test marketing of the product has shown the material to be completely acceptable to builders in preference to other siding materials. No special tools or construction practices are required.

In planning bathrooms for a house, careful attention should be given to their accessibility from the maximum number of bedrooms, says the Plumbing - Heating - Cooling Information Bureau.

JUST LIKE IT USED TO BE

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP)— Sixty persons gathered in the chapel of Greensboro's First Baptist Church for prayer meeting prior to the opening of series of revival meetings.

The Rev. Dale Smith, assistant pastor, was conducting the service when the church's minister of recreation, the Rev. James Seaton, rushed in and whispered something into the Rev. Mr. Smith's ear.

"Please," the Rev. Mr. Smith told the congregation, "everyone move as close to the center of the room as possible; please close all the windows and blinds; put out the lights and several of you men stand guard at the doors."

The gathering obeyed, wondering what type of catastrophe was feared. The Rev. Mr. Smith remained quiet for a couple of minutes, then said:

World's Fair House One of Entries In 1964 'Parade'

A modified contemporary version of Formica Corp.'s official "World's Fair House" will go on display Saturday at 2042 Devon St., Northglen Heights, as one of the Parade of Homes entries.

Containing 2,400 square feet of living area, the house was built by MacKinnon Construction Co. It was built with an idea of providing scores of practical answers to housing and decorating problems.

A stone and frame structure, the house has three bedrooms, 11'2"x12'6", 11'6"x11'2" and 11x13'2". It has three bathrooms, a family room, a living room and a dining room, a kitchen, a laundry room, a recreation room, a bar, a den and a two-car garage.

One of the unusual features is the walk-in wine cellar, which is incorporated into the bar in the recreation room. A feature of the recreation room is the fireplace, constructed of Esoterica stone from a mountain 22 miles from Shoshone, Wyo.

The living room, 13'2"x20'2", faces southwest, providing a panoramic view of the mountains. The dining room is 11'8"x16'7", and the 11'8" by 16'7" kitchen is ultra modern, with skylights and a dinette.

The house's main bath also has a skylight. This bathroom is a five-piece bath, as is that off the master bedroom, which also has a separate powder room. Accessible from the reception room is a three-quarter bath.

In addition to the three bedrooms, there is a den, 12 by 15 feet, which also can be used as a spare bedroom.

Leading from the main floor of the basement area is a wide staircase. The lower level also contains a sewing center.

The World's Fair Home lot has been sodded by M and R Sodding Co., and the house furnished by the May-D&F Co.

In connection with the showing, a free trip for two to the New York World's Fair will be given away, and the first 50 persons visiting the house will receive free coaster sets.

Holiday House Rooms Represent Different Seasons

Air conditioning and a radio-controlled garage door are two features of Holiday House, constructed at 2038 Devon St. by Cox Construction Co. for this year's Parade of Homes.

Holiday House is contemporary in design and has been landscaped by Colorado Gardens.

The living room, 13 feet 4 inches by 17 feet 6 inches, has a 12-foot slate raised hearth with a moss rock fireplace. The dining room is 10 by 14½ feet in size and the kitchen has two ovens, walnut cabinets and a breakfast area. The kitchen is 11½ feet by 13¼ feet in size.

Holiday House has three upstairs bedrooms, 9½ by 12, 11½ by 12, and 12½ by 17. The bathroom is off the hall and has a built -in vanity with a lighted soffit. The bath is 7 by 7 feet insize.

Off the dining room is a covered patio, 12 feet wide and 30 feet long, which faces Pikes Peak.

The basement has a recreation room, utility room, two bedrooms and a bath, and, like the living room, the family room has a moss rock fireplace.

The three bedrooms, living room and dining room are carpeted, and there are draperies throughout the house. The lower recreation room has daylight.

Use of Paint Is Old Art, Drawings Show

Did you know that paint has been in use for at least 20,000 years, and possibly 200,000? Archaeologists discovered colored drawings of bison on the smooth walls of caves at Les Eyzies in Southern Europe, says the National Paint, Varnish and Lacquer Association. Experts believe that the drawings, never touched by sunlight, are at least 20,000 years old and may possibly have been there for as long as 200,000 years. The pictures were skillfully done in tones of red, brown and black, made evidently from earth pigments.

Pieces of Cardboard Make Paint Trays

Before you embark on your next painting project, collect some shirt cardboards or tear some cardboard boxes into squares or rectangles. Then, when you paint, you'll have a ready-made, disposable tray on which to put your paint can, says the National Paint, Varnish and Lacquer Association. Not only will it catch any drips that may slide down the outside of the can, but it will give you something to hold under the can when you're moving it.

Paint Rollers Make Job Easy If Used Right

Paint rollers have made decorating easier than ever, and two important tips will add to the appearance of the finished job.

The customer services division of Armstrong Paints recommends starting the job in the upper part of the wall and using an upward stroke of the roller. For a smooth finish, proceed from an unpainted area and roll the paint toward a previously coated area. On a horizontal surface, start the roller in front of you and work away from yourself toward a painted area.

Secondly, be sure you have the right equipment. Rollers made of lambswool are intended for oil or alkyd based paints and they will curl and mat if used with water based coatings. The effect on the wall will be mottled. Rollers made of synthetic fibers are recommended for use with the water based latex coatings.

Armstrong recommends discussing your decorating project with a reliable paint dealer and following his advice — as well as directions on the can — for selecting and using both coatings and tools.

NAHB Begins Regular Housing Starts Forecast

The economics department of the National Association of Home Builders has extended the scope of housing starts forecasting by inaugurating a new, quarterly service in the NAHB Journal of Homebuilding.

The first report, published in a copyright article in the JOURNAL's June issue, covers 19 metropolitan areas. It forecasts a 7 per cent increase in single family starts and a 6 per cent drop in multi-family starts during the first nine months of 1964 in the areas covered. A breakdown, by each of the three quarters and 19 areas, is published.

The forecast encompasses about 40 per cent of the total U. S. starts for the period. It is hoped the service can be expanded to cover upwards of 60 per cent of all starts in future reports.

The forecast is based on data gathered from reliable sources by volunteer housing economists in the metropolitan areas surveyed. However, no responsibility is assumed or implied to those sources where use is made of the information.

The reports, by quarters, give an indication of local and national trends in starts (not building permits) for use as guidelines to those in the housing industry in their planning.

More than 135 million tons of foodstuffs are moved and processed by the American marketing system have an annual value of more than $60 billion.

Simple Installation Can Change Yard

Sometimes a simple installation will change the character of a yard. A settee with a high back serves as a lounging area and also as a separator between use areas. Douglas fir is a good wood for these installations because it is easily worked, can be bought at any lumber yard and lasts well in the open.

COMPLEMENT TO HOME — The redwood privacy screen pictured here keeps out dust and street noises while allowing sunlight and fesh air to pass through, and the stepped redwood deck turns a sloping yard into a more useable level area well-suited for outdoor entertaining. The screen was designed by the University of California Landscape Design Club.

Courtyard in Home Is Fresh Idea From Spain

If Columbus and his sailors had stuck around these parts, we might now be living in Spanish - style houses with walled - in outdoor yards. And it wouldn't have been bad at all.

Besides the lord - of - the - manor feeling it can give to the owner of the smallest plot of land, a walled courtyard is just what American families need to keep humans in or out — whichever is more desirable.

Such an area was observed at the Spanish Pavilion at the New York World's Fair where an outer restaurant was planned within walls. There is nothing much to the tiny spot, one of three eating places in the fabulous building. But it has atmosphere, tranquility and a brightness that is contagious, all for the price of a cinder block, stucco covered wall and a few geraniums.

The yard, about 30 feet square, is enclosed by three walls about 10 - feet high with an entrance on the fourth wall into the building. The cinderblock walls are coated with bright white stucco in a rough, textured finish.

A row of bright red geraniums seems to be growing right out of the wall at about the eight - foot level. But this cheerful bit of charm, it develops, was accomplished by framing the area at that point with metal lathe, and lining it with a copper trough for the plants. Stucco was then put over lathe and cinderblock.

The floor is large two - foot squares of precast, unpainted concrete.

Overhead, a yellow and white wide - striped convas lies flat. The canvas can be rolled back when desired. The yellow and white picks up the sunshine perfectly and illuminates the yard brightly, but not dazzlingly, picking up reflection from the bright white walls.

Some variation of this courtyard idea could fit into almost any architectural scheme. It is a delightful outdoor dining place for the family and a good play - place for small children and teen - agers any time. It's just the right place for a summer party.

Though it would be particularly useful in any area which lacks backyard privacy, where lawn meets lawn, as in developments, it is made - to - order for contemporary houses. Color it pink, blue, yellow or whatever outside, or keep it all white, inside and out.

If the squared - off effect seems too modern for one's house, the wall could be embellished on top with masonry lished on top with masonry trimmings, American - style. Arches, curves and peaked designs in finishing pieces could do the trick.

Petite Bathroom Ideal in Home With Tiny Space

In less space than is needed for a standard size bed, you can have a full extra bathroom.

New, compact plumbing fixtures make it possible for homeowners to have a complete bath, not a powder room, installed in less than 24 square feet of space, says the Plumbing Heating - Cooling Information Bureau.

Providing maximum comfort and convenience in a minimum area, the space - saving trio consists of a tub - shower combination, a lavatory and water closet.

The unit is about 42 - inches square and has an integral seat in one or more corners.

Various types of lavatories are manufactured especially for use in the compact second bath. A triangular model fits neatly into a corner. Oval and rectangular lavatories in compact sizes are also available. All of them are designed to save space, while offering full convenience.

The reduced front - to - back dimensions of most modern water closets make them ideal for working in limited areas. One-piece construction and close coupling of two - piece units accounts for the decreased size of newer water closets.

Still another space - saver is the triangular water closet, which is designed to fit snuggly into a corner space.

For best usage of minimum space, the Bureau adds, contact an experienced plumbing contractor. His knowledge of practical bathroom plans will enable him to install the second bath in almost any available space.

Rough Tests Show That Tile Can Take It

"Will it stand up?"

This is the question most homeowners are asking themselves as more and more new products hit the market.

One basic building product that has really been put through the testing wringer is American-made ceramic floor and wall tile. They are among the most carefully tested of modern building materials, being subjected to continuing tests for shock, warpage and wear resistance.

First is the thermal shock test in which glazed wall tile is heated to about 300 deg. F. for 30 minutes, allowed to cool at room temperature for 15 minutes and then returned to the oven. This cycle is repeated five times. The test tile is then examined for cracking or other signs of disintegration.

Domestic tile manufacturers next submit their product to a warpage test, using a feeler gauge capable of measuring to 1,000th of an inch. A similar test for "wedging" is also used to weed out any out - of - square tiles that might produce grout joints of irregular width.

In the test for wear resistance, unglazed tile is subjected to 1,000 revolutions against hard abrasive wheels. The resulting weight loss cannot exceed 2½ grams. The strict requirement that it must pass this test is one of the reasons why ceramic floor tile produced in the United States is 30 times as durable as most other floor surfacing materials.

Using water on wood floors is the quickest way to ruin their natural beauty and reduce their useful life, warns the National Association of Home Builders.

Colored Plumbing Fixtures Gaining In Popularity

Not long ago, having colored plumbing fixtures installed in your home was considered 'adventurous.' Today, about half of all fixtures sold are in color.

One reason is the new dimension color brings to bathroom and kitchen decorating. Endlessly variable color schemes make it a pleasure to plan and use facilities. Pleasing pastels open the door to artful decorating where walls, floor covering, towels and curtains can be fasionable blended or contrasted with fixtures.

And color durability is assured, says the Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Information Bureau. Colors are fused to fixtures and cannot fade. In addition, all color fixtures are acid-resisting.

Manufacturers maintain continous color fidelity by employing an electronic "eye." The "eye" scans china glazes and enamels as they are being prepared. It detects color variations invisible to the human eye.

It is small wonder, then, that many of today's new homes use colored fixtures for bathrooms, powder rooms and kitchens.

But if you still want white, the Bureau advises, use bold colors in decorating. In the bathroom, for example, the white tub, lavatory and water closet are set off to best advantage by using deep-hued wall tile and flooring. Set in a colorful room, white fixtures look whiter.

White fixtures can also be acid-resisting. But this benefit must be specified. When consulting your plumbing contractor about building or remodeling, be sure to request an acid-resistant finish for white fixtures.

In less space than is needed for a standard size bed, you can have a full extra bathroom.

New, compact plumbing fixtures make it possible for homeowners to have a complete bath, not a powder room, installed in less than 24 square feet of space, says the Plumbing Heating - Cooling Information Bureau.

Providing maximum comfort and convenience in a minimum area, the space - saving trio consists of a tub - shower combination, a lavatory and water closet.

The unit is about 42 - inches square and has an integral seat in one or more corners.

Various types of lavatories are manufactured especially for use in the compact second bath. A triangular model fits neatly into a corner. Oval and rectangular lavatories in compact sizes are also available. All of them are designed to save space, while offering full convenience.

The reduced front - to - back dimensions of most modern water closets make them ideal for working in limited areas. One-piece construction and close coupling of two - piece units accounts for the decreased size of newer water closets.

Still another space - saver is the triangular water closet, which is designed to fit snuggly into a corner space.

For best usage of minimum space, the Bureau adds, contact an experienced plumbing contractor. His knowledge of practical bathroom plans will enable him to install the second bath in almost any available space.

Rough Tests Show That Tile Can Take It

"Will it stand up?"

This is the question most homeowners are asking themselves as more and more new products hit the market.

One basic building product that has really been put through the testing wringer is American-made ceramic floor and wall tile. They are among the most carefully tested of modern building materials, being subjected to continuing tests for shock, warpage and wear resistance.

First is the thermal shock test in which glazed wall tile is heated to about 300 deg. F. for 30 minutes, allowed to cool at room temperature for 15 minutes and then returned to the oven. This cycle is repeated five times. The test tile is then examined for cracking or other signs of disintegration.

Domestic tile manufacturers next submit their product to a warpage test, using a feeler gauge capable of measuring to 1,000th of an inch. A similar test for "wedging" is also used to weed out any out - of - square tiles that might produce grout joints of irregular width.

In the test for wear resistance, unglazed tile is subjected to 1,000 revolutions against hard abrasive wheels. The resulting weight loss cannot exceed 2½ grams. The strict requirement that it must pass this test is one of the reasons why ceramic floor tile produced in the United States is 30 times as durable as most other floor surfacing materials.

Using water on wood floors is the quickest way to ruin their natural beauty and reduce their useful life, warns the National Association of Home Builders.

Colored Plumbing Fixtures Gaining In Popularity

Not long ago, having colored plumbing fixtures installed in your home was considered 'adventurous.' Today, about half of all fixtures sold are in color.

One reason is the new dimension color brings to bathroom and kitchen decorating. Endlessly variable color schemes make it a pleasure to plan and use facilities. Pleasing pastels open the door to artful decorating where walls, floor covering, towels and curtains can be fasionable blended or contrasted with fixtures.

And color durability is assured, says the Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Information Bureau Colors are fused to fixtures and cannot fade. In addition, all color fixtures are acid-resisting.

Manufacturers maintain continous color fidelity by employing an electronic "eye." The "eye" scans china glazes and enamels as they are being prepared. It detects color variations invisible to the human eye.

It is small wonder, then, that many of today's new homes use colored fixtures for bathrooms, powder rooms and kitchens.

But if you still want white, the Bureau advises, use bold colors in decorating. In the bathroom, for example, the white tub, lavatory and water closet are set off to best advantage by using deep-hued wall tile and flooring. Set in a colorful room, white fixtures look whiter.

White fixtures can also be acid-resisting. But this benefit must be specified. When consulting your plumbing contractor about building or remodeling, be sure to request an acid-resistant finish for white fixtures.

Garden Sitting Room Ideal for Summer Loafing

Summer is for loafing. It's for tall iced drinks, scandals and shorts, lounge chairs, and for living outdoors in the secluded serenity of your own garden.

Any yard, no matter how small or exposed to view, offers adequate space for a garden sitting room. For most families, the biggest problem involved is arranging the space for maximum use — and doing it with low cost and upkeep.

A good idea which has blossomed this year is to put the lounge area at the back or side of the garden, directly against the property line. Here, a fence will give complete privacy to the patio without need for additional screening, as if often necessary for house-attached patios and decks.

The fence itself needs to be head-high, and a solid board pattern will offer the most seclusion. It can be built with 1x6 Douglas fir or cedar boards applied to a regular fence frame of 4x4 posts and 2x4 rails. Painted a soft spruce blue, the fence becomes a charming accent wall for the outdoor room, and a perfect place to hang seashell mosaics or sand sculptures.

To keep the garden sitting room cool throughout the day, it's smart to add a sunshade canopy. This can be built with a simple post and beam framework using fir 4x4s for posts and doubled 2x6s for the perimeter beams. Cross beams can be single 2x6s. The skeleton can be topped with translucent plastic panels — white or yellow is best; dark colors tend to trap heat underneath — or a slat roof could be used. One-by-twos or one-by-fours are recommended for a slat roof and are spaced a half inch apart so that light is filtered and air can circulate freely.

If the house next door is two story or set on a higher grade than your own home, the canopy will do more than shade your garden room; it will also give more privacy to the area.

The floor of the sitting room can be either paved or wood decked. Paving works well if the land is level and smooth, but building a wood deck is the simplest means of coping with a sloping grade or rocky soil.

NEW YORK (UPI) —Evans Rule Co. stockholders Monday approved the proposed acquisition of Aristocrat Leather Products Inc., of Newark, N.J.

Your Backyard Bigger Than You Think, Expert Says

The problem of recreation space for a growing-up family is one facing an increasing number of homeowners whose dwellings are in the "overcrowded" category.

One solution: make more effective use of outdoor areas. No matter how limited such areas are, they are usually much larger than any available indoor space. According to Martin Vasos, outdoor living specialist for the Flexalum division of Bridgeport Brass Company, much can be done with the average 60 by 100 foot lot with a backyard area of about 3,500 square feet. There's enough room, Vasos says, for the following:

1. A covered patio. A patio cover made of sturdy aluminum in attractive pastel colors reflects sunlight away. Because of the protection of patio cover, outdoor furniture can be of the simple, low-cost variety and do double duty for daytime relaxing and evening entertaining. When rain intrudes on a barbecue party, the grill can be brought under the roof and the party can continue.

During the summer, late spring and early fall, the covered patio area can serve as an outdoor dining or snack area and also be used for teenage dance parties. Mom could use it for jobs like sewing or shelling peas. And it would be a cool oasis for hot, sweaty Dad when he comes home from work.

2. Shade trees for privacy and to protect patio from low afternoon sun. During late fall and winter, leafless trees allow sun to warm area.

3. A cool garden that serves as an early morning retreat during the summer.

4. Sunbathing furniture and umbrella covered table for outdoor snacks.

5. Portable barbecue. This takes up little space and can be moved to desired cooking area.

6. A regulation-size shuffleboard court. A relaxation sports area for the whole family.

7. Basketball practice area for the younger children.

8. All-purpose greensward. This can serve for volley-ball badminton, golf-putting or lawn loafing by adults.

9. High fence for privacy and to block morning sun.

10. Supply closet for nets, paddles and other athletic equipment.

NEW YORK (UPI)—Cochran Equipment & Service Co., Thursday announced it has changed its corporate name to Anaconda Equipment & Service Co.

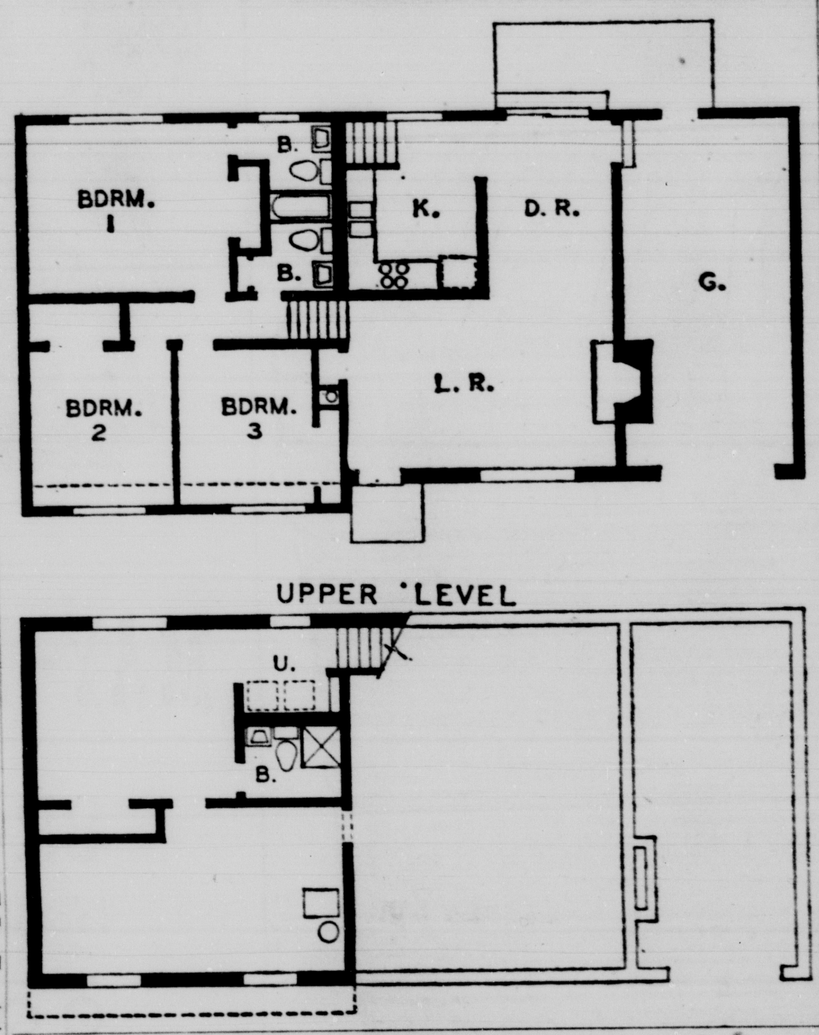
SPLIT LEVEL — This split level, the Pamela, has been constructed for Colorado Springs' 1964 Parade of Homes at 1560 Keaton Lane by Davis-Becker Construction Co. Inc. It has fireplace in the living room. The kitchen has a dishwasher, and there are a finished den and bath in the basement and room for a bedroom. The house has 2½ baths. It can be financed through VA or FHA.



When You Build, Leave Something For Landscaping

If you're going to build this spring or summer, don't put it all in the house. Leave something over for landscaping.

This is the advice of Lester Lytton, outdoor living specialist for the Flexalum division of Bridgeport Brass Company, who points out that a well-landscaped house has a premium value in today's real estate market.

A modest investment in a sound landscaping plan at the outset, he says, will grow into a major asset over a 10-year period and set your house apart in a way you'll be proud of.

You needn't wait until the house is complete. Even while it is still in the planning stage, a landscape artist can be tremendously helpful in assuring the best eventual use of your land. Then later, working with your architect or builder, he can create outdoor areas to complement the rooms and give you the added living space that is so important during the warm months of the year.

A paved patio or terrace should be a part of the original house plan, the Flexalum specialist states, to be sure it is properly related to living and dining areas. A small structural change, like shifting a door or substituting a sliding glass panel for a window, will cost little or nothing if planned early but a lot if neglected till the house is finished.

A custom aluminum patio cover and screening will make this important area usable in all weather, day and night, and assure the family of maximum outdoor enjoyment this first summer.

If there is no landscape artist in your area, or if his services come too high for your pocketbook, you will find that the local nurseryman from whom you will probably buy your plantings can give you sound advice.

For information on patio covers, a free booklet is available by writing to "Awning Booklet," c-o Bridgeport Brass Company, Bridgeport 2, Connecticut.

Home Visitors' Ideas Help Build Future Houses

What kind of a home would you like to see built in the future?

Your ideas may start a revolutionary trend in house design. Home builders constantly are conducting surveys to learn what people want in the way of a new home. They want to build the kind of house buyers seek.

The best way to make your opinions known is to talk to the builder or his representative when you inspect one of 1964's new homes. Tell him what you like about the new home — and what you dislike.

Cost is a major item in determining how much house a family buys. Were it not for the need to hold down costs, the sky would be the limit in size and equipment.

When you visit a new home, tell the builder what features you would forego, which ones you consider a necessity, and what optional features you would be willing to pay more for if you could have them.

Bulders will welcome tips like these — and you can have a voice in the design of the home of the future.

There Are Many Ways to Curb Noise in Home

By DOROTHEA M. BROOKS

NEW YORK (UPI) — Noise is unwanted or disagreeable sound.

Noise is the clash and clatter, hum and roar of the kitchen at mealtime as ventilating fan, dishwasher, garbage disposal and blender motors whirr; metal cabinet doors slam; pots, pans and dishes bang against hard - surfaced counters. It is the thumping and scuffling feet, the laughter and squeals, the blaring record player in the recreation room.

Noise is the whine of power saw and pounding hammer in the workshop. It's the rush of water in plumbing lines, banging in steam lines, the starting and stopping of noisy motors in furnaces, water pumps, air conditioners. It is unwanted voices from other rooms intruding on the quiet of bedroom or study.

Noise is the multitude of extraneous sounds that create an aggravating, almost universal problem in the home—a problem the experts say is not only a nuisance but may even contribute to physical and mental disturbances ranging from anxieties to ulcers.

Now a program is under way to encourage the building of "Quiet Homes."

The Insulation Board Institute, whose 14 member companies account for about 95 per cent of all domestically produced insulation board products, is sponsoring promotion of quiet homes and has come up with a set of qualification standards as a construction guide for builders.

To include the minimum requirements in a new home, the IBI says, costs less than 2 per cent of the cost of the home—or less than $400 for a $20,000 home. Including both minimum requirements and "desirable options" in a $20,000 home would increase the cost by less than $700.

The minimum requirements, as outlined by the IBI provide for sound - deadening insulation of walls of kitchen, family or recreation room, and family bathroom which are adjacent to other living areas. Walls are to be tightly constructed to prevent sound leaks, with caulking and sealing around all electrical, plumbing and mechanical penetrations into and from those sound conditioned rooms. Doors in the rooms are to be heavy or solid core with perimeter gaskets and tight fitting tresholds.

Resilient mountings are to be installed under all noisy appliances. Back of in - the - wall medicine cabinets are to be covered with sound-deadening material. Sound channels through walls via back-to-back electrical outlets are to be eliminated. Cushioning material is required between pipe hangers and major plumbing connections to the building. Piping of sufficient size or air-charged cylinders are to be used to reduce water pressure noises.

Among the desirable options the IBI mentions:

Use of quiet operating dishwasher, garbage disposer, washer and dryer units. Quiet operating hardware on cabinets. Quiet flush toilets, quiet central or individual air conditioning units and heating plants, mounted properly on gaskets or resilient material and isolated with sound-deadening material and with noise-reducing sleeves to connect heating and cooling units to ducts.

Noise control consideration to floor surfaces in hallways, on stairs and in all high traffic areas. Silent light switches rather than the "loud snap" kind.

Separate room air ducts to reduce reverberating noise from room to room. Insulation board sheathing on all outside walls. Thorough packing or caulking of window and door frames. Use of double glazed windows or storm sash. Solid core doors for all outside entrances. Weatherstripping on all doors, windows and other openings to the outside.

The layout of the home should provide for as great separation as possible of noisy rooms from quiet rooms.

ROARING TWENTIES

Although 1964 will prove to be a great year for new apartment construction, building authorities at Allied Chemical's Barrett Division point out that builders will have to go some to surpass the record year of 1927, when 44 per cent of all new housing starts were apartment buildings.

Building 100,000 houses adds $1.2 billion in direct construction expenditures to the economy.

There Are Many Ways to Curb Noise in Home

By DOROTHEA M. BROOKS

NEW YORK (UPI) — Noise is unwanted or disagreeable sound.

Noise is the clash and clatter, hum and roar of the kitchen at mealtime as ventilating fan, dishwasher, garbage disposal and blender motors whirr; metal cabinet doors slam; pots, pans and dishes bang against hard - surfaced counters. It is the thumping and scuffling feet, the laughter and squeals, the blaring record player in the recreation room.

Noise is the whine of power saw and pounding hammer in the workshop. It's the rush of water in plumbing lines, banging in steam lines, the starting and stopping of noisy motors in furnaces, water pumps, air conditioners. It is unwanted voices from other rooms intruding on the quiet of bedroom or study.

Noise is the multitude of extraneous sounds that create an aggravating, almost universal problem in the home—a problem the experts say is not only a nuisance but may even contribute to physical and mental disturbances ranging from anxieties to ulcers.

Now a program is under way to encourage the building of "Quiet Homes."

The Insulation Board Institute, whose 14 member companies account for about 95 per cent of all domestically produced insulation board products, is sponsoring promotion of quiet homes and has come up with a set of qualification standards as a construction guide for builders.

To include the minimum requirements in a new home, the IBI says, costs less than 2 per cent of the cost of the home—or less than $400 for a $20,000 home. Including both minimum requirements and "desirable options" in a $20,000 home would increase the cost by less than $700.

The minimum requirements, as outlined by the IBI provide for sound - deadening insulation of walls of kitchen, family or recreation room, and family bathroom which are adjacent to other living areas. Walls are to be tightly constructed to prevent sound leaks, with caulking and sealing around all electrical, plumbing and mechanical penetrations into and from those sound conditioned rooms. Doors in the rooms are to be heavy or solid core with perimeter gaskets and tight fitting tresholds.

Acoustical ceiling tile is to be used in kitchen, family room and hallways.

Resilient mountings are to be installed under all noisy appliances. Back of in - the - wall medicine cabinets are to be covered with sound-deadening material. Sound channels through walls via back-to-back electrical outlets are to be eliminated. Cushioning material is required between pipe hangers and major plumbing connections to the building. Piping of sufficient size or air-charged cylinders are to be used to reduce water pressure noises.

Among the desirable options the IBI mentions:

Use of quiet operating dishwasher, garbage disposer, washer and dryer units. Quiet operating hardware on cabinets. Quiet flush toilets, quiet central or individual air conditioning units and heating plants, mounted properly on gaskets or resilient material and isolated with sound-deadening material and with noise-reducing sleeves to connect heating and cooling units to ducts.

Noise control consideration to floor surfaces in hallways, on stairs and in all high traffic areas. Silent light switches rather than the "loud snap" kind.

Separate room air ducts to reduce reverberating noise from room to room. Insulation board sheathing on all outside walls. Thorough packing or caulking of window and door frames. Use of double glazed windows or storm sash. Solid core doors for all outside entrances. Weatherstripping on all doors, windows and other openings to the outside.

The layout of the home should provide for as great separation as possible of noisy rooms from quiet rooms.

ROARING TWENTIES

Although 1964 will prove to be a great year for new apartment construction, building authorities at Allied Chemical's Barrett Division point out that builders will have to go some to surpass the record year of 1927, when 44 per cent of all new housing starts were apartment buildings.

Building 100,000 houses adds $1.2 billion in direct construction expenditures to the economy.

Home Visitors' Ideas Help Build Future Houses

What kind of a home would you like to see built in the future?

Your ideas may start a revolutionary trend in house design. Home builders constantly are conducting surveys to learn what people want in the way of a new home. They want to build the kind of house buyers seek.

The best way to make your opinions known is to talk to the builder or his representative when you inspect one of 1964's new homes. Tell him what you like about the new home — and what you dislike.

Cost is a major item in determining how much house a family buys. Were it not for the need to hold down costs, the sky would be the limit in size and equipment.

When you visit a new home, tell the builder what features you would forego, which ones you consider a necessity, and what optional features you would be willing to pay more for if you could have them.

Bulders will welcome tips like these — and you can have a voice in the design of the home of the future.

When You Build, Leave Something For Landscaping

If you're going to build this spring or summer, don't put it all in the house. Leave something over for landscaping.

This is the advice of Lester Lytton, outdoor living specialist for the Flexalum division of Bridgeport Brass Company, who points out that a well-landscaped house has a premium value in today's real estate market.

A modest investment in a sound landscaping plan at the outset, he says, will grow into a major asset over a 10-year period and set your house apart in a way you'll be proud of.

You needn't wait until the house is complete. Even while it is still in the planning stage, a landscape artist can be tremendously helpful in assuring the best eventual use of your land. Then later, working with your architect or builder, he can create outdoor areas to complement the rooms and give you the added living space that is so important during the warm months of the year.

A paved patio or terrace should be a part of the original house plan, the Flexalum specialist states, to be sure it is properly related to living and dining areas. A small structural change, like shifting a door or substituting a sliding glass panel for a window, will cost little or nothing if planned early but a lot if neglected till the house is finished.

A custom aluminum patio cover and screening will make this important area usable in all weather, day and night, and assure the family of maximum outdoor enjoyment this first summer.

If there is no landscape artist in your area, or if his services come too high for your pocketbook, you will find that the local nurseryman from whom you will probably buy your plantings can give you sound advice.

For information on patio covers, a free booklet is available by writing to "Awning Booklet," c-o Bridgeport Brass Company, Bridgeport 2, Connecticut.

La Rita, built by Vrooman Homes Co. at 2015 Devon St. for this year's Parade of Homes, is a ranch style house with fireplaces upstairs and down, panelling in the recreation room and eating area, a built-in planning center and a separate utility area.

La Rita has four bedrooms, two of them 10 by 12 feet in size, one 15 by 15½ and one 12 by 15½. Off the hall leading to the bedrooms is a three-piece bath. The master bedroom also has a three-piece bath and there is a bathroom on the lower level, where the family room is located.

The family room, 10 by 12 feet in size, has eating space and a snack bar.

La Rita has a 12 by 12 patio and a covered entryway. The garage has 422 square feet.

The kitchen features custom-built cabinets and a planning center.

La Rita has a basement, of which 764 square feet is finished and 442 square feet unfinished.

Ceramic Tile Gains Favor for Counter Tops

Ceramic tile has moved into the kitchen as a countertop work surface. New epoxy tile adhesives and grouts have made it easier to install the tile, as well as provide resistance to heat, chemicals and stains.

The tiles can be installed over ¼-inch exterior grade plywood or over the previous surface as long as it is solidly attached. If plywood is used, ¼-inch gaps should be left between the sheets. These gaps are filled with epoxy setting material to insure that there is no shifting at a later time. The setting material also is spread on the plywood in a ¼-inch coat and the tile pressed firmly into it.

The mortar should be allowed to set overnight, after which epoxy grouting material is spread on the faces of the tiles and into the joints with a trowel or a putty knife with a wide blade. The surplus epoxy is washed off the face of the tiles and off the trowel or knife with warm water.

Actually, there are two types of epoxy mortor, one known as AAR-11, the other as UG-11. Either can be used for both setting the tiles and for grouting, but AAR-11 is perferred for the setting, UG-11 for the grouting. They are made by different manufacturers in different brands, so it's a good idea to check the label for precise instructions on its use. No matter what kind you get, it will come into part-part packages, with the smaller unit being added to the larger unit and stirred in just prior to using.

Ceramic mosaic tile comes in square and rectangular shapes either one inch or two inches in size. Extra-duty glazed tile usually is 4¼ inches square. Either can be used on kitchen countertops and back-splash units. Various colors and designs are available.

'Mediterranean' Built Especially For 1964 Parade

Central air conditioning is one of the features of the traditional contemporary home constructed at 2022 Devon St. by Wilkins, Nelson and Wilkins for the 1964 Parade of Homes opening here Saturday.

Airconditioning, however, is but one of many features in the home, which has a paving brick entry, and paving brick patio, which is covered, outside the family room, which is 20 by 14 feet in size. The patio is covered.

An 8-foot-long fireplace with a copper and walnut canopy highlights the south wall of the living room, which is 21 by 23 feet, 4 inches, in size. The east and west walls are all glass, with a glass door in the west wall leading to a covered brick patio.

This house was especially designed and built for the 1964 parade.

A special feature is the extra-strength and super-insulating wall construction, designed for superior soundproofing qualities. This is the first house in Colorado using AMPCO wall panels, both interior and exterior. The panels are "sandwich" type, made in 2x8 and 4x8 sections with studs built in along with 3¾ polystyrene insulation. Cross sections of the panels will be on display at the house.

Additional features are the exterior of moss rock and redwood board-and-batten, with hand-split cedar shake shingle roof; a brick courtyard in front carried through into a polished brick entrance foyer; a master suite feature both sleeping area and lounge area and the master bath with vanity-dressing area and double lavatories, the washer-dryer location in the bedroom wing, the decorator ceiling-hinged wall panels between the living and dining rooms so they may be used as two rooms or as one, and the Mediterranean-Spanish decor.

The dining room is 10 feet 6 inches by 16 feet 8 inches, and the kitchen, 11 by 11, is equipped with Frigidaire appliances.

This home has four bedrooms, 20 feet by 10 feet, 13 feet by 10 feet, 13 feet by 20 feet and 14 feet by 14 feet. The bath off the master bedroom has two lavatories, closet and dressing area. The main bath in the bedroom area is 8 by 14 feet in size and has two lavatories, closet and dressing area also. There also is a 4 by 5 powder room.

The family room is 20 by 14 and the double garage is 20 by 24 with a 4 by 10 storage area.

All rooms except the kitchen, three baths, four bedrooms and den are carpeted, and there are drapes at all windows.

RFK Asked to Stay in Justice Department

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson rejected an offer by Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy to serve the administration in South Viet Nam, it was learned today.

Reliable sources confirmed a New York Times report that Kennedy had made the offer in a letter to the President, and that Johnson had telephoned Kennedy, expressing warm gratitude but turning down the offer and asking Kennedy to remain in the Justice Department.

There has been speculation that Kennedy is being considered as a vice-presidential running mate for Johnson this year. There has been equal talk that Johnson and Kennedy do not get along well. In the light of these reports, the sources said, Johnson did not want to be viewed as sending Kennedy out of the country during the political season.

Soviet Refugee Asks Johnson for Help

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)—A Soviet engineer who defected to West Germany in 1956 and who calls President Johnson his last hope in bringing his wife and daughter out of the Soviet Union, managed to get an appeal to the President during Johnson's visit here.

A letter in which Anatol Michelson described his plight was given to the President just after he stepped out of a helicopter Wednesday en route to speak to the convention of the Communication Workers of America.

Tight security precautions kept Michelson, 45, from delivering the letter personally, but it was handed to the President by a reporter.

In the letter, Michelson explained "deep political convictions" led him to defect in 1956, while in a Soviet tourist delegation in Vienna, Austria.

Since June 1956, before his appeal to the American Embassy for asylum was granted, Michelson has not seen his wife, Galina, 43, nor his daughter, Olga, now 16.

Low Bids Given for University Building

BOULDER (AP) — Denver contractors were low bidders on a 130-unit apartment complex for married students at the University of Colorado.

Weaver Construction Co. was the apparent low bidder at $1,014,000 for the complex to be erected adjacent to a present married student housing project north of the campus.

The apparent low bidder for mechanical work was Trautman & Shreve, Inc. with $331,661, while ETS-Hokin & Galvin was low for electrical work with $147,000.

The project is being financed by a federal loan and will be repaid from rentals. No state money is involved, university officials said in announcing the bids today.

Court Orders Reinstatement Of Maj. Roberts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. Court of Appeals today ordered the army to reinstate Maj. Arch E. Roberts, who was ousted two years ago for making a speech without clearing it with the Pentagon.

The court sidestepped a decision of Roberts' claim that his constitutional rights were violated by a denial of a hearing.

The court based its reinstatement order on a 1956 law that a reserve officer, within two years of retirement qualification, could not be forced out except by a dishonorable — or less than honorable—discharge.

Roberts, a disciple of controversial retired Maj. Gen. Edwin A. Walker, was just 15 months short of completing 20 years when he was simply released from active duty on May 7, 1962.

This followed his speech on April 19, 1962, before the annual convention here of the Daughters of the American Revolution, in which he labeled Assistant Secretary of State G. Mennen Williams as soft on communism. He also was critical of Mayor Sam Yorty of Los Angeles.

Couple Back From Russia Face Charges

NEW YORK (AP) — Morris and Mollie Block, who recently returned from their adoptive home in the Soviet Union, were arrested today on passport fraud charges.

U.S. Atty. Joseph P. Hoey in Brooklyn said the arrest stemmed from a 10-count sealed indictment, handed up by a grand jury five years ago.

Judge Matthew T. Abruzzo adjourned pleading proceedings to allow the couple time to obtain an attorney. Mrs. Block was released in her own recognizance and her husband was placed in $1,000 bail.

1964 PARADE OF HOMES

This delightful version of the long-low two story is for people not on the way up — but who have already arrived! The entire plan of this home speaks of distinction.
The impressive slate entry, with its stairway to upper level and the powder room for guests, leads directly to the dream of a kitchen which is sure to stir the heart of the most particular homemaker. Unexpectedly there is a breakfast room and a walk-in pantry.
The living and dining rooms offer ample space for formal entertaining, while the family room is accented by built in book shelves and the cheer of the fireplace providing the perfect setting for family fun or informal entertaining.
On the second floor are five unbelievably large bedrooms. The main bath is of gleaming ceramic tile with a luxurious double vanity. The master bedroom enjoys a personal dressing room and private bath.
There is a surplus, if possible, of closet space — room for linen and three bedrooms have large double closets.
The full basement offers space for future play rooms, hobby rooms and a bath.

Shepard Styled Homes Inc., is proud to present our 8th annual entry in the Parade — and invite you to visit our "Equal in Quality" Model Homes in Pikes Peak Park. Price Range $14,950 to $22,500.

YOU CAN SEE WHY
Shepard STYLED HOMES
IS THE HOME TO BUY!
1964 PARADE OF HOMES

This delightful version of the long-low two story is for people not on the way up — but who have already arrived! The entire plan of this home speaks of distinction.
The impressive slate entry, with its stairway to upper level and the powder room for guests, leads directly to the dream of a kitchen which is sure to stir the heart of the most particular homemaker. Unexpectedly there is a breakfast room and a walk-in pantry.
The living and dining rooms offer ample space for formal entertaining, while the family room is accented by built in book shelves and the cheer of the fireplace providing the perfect setting for family fun or informal entertaining.
On the second floor are five unbelievably large bedrooms. The main bath is of gleaming ceramic tile with a luxurious double vanity. The master bedroom enjoys a personal dressing room and private bath.
There is a surplus, if possible, of closet space — room for linen and three bedrooms have large double closets.
The full basement offers space for future play rooms, hobby rooms and a bath.
Shepard Styled Homes Inc., is proud to present our 8th annual entry in the Parade — and invite you to visit our "Equal in Quality" Model Homes in Pikes Peak Park. Price Range $14,950 to $22,500.

Meridian Has Features That Women Want

The Meridian, built by Stanwood Homes Inc. at 2030 Devon St., for the Parade of Homes, is modern in design, has a courtyard entry and a sleeping area separated from the living area.

Mutschler cabinets and a walk-in pantry are features of the kitchen, which also has a gas barbecue. The kitchen is 12'3x12'6" in size, and the dining room is 11 feet by 12½ feet.

The Meridian's living room is 14'7" wide and 23'3" long.

According to Home Builders Association magazine, the Meridian includes features that most women want in a home, one of which is a floor plan making it unnecessary to walk through one room to get to another.

The bedrooms are 12x15, 11x13 and 9'9"x13'1" in size. Off the hallway is a bathroom, 8'4"x7'4", and off the master bedroom is a compartmented bathroom and dressing room, 5x11.

The Meridian's family room is 15 by 23 feet in size, and the house has a double garage, 22 by 24 feet in size.

Pink Leading Color In Plumbing Fixtures

White still accounts for about half of the sales of plumbing fixtures across the nation, says the Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Information Bureau, but the trend in colors is clear. Pink is the undisputed leader in color popularity, as has been the case for several years. Next most popular is tan. Green, yellow and blue are next in line, while gray and dark colors are chosen very infrequently by new home and modernization buyers.

Ceramic Tile Favored On Kitchen Countertops

Of all the materials available for use on kitchen countertops and backsplashes, ceramic tile is one of the most favored, says the Tile Council of America. This is because ceramic tile is burnproof, stainproof, scratchproof, dentproof and chemical-resistant, as well as colorful and durable, the Council says.

Portable Power Tools Make Shop Versatile

Portable power tools are becoming more versatile and more powerful every year. There's a portable counterpart for almost every stationary power tool.

The portable variety is no substitute for the shop models, but the portable has virtues of its own. You take the tool to the job, a characteristic of every hand tool.

Generally, portable power tools are less expensive than stationary models. But that's a generalization, and you can spend a large sum if you like.

Still the most popular unit is the electric drill. More are sold every year. Of these, the largest seller is the ¼-inch drill.

If you own an old model, it might be worth your while to look at a new one. Manufacturers have increased the power of the ¼-inch drill mightily in the last few years.

They've also made the electric drill a more sophisticated tool than it ever was before. There are drills that offer variable speeds and drills that can be reversed. There are battery operated models that are truly portable in every sense of the word.

You may want something with a little more muscle. Examine the ⅜-inch drills. They're geared down to provide a slower speed and more power in addition to having greater chuck capacity and therefore capable grinding wheels, even saws. But of handling larger drill bits.

There are, of course, accessories for electric drills that make them more verstile - sanding and buffing heads, grinding wheels, even saw. But if you do much work with any of these, consider one or more of the electric drill's portable cousins.

There are portable circular saws, saber saws, sanders and even more.

The portable circular saw won't give you the precision of a table saw, but it is powerful and rugged and will save you the time and tedium of using a hand saw when the work can't be taken to the table saw. You'll find that you can cut, trim and rip panels, boards and odd lengths of lumber right on the job site.

The saber saw has caught the fancy of handymen in recent years. Instead of a circular blade, it has a straight blade that moves up and down. It's light, handy and is able to make a lot of the cuts the circular saw will make. It's not as rugged nor as fast. But it will do things a circular saw can't — cut holes, for instance.

Sanding is a tedious job. For fine work get a finishing sander, a power unit with a flat pad on which you mount sand paper. Reciprocating sanders move the pad back and forth in a straight line. Oscillating sanders have a very slight circular motion.

New Trend in Fences Outlined in Booklet

Spring has sprung and all the world looks different in its new rainment of flowering shrubs, lawns agreening, and trees budding.

It's that time of year again, and if you are one of those procrastinators who didn't get his fences built last year, it's never too late to make a hero of yourself with your wife and neighbors.

Actually, you don't have to keep putting off the business of planning that new fence, because fence building can be a really pleasurable spring chore.

It can be made even easier if you get your hands on one of the most interesting booklets on the subject called "Fashions in Fences." This booklet can be had free of charge by simply writing to West Coast Lumbermen's Association, 1410 S. W. Morrison Street, Portland 5, Oregon. Ask for the fence booklet.

You will find all the common styles of fences shown with detailed instructions on how to build them. You'll also find some new ideas in fence design which create interesting separators between neighboring property.

Tampering With Heating System Can Be Dangerous

Homeowners should never attempt to adjust or repair the house heating boiler, particularly the controls, warns the Plumbing - Heating - Cooling Information Bureau.

Amateur tinkering can not only cause equipment damage, the Bureau points out, it can be dangerous. It is best to leave all repairs and replacements to an experienced plumbing - heating contractor. The contractor who installed your system probably left his name and telephone number posted on or near the boiler.

A wise precaution is to arrange for the inspeciton and cleaning of the heating system by a plumbing - heating contractor at least once a year. He will lubricate all moving parts and thoroughly check the operation of the controls and safety devices.

When you are planning major repairs or modernization of the heating system, again, it pays to consult a specialist for estimates and suggestions.

Palm Spanish Modern; Indirect Lighting Feature

The Palm, located at 2018 Devon St. in the Parade of Homes area, is a Spanish Modern constructed by Wol-Ham Enterprises Inc. It features indirect lighting and fireplaces in the living room and family room.

The Palm has three bedrooms and two baths. Located off the 16'x2"x19' master bedroom is an 8x8 bathroom. Off the hallway is a 4.8x8' bathroom.

In addition to the master bedroom, there are 11'4"x12'9" and 11'9"x12'9" bedrooms.

The Palm has a 16'2"x19' living room, a 11'6"x10'5" dining room and an 8x12 kitchen. Opening off the dining room is a patio, 12 feet wide and 12 feet long.

Located in the basement is a 14 by 20 family room, and the Palm has a double garage.

Landscaping has been done by Ver Hey, and sales agent for the Palm, which may be financed with a conventional loan, is Walker and Co.

Lavatory Problem Runs Hot and Cold

Turn on the hot water — now turn up the hot a bitmore— it more cold — not that much, turn up the hot a bit more — still a little too cold — turn up the hot a fraction — and presto, it's just right.

Some lavatories require the dexterity of an astronaut simply to get some water the way you want it. Often equipped with old fashioned separate faucets for hot and cold water, out - dated fixtures make washing-up a real chore.

The Plumbing - Heating - Cooling Information Bureau reports that many lavatories today use single control faucets. Combining on - off and hot - cold functions into a single lever or dial, these faucets immediately provide the right amount of water at exactly the temperature desired.

The one - hand control is easily and safely operated by any member of the family, children as well as adults. Chances of scalding are almost eliminated because the position of the handle indicates at which temperature the water will flow.

Since this modern faucet is easily controlled with just one hand, lost motions and "Faucet fiddling" are eliminated, and fuel costs are cut, too.

In addition to being a safe and highly desirable convenience, the single lever faucet is smartly styled and designed to add a modern note to your bathroom.

Use Proper Tool When You Set Out To Pry Object

For those who respect and care for their tools, there are few sadder sights than a screw driver that has been snapped in half. The user obviously has used the tool in place of a pry bar.

Since the tool was designed to withstand a twisting action, it broke.

Though pry bars or wrecking bars make few lists of basic tools, they should be in everyone's collection. These are leverage tools, designed to multiply a man's strength.

Pry bars are basically inexpensive tools, far cheaper than the tools you will ruin for the lack of one. They vary in name, not only because of different design and use but because of different manufacturers as well.

One of the most common types is the bar with a flat angled blade at one end, a hooked claw at the other. Called a pinch bar or a gooseneck riping bar, it may vary in length from 12 to 36 inches.

With the very sharp angle of the claw you can pull a nail that an ordinary claw hammer couldn't handle. You can move the bar through an arc far greater than 90 degrees, thus continuing to pull a long nail with a single stroke.

If the nail is hard to get at, use the thin, flat edge to gouge some space under the head, then use the claw. For wrecking, make an opening between planks with the blade, then use the claw to finish the wrecking.

If you are working on a finished surface and don't want to dent it, place scrap wood under bar on the scrap surface.

The straight ripping bar, looking somewhat like a gooseneck bar, has only a slight angle at the claw end, allowing you to work in tighter quarters.

There are other bars, from the massive crowbar to bars that look like small, but heavy chisels. Each has its special use.

The crowbar comes in a wide variety of lengths and price is based on weight. The biggest bars weigh about 25 lbs. You won't need one of these unless there are huge rocks to move off your hand.

There are several bars that are called ripping chisels. These resemble the ripping bar, but have an end that is machined and a notched blade for pulling nails.

Another tool made of high carbon steel is the short nail claw. The claw is machined so that it is almost a chisel and you can pound on the back sideof the bend to get a grip under a nail.

When you use a bar remember to keep the fulcrum — the support on which it rests — as close to the object that you want to move as you can.

NAHB Formulating Development Plans

Members of the National Association of Home Builders are helping formulate new approaches to community development to prevent land waste. They want to preserve the values of a country-like atmosphere while accommodating population growth.

Constructing Home Business for Builder

Constructing a home is a builder's business. Making it the best value possible is his purpose. His reputation depends on this. His integrity is his stock in trade.

Farm Magazine Carries Pictures By Local Photog

The May issue of Successful Farming magazine includes in its Homemaker section an article on the magic of seasonal change in decoration with winter and summer slip covers.

It is illustrated with two color photographs by Guy Burgess, 1428, N. Nevada Ave., of the John Slothower family room.

Home Building Material Quality Is Best Ever

The quality of today's home building materials is the best in history. They are stronger and more durable. New building materials ahve been produced by research and tested in five experimental homes constructed by the National Association of Home Builders.

Lettuce originated in western Asia and was popular with the ancient Persians, Greeks and Romans.

Housing Research Adds Value for Home Buyers

They don't build houses the way they used to.

They build them better.

According to Douglas Fir Plywood Association, the housing industry today is undergoing rapid technological changes which are having a profound effect on the way Americans are sheltered. The changes are broad in nature, affecting not only the materials with which a home is built, but also the way it looks, and the way it is used.

Regarding this rapidly expanding fund of building technology, Daniel B. Grady, chairman of the National Association of Home Builders' technical committee, says that there have been more changes in home building in the last 10 years than in the previous half century. "And," he adds, "there are likely to be more changes in the next five years than in the last 10."

"The new home market is intensely competitive," he said, "with competition both from other demands on the consumer dollar and from the variety of homes offered by builders in the same community.

"And, the demands of the American public have changed. The shelter needs of the population are pretty well satisfied —people don't buy homes anymore just because they want to get out of the rain. The new home buyer is more discriminating and demands more house performance for his dollar."

The Palm has three bedrooms and two baths. Located off the 16'x2"x19' master bedroom is an 8x8 bathroom. Off the hallway is a 4.8x8' bathroom.

In addition to the master bedroom, there are 11'4"x12'9" and 11'9"x12'9" bedrooms.

The Palm has a 16'2"x19' living room, a 11'6"x10'5" dining room and an 8x12 kitchen. Opening off the dining room is a patio, 12 feet wide and 12 feet long.

Landscaping has been done by Ver Hey, and sales agent for the Palm, which may be financed with a conventional loan, is Walker and Co.

Lavatory Problem Runs Hot and Cold

Turn on the hot water — now turn up the hot a bitmore—it more cold — not that much, turn up the hot a bit more — still a little too cold — turn up the hot a fraction — and presto, it's just right.

Some lavatories require the dexterity of an astronaut simply to get some water the way you want it. Often equipped with old fashioned separate faucets for hot and cold water, out-dated fixtures make washing-up a real chore.

Today's modern lavatory features the "mixer" type fitting, that is, a single faucet combining hot and cold water flow.

The Plumbing - Heating - Cooling Information Bureau reports that many lavatories today use single control faucets. Combining on - off and hot - cold functions into a single lever or dial, these faucets immediately provide the right amount of water at exactly the temperature desired.

The one - hand control is easily and safely operated by any member of the family, children as well as adults. Chances of scalding are almost eliminated because the position of the handle indicates at which temperature the water will flow.

Since this modern faucet is easily controlled with just one hand, lost motions and "Faucet fiddling" are eliminated, and fuel costs are cut, too.

In addition to being a safe and highly desirable convenience, the single lever faucet is smartly styled and designed to add a modern note to your bathroom.

Use Proper Tool When You Set Out To Pry Object

For those who respect and care for their tools, there are few sadder sights than a screw driver that has been snapped in half. The user obviously has used the tool in place of a pry bar.

Since the tool was designed to withstand a twisting action, it broke.

Though pry bars or wrecking bars make few lists of basic tools, they should be in everyone's collection. These are leverage tools, designed to multiply a man's strength.

Pry bars are basically inexpensive tools, far cheaper than the tools you will ruin for the lack of one. They vary in name, not only because of different design and use but because of different manufacturers as well.

One of the most common types is the bar with a flat angled blade at one end, a hooked claw at the other. Called a pinch bar or a gooseneck riping bar, it may vary in length from 12 to 36 inches.

With the very sharp angle of the claw you can pull a nail that an ordinary claw hammer couldn't handle. You can move the bar through an arc far greater than 90 degrees, thus continuing to pull a long nail with a single stroke.

If the nail is hard to get at, use the thin, flat edge to gouge some space under the head, then use the claw. For wrecking, make an opening between planks with the blade, then use the claw to finish the wrecking.

If you are working on a finished surface and don't want to dent it, place scrap wood under bar on the scrap surface.

The straight ripping bar, looking somewhat like a gooseneck bar, has only a slight angle at the claw end, allowing you to work in tighter quarters.

There are other bars, from the massive crowbar to bars that look like small, but heavy chisels. Each has its special use.

The crowbar comes in a wide variety of lengths and price is based on weight. The biggest bars weigh about 25 lbs. You won't need one of these unless there are huge rocks to move off your hand.

There are several bars that are called ripping chisels. These resemble the ripping bar, but have an end that is machined and a notched blade for pulling nails.

Another tool made of high carbon steel is the short nail claw. The claw is machined so that it is almost a chisel and you can pound on the back sideof the bend to get a grip under a nail.

When you use a bar remember to keep the fulcrum — the support on which it rests — as close to the object that you want to move as you can.

Farm Magazine Carries Pictures By Local Photog

The May issue of Successful Farming magazine includes in its Homemaker section an article on the magic of seasonal change in decoration with winter and summer slip covers.

It is illustrated with two color photographs by Guy Burgess, 1428, N. Nevada Ave., of the John Slothower family room.

Home Building Material Quality Is Best Ever

The quality of today's home building materials is the best in history. They are stronger and more durable. New building materials ahve been produced by research and tested in five experimental homes constructed by the National Association of Home Builders.

Lettuce originated in western Asia and was popular with the ancient Persians, Greeks and Romans.

Housing Research Adds Value for Home Buyers

They don't build houses the way they used to.

They build them better.

According to Douglas Fir Plywood Association, the housing industry today is undergoing rapid technological changes which are having a profound effect on the way Americans are sheltered. The changes are broad in nature, affecting not only the materials with which a home is built, but also the way it looks, and the way it is used.

Regarding this rapidly expanding fund of building technology, Daniel B. Grady, chairman of the National Association of Home Builders' technical committee, says that there have been more changes in home building in the last 10 years than in the previous half century. "And," he adds, "there are likely to be more changes in the next five years than in the last 10."

Speaking at a plywood association's seminar, Grady explained the changes in his industry.

"The new home market is intensely competitive," he said, "with competition both from other demands on the consumer dollar and from the variety of homes offered by builders in the same community.

"And, the demands of the American public have changed. The shelter needs of the population are pretty well satisfied —people don't buy homes anymore just because they want to get out of the rain. The new home buyer is more discriminating and demands more house performance for his dollar."

Study Shows Ceramic Tile Cuts Costs

Ceramic tile, because of its long life and little need for maintenance, costs from 1 to 20 cents per square foot less a year than substitute surfacing materials, according to a new authoritative cost study of floor and wall finishes.

The study, conducted by the New York cost-estimating firm of McKee-Berger-Mansueto, Inc. for the Tile Council of America, shows that the penny-here-and-penny-there maintenance expense of some "economical" finishes actually makes them cost more than ceramic tile, over the life of the building. Need for frequent replacement also runs the cost of some low-priced materials up rapidly.

However, ceramic tile, which lasts for years with little need for maintenance, was shown to cost as little as 4.5 cents per square foot a year on light-duty wall and only 33 cents per square foot a year on floors.

Savings with ceramic tile over substitute materials range from 8 to 20 cents per square foot a year on floors, and from 1 to 10 cents per square foot on walls.

"There isn't a school board, hospital board, public works builder, private constructor or corporate builder who shouln't consider the ceramic tile cost-savings proven in this study," said the Tile Council, trade association of the nation's leading ceramic tile manufacturers. "While the savings start out as pennies, over the 60-year life of a building they actually can amount to as much as $12.54 per square foot (or $62,700 for 5,000 square feet)."

The figures are based on top flight maintenance in commercial buildings and on predicated 60-year building life (however, in each case, ceramic tile savings showed up in less than 10 years and became increasingly greater each year thereafter).

Both ceramic mosaic and quarry tile floors were found to have a total cost of just 33 cents a year, compared with 41 cents a year for terrazzo, 45.5 cents for carpets, 47.5 cents for vinyl, 50.5 cents for 1-16-inch vinyl asbestos and 53.5 cents for asphalt tile. (No adjustment was made to take into account that tile and terrazzo traditionally are installed in heavier-duty areas than the other materials).

On walls, ceramic tile was found to cost 14.5 cents per square foot a year in heavy-duty use, compared to 15.5 cents for structural facing tile, 20 cents for vitreous spray coatings, and 22 cents for marble. On light-service walls requiring little maintenance (such as school corridors), ceramic tile's cost of 4.5 cents a year compared to 5.5 cents for painted masonry, 8.5 cents for painted plaster and 14.5 cents for wall coverings.

Proper Use Of Blinds Helps Keep House Cool

Whether you live in a home in the suburbs or an apartment in the city, the main problem ahead is how to keep cool during the summer months.

Primarily designed to provide maximum control of light, air and privacy, aluminum venetian blinds can help you stay comfortable during the summer, a specialist reports. According to Eleanor Kandel of the Flexalum division of Bridgeport Brass Company, venetians can keep much of the summer heat outdoors and make a room degrees cooler if properly used.

Even if you have an air conditioner, proper use of blinds will enable it to perform more efficiently, she says:

The Flexalum specialist passes along the following pointers:

1. Before you go to bed at night, close windows in non-sleeping quarters and shut venetians tight to keep out the morning sun. Often the sun begins to heat up these rooms before the family arises.

2. In sleeping rooms, adjust venetians to permit cool night air to enter while at the same time fending off the rays of the morning sun.

3. During the day keep windows and blinds closed tight in rooms facing the sun. Open windows and blinds in rooms facing shade.

4. If you leave your home for any period of time, close all windows and shut blinds tight.

Things to Keep in Mind In Planning Bathroom

When planning your new bathroom, be sure to keep needs and possible placement for these important accessories in mind: towel bars, bathtub grab bar, soap dishes, doorstop, toothbrush and tumbler holders, shelf supports. These items are all available in permanent glazed finishes to match and blend with the colors of your ceramic tiled walls and floors.

You might also keep in mind the fact that ceramic tile is available in over 250 sizes, shapes and colors.

The Mark III's living room is 13 feet wide and 17 feet, 7 inches long, and the kitchen, 12'3" by 16', has eating space.

Follow These Tips to Give Home New Look

Giving a home the individuality of one that is custom built costs less than you may think.

A few dollars wisely spent in furnishing will make a house more livable and homelike, says Jessica Thomas, venetian blinds specialist for the Flexalum division of Bridgeport Brass Company, who passes along some decorating suggestions:

1. Custom venetian blinds cost only a little more than stock blinds but give you a much wider choice of color combinations, can hide a problem window or enhance a picture window.

2. A room divider to separate the dining area from the living room enhances both rooms.

3. Finishing one wall in textured wood or brick veneer gives the house a different aspect to a person entering via the front door.

4. A flagstone entranceway is another distinctive touch.

5. Arranging furniture in activity groupings adds interest to an ordinary room. For example, the Flexalum specialist says, recreation room sofa, chairs and coffee table might be placed near picture window with color of rug matching that of venetian.

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI) — Approximately 500,000 persons move into California every year, creating a mammoth population problem, but a local planning consultant thinks he has a solution: build 22 new cities.

Daniel Cook made the suggestion to the Northern California Chapter of the American Institute of Planners. Such a project, he indicated, would offset the growing problems of overcrowded cities and deteriorating suburbs.

WINS ARMY ORDER

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Army has awarded Bendix Corp. a $5.5 million contract to make electronic equipment of classified design.

Preparing Now To Paint Allows Action Time Later

Maybe you're planning to paint in the fall. Perhaps, you are saving up some of your vacation time to do the job. You're hoping for just the right weather when you have the time available.

But will you be ready for painting when the time comes? Or will you be busy preparing to do the job while precious time slips away?

Preparation doesn't need huge chunks of time. There are things you can do for an hour or two in the evening or during some time on a weekend.

If paint is beginning to blister and peel, there's little doubt that the house needs painting. A putty knife and a scraper will do the biggest part of the work.

Use the putty knife to lift off the sections of paint that are most loose and ready to fall off. For the tougher spots, use the scraper. Once the loose paint is off, sand the edges of the spot so that they won't show through the new paint.

You may find areas in which the paint is badly cracked but not loose enough for scraping. The only way to do a complete job is to remove the paint entirely. One method is to use a blow-torch to soften the paint. This works, but it is dangerous if precautions are not taken. Remember that you are using the flame only to soften the paint, not burn it off. Keep the flame at angles to the surface and just ahead of the scraper. Keep the flame moving. Do not attempt this on a windy day. Keep water or a fire extinguisher handy. A hose attached to an outside faucet and ready to use is a wise precaution.

Chemical paint removers are slower but safer. They are also more expensive and cannot be used on large vertical surfaces.

Use a wire brush for cleaning up metal work. Cut down the gloss on trimmed surfaces such as window sills by rubbing down with steel wool.

Take care of minor repairs now. Loose boards should be nailed down Replace cracked or broken window panes. Putty windows where the old putty is loose or broken.

Calk around doors and windows and joints where two surfaces meet. Seal cracks and crevices. Moisture that enters causes your paint to blister and peel.

Ceiling Designs 'On Top' Again In Decorating

It had to happen sooner or later! In the last 15 years, home decorators have zipped through every kind of wall fad imaginable — from dark green walls to pure white, from elaborate wallpaper to simple wood panels. Recently, they've been emphasizing floor decoration, using all sorts of colorful tiles and now, in 1964, decorators are finally casting their gaze upward — to the ceiling.

Years ago, ceilings were considered as important as walls and floors. In recent times, ceilings have been treated more casually, as a necessary but uninteresting area between four walls. But today, according to decorating experts, the ceiling is once again "on top."

Bill Herbert of Allied Chemical's Barrett Division says colored ceilings are gaining in popularity over white or off-white. He recommends blue or blue-green to make a low ceiling look higher, and deep yellow or pink or even red to make a high ceiling seem more intimate.

"There's a trend this year to ceiling tiles in printed designs," says Herbert. "Patterns range from sparkling designs for modern rooms to dignified imprints for traditional rooms. For basements and dens there's still another tile, one that looks like the Travertine stone that decorated the ceiling of Mrs. Julius Caesar. These fibreboard tiles are inexpensive, and they can be put up by husband or wife on a do-it-yourself basis."

Incidentally, you can cover a badly cracked ceiling with fibreboard tiles in plain white, then repaint them in any color you want, either solid or crazy-quilt.

You can get materials and instructions for ceiling work from a lumber yard or a building supply dealer. And remember, don't be too conservative in your choice of a color or design. This year, when decorating a ceiling, the sky's the limit!

What Homeowner Should Know About Piping

Bathrooms, kitchens, home laundries and hot water heating systems are useless until good, pure water is piped to them.

Few prospective homeowners give the house piping system enough thought says the Plumbing - Heating - Cooling Information Bureau. Discuss piping in detail with the plumbing contractor doing the work on your house, the Bureau adds. It can pay handsome dividends.

First consider the service line from the city main. It costs little more to install a line one inch or more in diameter instead of three - fourths of an inch. Such a change means enough water for expansion ... adding, say, an extra bath or a water supply for the garage.

Once you've decided on adequately sized piping, try to group plumbing fixtures. If possible, plan to have a second floor bath directly above the kitchen. A downstairs powder room should be back - to - back or adjacent to the kitchen. This eliminates long, costly pipe runs.

Next, plan to insulate both hot and cold water lines. This reduces heat loss in hot water lines and prevents sweating in cold water lines that would otherwise come in contact with humid summer air. It also pays to insulate piping exposed to extreme cold. This reduces the possibility of freezing.

Make sure you request clean-out plugs wherever there is a sharp turn in direction of waste or drainage piping. This is where stoppage is most likely to occur. Clean - out plugs greatly simplify removing blocks.

Finally, never tamper with piping. Designing, installation and repair of your household piping system is a job for a competent plumbing contractor. Only he can guarantee a safe, adequate supply of water for your family.

One way to add a spot of year-round color to your yard or garden is to add touches of weather - proof ceramic tile in selected locations. Another interesting application — construct a small reflecting pool in a good location and line it with colorful tile.

This plan boasts features that should delight the most discriminating taste.

The architect has cleverly placed an entry hall to direct traffic past the living room. The visitor will be impressed with the charming living room, high-lighted by the large wood burning fireplace.

Of particular interest is the step-saving kitchen with a snack bar serving the adjacent family room, and also the built-in desk for meal planning and telephoning.

The convenient location of the laundry room is unparalled. The entrances from both the garage and the back yard allow it to double as a mud room, while the loading and unloading the washer and dryer can be sandwiched in between kitchen duties.

The bedrooms are generous in size. Two are served by the hall bath with its built-in vanity and twin basins, while the master bedroom features its own private bath and a "walk-in" closet.

WINS ARMY ORDER

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Army has awarded Bendix Corp. a $5.5 million contract to make electronic equipment of classified design.

Preparing Now To Paint Allows Action Time Later

Maybe you're planning to paint in the fall. Perhaps, you are saving up some of your vacation time to do the job. You're hoping for just the right weather when you have the time available.

But will you be ready for painting when the time comes? Or will you be busy preparing to do the job while precious time slips away?

Preparation doesn't need huge chunks of time. There are things you can do for an hour or two in the evening or during some time on a weekend.

If paint is beginning to blister and peel, there's little doubt that the house needs painting. A putty knife and a scraper will do the biggest part of the work.

Use the putty knife to lift off the sections of paint that are most loose and ready to fall off. For the tougher spots, use the scraper. Once the loose paint is off, sand the edges of the spot so that they won't show through the new paint.

You may find areas in which the paint is badly cracked but not loose enough for scraping. The only way to do a complete job is to remove the paint entirely. One method is to use a blow-torch to soften the paint. This works, but it is dangerous if precautions are not taken. Remember that you are using the flame only to soften the paint, not burn it off. Keep the flame at angles to the surface and just ahead of the scraper. Keep the flame moving. Do not attempt this on a windy day. Keep water or a fire extinguisher handy. A hose attached to an outside faucet and ready to use is a wise precaution.

Chemical paint removers are slower but safer. They are also more expensive and cannot be used on large vertical surfaces.

Use a wire brush for cleaning up metal work. Cut down the gloss on trimmed surfaces such as window sills by rubbing down with steel wool.

Take care of minor repairs now. Loose boards should be nailed down. Replace cracked or broken window panes. Putty windows where the old putty is loose or broken.

Calk around doors and windows and joints where two surfaces meet. Seal cracks and crevices. Moisture that enters causes your paint to blister and peel.

Have an adequate supply of paint, thinner, cleaning rags before you start. Brushes should be in condition to use, not caked up with paint from the previous job.

Junior Achievement Cited As Youth Education Aid

"The Junior Achievement economic program is necessary, for it teaches our young people the mechanics of our free enterprise system," William Wetzler, executive director of the Colorado Springs branch, told Exchange Club members Thursday.

His statement was echoed by Miss Toni Cina, a graduate of St. Mary's High School and for three years top achievar with the junior achievement group.

Wetzler and Miss Cina explained the operation of the national corporation at a luncheon held at the Embers.

Both described its activity as an education and an exciting example of citizenship of applied economics and business statesmanship. "Teenagers want to know about business and want to be a part of our democratic system of government," Miss Cina said.

The Junior Achievement program aids young adults 15 to 19 years old increase their business knowledge by actually controlling the destines of miniature comapnies.

Each such company is composed of approximately 15 teenagers assisted by adult businessmen advisors, who help by advising the youngsters how to organize their companies along the lines of accepted corporation procedure.

The teenagers first decide upon the type of company they wish to operate and the product they want to make. They raise money to finance the business by selling stock at 50 cents a share. Product salesman, and company officers are determined as well as workmen to make the products.

The companies operate from October to May than liquidate; paying their investors at a percentage of dividends dependant on the profits made. Most of the articles made are sold by door-to-door canvas.

Although Junior Achievement, through financial support of local business firms provides the business center plus office and production equipment, each teenage company pays a nominal sum for rent, capital deposit, and other necessary expenses.

The company also pays its members wages and commission. In short, each company goes through every step of owning and operating their own business. The entire operation serves as a supplement for regular school work and provides a "learn-by-doing" laboratory for their economic education, Wetzler said.

"The programs was started in Colorado Springs in 1954 with two companies and today has 17 teenage companies at work," Wetzler said.

Miss Cina said that when the companies liquidate in May an awards banquet is held. The awards can take the form of a scholarship or a trip.

"Attending the nationl Junior Achievement convention is exciting," she said, and provides achievors an opportunity to learn from others in the same field, she added.

Wetzler started employment with Junior Achievement in 1961, working in the midwestern states. He was transferred to Colorado Springs as executive director in July of the same year.

He holds a BA science degree from Southern Illinois University with a major in business administration. Before joining Junior Achievement, he was customer relations manager for a St. Louis, Mo. department store.

Miss Cina is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dominic Cina, 212 W. Ramona St. She has participated for three years in the achievement program.

Junior Achievement Cited As Youth Education Aid

"The Junior Achievement economic program is necessary, for it teaches our young people the mechanics of our free enterprise system," William Wetzler, executive director of the Colorado Springs branch, told Exchange Club members Thursday.

His statement was echoed by Miss Toni Cina, a graduate of St. Mary's High School and for three years top achievar with the junior achievement group.

Wetzler and Miss Cina explained the operation of the national corporation at a luncheon held at the Embers.

Both described its activity as an education and an exciting example of citizenship of applied economics and business statesmanship. "Teenagers want to know about business and want to be a part of our democratic system of government," Miss Cina said.

The Junior Achievement program aids young adults 15 to 19 years old increase their business knowledge by actually controlling the destines of miniature comapnies.

Each such company is composed of approximately 15 teenagers assisted by adult businessmen advisors, who help by advising the youngsters how to organize their companies along the lines of accepted corporation procedure.

The teenagers first decide upon the type of company they wish to operate and the product they want to make. They raise money to finance the business by selling stock at 50 cents a share. Product salesman, and company officers are determined as well as workmen to make the products.

The products usually consist of small household articles or useful equipment that can be sold at an approximate price of $2.

The companies operate from October to May than liquidate; paying their investors at a percentage of dividends dependant on the profits made. Most of the articles made are sold by door-to-door canvas.

Although Junior Achievement, through financial support of local business firms provides the business center plus office and production equipment, each teenage company pays a nominal sum for rent, capital deposit, and other necessary expenses.

The company also pays its members wages and commission. In short, each company goes through every step of owning and operating their own business. The entire operation serves as a supplement for regular school work and provides a "learn-by-doing" laboratory for their economic education, Wetzler said.

"The programs was started in Colorado Springs in 1954 with two companies and today has 17 teenage companies at work," Wetzler said.

Miss Cina said that when the companies liquidate in May an awards banquet is held. The awards can take the form of a scholarship or a trip.

"Attending the nationl Junior Achievement convention is exciting," she said, and provides achievors an opportunity to learn from others in the same field, she added.

Wetzler started employment with Junior Achievement in 1961, working in the midwestern states. He was transferred to Colorado Springs as executive director in July of the same year.

He holds a BA science degree from Southern Illinois University with a major in business administration. Before joining Junior Achievement, he was customer relations manager for a St. Louis, Mo. department store.

Miss Cina is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dominic Cina, 212 W. Ramona St. She has participated for three years in the achievement program.

Guerrillas of Indonesia Are Quitting Borneo

By ROBERT LIU

TOKYO (AP) — The long-delayed summit meeting to seek a road to peace between Indonesia and Malaysia begins Saturday following word that Indonesian guerrillas have finally begun pulling out of Malaysian Borneo.

The meeting of Indonesian President Sukarno, Malaysian Prime Minister Tunku Abdul Rahman and Philippine President Diosdado Macapagal is expected to end Sunday.

The schedule appeared brief in view of the number of grave problems facing Indonesia and Malaysia. But the participants have made clear they do not expect the meeting to resolve all the issues in the feud.

Macapagal, who promoted the summit meeting, said he would be satisfied if the stage is set for more conferences.

One point likely to be discussed is a Philippine proposal that the antagonists refer the Malaysian issue to a committee of four neutral Asian-African nations.

The first group of 32 armed Indonesian guerrillas passed through Tebedu checkpoint, in Malaysian Borneo, on their way to the border. It was presumed that the withdrawal would continue.

Malaysia, which estimated 200 or more Indonesians are in Malaysian Borneo, had said it would take part in the summit if the withdrawal was large enough to show Indonesian good intentions.

As soon as the 32 guerrillas passed through the checkpoint, Thai observers sent word to the foreign ministers of Indonesia, Malaysia and the Philippines in Tokyo. They went into session at once and 27 minutes later announced that the summit talks would begin Saturday.

The ministers agreed to recommend this agenda to their chiefs:

1. Review the present situation.

2. Consider proposals for peaceful settlement of problems.

Indonesia has vowed repeatedly that it intends to crush Malaysia, which it has denounced as a British creation to preserve British colonial influence in Southeast Asia.

The Philippines formally presented to Malaysia its claim to part of Malaysian Sabah, the former territory of British North Borneo. The move was a face-saving way out of the only dispute between Malaysia and the Philippines.

Italian Airline Grounded by Pilots' Strike

ROME (AP)—A 24-hour pilots strike grounded all flights of the state-owned Alitalia airline from Italian airports today.

The walkout, which started at midnight in a wage and contract dispute, hit both national and international flights.

Planes at airports outside Italy were reported taking off regularly. But their pilots had orders to strike at the first Italian airport they reached.

The strike was part of a wave of labor troubles presenting new problems for Premier Aldo Moro in his efforts to bring Italy out of an economic slump.

Unions of printers and other noneditorial personnel who closed all Italian daily papers with a one-day strike Wednesday announced they would call two more one-day strikes next week to support demands for wage increases.

Other labor agitation involved doctors, the state railways and the textile, iron and steel and stone quarrying industries.

The strike was Alitalia's second this month. Hostesses and stewards had been on an eight-day strike that was to end last midnight just as the pilots' strike started.

Cow Came to Lunch And Had a Mootini

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The sign atop the Hyatt House, a hotel-restaurant, said: "June is dairy month. Take a cow to lunch."

So Ray Hansen and his daughter, Ann, did. Hansen is president of the Dairy Valley Chamber of Commerce.

Betty Lou, the bovine, consumed some hay in the restaurant Thursday. She dressed for the occasion — in a flowered straw bonnet.

The sign atop the Hyatt House that afternoon said: "Guess what? Cow came to lunch and had a mootini."

Thunderstorms Sweep Wide Areas of U.S.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

More thunderstorms swept broad areas from Wisconsin to Kansas today after an outbreak of severe weather in many Midwest areas injured several persons and caused extensive property damage.

The belt of thunderstorms, with strong winds, heavy rain and hail, covered areas in the Dakotas, Minnesota, Iowa, Wisconsin, Missouri and Kansas. The storm, centered in northwestern Minnesota, headed eastward in advance of a cold front and swept warm, humid air into the sections of the Northeast.

Tornadoes Thursday struck areas in the Dakotas, Minnesota and Kansas. A tornado which hit farm areas near Bowdle, injured two persons. Six persons were injured near Glenwood, Minn., during a severe storm.

Several funnel clouds were sighted in a storm that hit areas in northeastern Kansas and northwestern Missouri. A tornado struck rural areas near Topeka. Three funnel clouds were spotted in the Kansas City region. Heavy rain was reported near Olathe, Kan., and Minot, N.D.

Showers fell in cool air in the northwestern quarter of the nation and showers were indicated in the Northeast, the Southeast and in the Lower Mississippi Valley.

Hot and humid weather continued in much of the southeast sections and some of the muggy air spread into sections of the Midwest. Temperatures ranged from the upper 70s and 80s in sections of the Southeast and 90 in southwest Texas to the low 40s in parts of Wyoming.

Widow Claims New World Flight Record

NEW YORK (AP) — Anna Hirschberg, 72, landed at the John F. Kennedy International Airport today and claimed a record of 57 hours and 52 minutes for a woman flying around the world by regularly scheduled commercial flights.

The previous record was 62 hours and 59 minutes.

Mrs. Hirschberg, a widow, said she had a total of about five hours sleep on her flight but wasn't "a bit tired or sleepy."

"Just let me eat a hot dog and I would be ready to go back around again," she said.

Mrs. Hirschberg of Lake Hopatcong, N.J., arrived here at 5:53 a.m. She had left at 8:01 p.m. Tuesday.

Mrs. Hirschberg was met here by her son, John Deermount—a translation from the German Hirschberg—49, of Manhattan.

She said she planned to go to her son's home and "get cleaned up," stay there today and go home to Lake Hopatcong by bus Saturday.

Mrs. Hirschberg said the trip cost her something over $2,000. Asked how she financed it, she said: "I save my money. I'm not extravagant."

The earlier woman's world commercial plane flight record was claimed by Sue Snyder of New York in June 1960.

The first published fairy tales were written by the Brothers Grimm and appeared in Germany between 1812 and 1822.

SHOT SHOCKS TENANTS

LONDON, Ky. (AP) — Basil Poynter was able to calm his wife and another customer after a .303 rifle discharged while a customer was examining it. The bullet went into the ceiling and no one was hurt. But he had more trouble calming upstairs-apartment dwellers who returned home and found a hole the size of a half dollar in the floor and a bullet in the mattress.

Guerrillas of Indonesia Are Quitting Borneo

By ROBERT LIU

TOKYO (AP) — The long-delayed summit meeting to seek a road to peace between Indonesia and Malaysia begins Saturday following word that Indonesian guerrillas have finally begun pulling out of Malaysian Borneo.

The meeting of Indonesian President Sukarno, Malaysian Prime Minister Tunku Abdul Rahman and Philippine President Diosdado Macapagal is expected to end Sunday.

The schedule appeared brief in view of the number of grave problems facing Indonesia and Malaysia. But the participants have made clear they do not expect the meeting to resolve all the issues in the feud.

Macapagal, who promoted the summit meeting, said he would be satisfied if the stage is set for more conferences.

One point likely to be discussed is a Philippine proposal that the antagonists refer the Malaysian issue to a committee of four neutral Asian-African nations.

The first group of 32 armed Indonesian guerrillas passed through Tebedu checkpoint, in Malaysian Borneo, on their way to the border. It was presumed that the withdrawal would continue.

Malaysia, which estimated 200 or more Indonesians are in Malaysian Borneo, had said it would take part in the summit if the withdrawal was large enough to show Indonesian good intentions.

As soon as the 32 guerrillas passed through the checkpoint, Thai observers sent word to the foreign ministers of Indonesia, Malaysia and the Philippines in Tokyo. They went into session at once and 27 minutes later announced that the summit talks would begin Saturday.

The ministers agreed to recommend this agenda to their chiefs:

1. Review the present situation.

2. Consider proposals for peaceful settlement of problems.

Indonesia has vowed repeatedly that it intends to crush Malaysia, which it has denounced as a British creation to preserve British colonial influence in Southeast Asia.

The Philippines formally presented to Malaysia its claim to part of Malaysian Sabah, the former territory of British North Borneo. The move was a face-saving way out of the only dispute between Malaysia and the Philippines.

Italian Airline Grounded by Pilots' Strike

ROME (AP)—A 24-hour pilots strike grounded all flights of the state-owned Alitalia airline from Italian airports today.

The walkout, which started at midnight in a wage and contract dispute, hit both national and international flights.

Planes at airports outside Italy were reported taking off regularly. But their pilots had orders to strike at the first Italian airport they reached.

The strike was part of a wave of labor troubles presenting new problems for Premier Aldo Moro in his efforts to bring Italy out of an economic slump.

Unions of printers and other noneditorial personnel who closed all Italian daily papers with a one-day strike Wednesday announced they would call two more one-day strikes next week to support demands for wage increases.

Other labor agitation involved doctors, the state railways and the textile, iron and steel and stone quarrying industries.

The strike was Alitalia's second this month. Hostesses and stewards had been on an eight-day strike that was to end last midnight just as the pilots' strike started.

Cow Came to Lunch And Had a Mootini

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The sign atop the Hyatt House, a hotel-restaurant, said: "June is dairy month. Take a cow to lunch."

So Ray Hansen and his daughter, Ann, did. Hansen is president of the Dairy Valley Chamber of Commerce.

Betty Lou, the bovine, consumed some hay in the restaurant Thursday. She dressed for the occasion — in a flowered straw bonnet.

The sign atop the Hyatt House that afternoon said: "Guess what? Cow came to lunch and had a mootini."

Thunderstorms Sweep Wide Areas of U.S.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

More thunderstorms swept broad areas from Wisconsin to Kansas today after an outbreak of severe weather in many Midwest areas injured several persons and caused extensive property damage.

The belt of thunderstorms, with strong winds, heavy rain and hail, covered areas in the Dakotas, Minnesota, Iowa, Wisconsin, Missouri and Kansas. The storm, centered in northwestern Minnesota, headed eastward in advance of a cold front and swept warm, humid air into the sections of the Northeast.

Tornadoes Thursday struck areas in the Dakotas, Minnesota and Kansas. A tornado which hit farm areas near Bowdle, injured two persons. Six persons were injured near Glenwood, Minn., during a severe storm.

Several funnel clouds were sighted in a storm that hit areas in northeastern Kansas and northwestern Missouri. A tornado struck rural areas near Topeka. Three funnel clouds were spotted in the Kansas City region. Heavy rain was reported near Olathe, Kan., and Minot, N.D.

Showers fell in cool air in the northwestern quarter of the nation and showers were indicated in the Northeast, the Southeast and in the Lower Mississippi Valley.

Hot and humid weather continued in much of the southeast sections and some of the muggy air spread into sections of the Midwest. Temperatures ranged from the upper 70s and 80s in sections of the Southeast and 90 in southwest Texas to the low 40s in parts of Wyoming.

Widow Claims New World Flight Record

NEW YORK (AP) — Anna Hirschberg, 72, landed at the John F. Kennedy International Airport today and claimed a record of 57 hours and 52 minutes for a woman flying around the world by regularly scheduled commercial flights.

The previous record was 62 hours and 59 minutes.

Mrs. Hirschberg, a widow, said she had a total of about five hours sleep on her flight but wasn't "a bit tired or sleepy."

"Just let me eat a hot dog and I would be ready to go back around again," she said.

Mrs. Hirschberg of Lake Hopatcong, N.J., arrived here at 5:53 a.m. She had left at 8:01 p.m. Tuesday.

Mrs. Hirschberg was met here by her son, John Deermount—a translation from the German Hirschberg—49, of Manhattan.

She said she planned to go to her son's home and "get cleaned up," stay there today and go home to Lake Hopatcong by bus Saturday.

Mrs. Hirschberg said the trip cost her something over $2,000. Asked how she financed it, she said: "I save my money. I'm not extravagant."

The earlier woman's world commercial plane flight record was claimed by Sue Snyder of New York in June 1960.

The first published fairy tales were written by the Brothers Grimm and appeared in Germany between 1812 and 1822.

SHOT SHOCKS TENANTS

LONDON, Ky. (AP) — Basil Poynter was able to calm his wife and another customer after a .303 rifle discharged while a custotner was examining it. The bullet went into the ceiling and no one was hurt. But he had more trouble calming upstairs-apartment dwellers who returned home and found a hole the size of a half dollar in the floor and a bullet in the mattress.

How many years before Father's Day were fathers enjoying Gordon's?

Exactly 141. For Alexander Gordon introduced his remarkable gin to London's fathers way back in 1769. The first official "Father's Day" took place in 1910 at Spokane, Washington. Today, Father's Day is celebrated throughout the nation while Gordon's is celebrated throughout the world. Indeed, it is the biggest-selling gin in all of England, America, the world. Probably because it still harks back to Mr. Gordon's original formula. We've never found reason to tamper with such distinctive dryness and rare flavour.

WORRY CLINIC

By George W. Crane, M.D., Ph.D.

Dr. Andrew C. Ivy may be in the same boat with Dr. Fleming! Since cancer is supposed to strike at least one out of every four of you readers, then scrapbook this case. Or mail it to any friend or relative who now is a cancer patient. And send for the "Cancer" booklet below.

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph. D., M. D.

CASE S-495: Today I'll continue re the Krebiozen feud.

"Dr. Crane," a phone call came to KYW in Cleveland while I was on the air for a 90-minute discussion of this new anti-cancer substance, "why are physicians so easily intimidated by the dictates of their medical society?"

Well, any medic may be dropped from the staff of the hospital if he doesn't belong to the A.M.A. This can ruin him professionally.

Even so, over 25 per cent of all American physicians are NOT members of the A.M.A.

Although I am a member of the A.M.A. and grant its many good points, such as its opposition to federal bureaucratic Medicare, I still reserve the right to point out its serious mistake re Krebiozen.

And be grateful you have this

newspaper to moderate all such public questions, otherwise you might be kept in ignorance until dictatorship entirely takes over at Wasington, D. C.

In Chicago last fall, a prominent surgeon, textbook author and eminent former teacher at the University of Illinois Medical School, was ordered to stop using Krebiozen or he'd be dropped from the hospital staff.

The hospital was reluctant to issue this order to him, for he was one of its most famous staff members and biggest producer of cash revenue.

But it, in turn, was threatened with losing its accreditation as a hospital and thus would get no interns from our medical colleges.

"Dr. Crane," another telephonist asked, "is Krebiozen harmful to a cancer patient? Does it have any bad medical side effects?"

No! Even the FDA and the A.M.A. opponents admit that Krebiozen has no medical ill effects.

Thus, it does no harm whatsoever to a cancer patient, even if the latter is in the terminal stages of cancer, or actually in a coma!

It causes no nausea or pain or damage to kidneys and other vital organs.

In fact, in a goodly number of cases of terminal cancer where morphine and other pain killing drugs will not mask the excruciating suffering, Krebiozen often stops all pain!

Alas, most of the cancer patients using Krebiozen have come to Dr. Ivy and the other 3,000 medics that administer it, only after they had been cut up repeatedly by surgeons and burned by all the X-ray they dare receive.

So Dr. Ivy's patients are usually the terminal hopeless cases, given up to die in a few weeks.

Even so, he has shown enough evidence of the value of Krebiozen to merit a fair clinical test.

And by "clinical test" Dr. Ivy means the injection of patients with Krebiozen. Instead, the FDA has been sitting in armchairs trying to solve scientific problems by "hot air" debates instead of clinical testing.

Dr. Alexander Fleming, discoverer of penicillin sadly stated:

"Penicillin sat on my shelf for 12 years while I wa scalled a quack.

"I can only think of the thousands who died needlessly because my peers would not use my discovery."

If you wish fuller data on "Krebiozen and Cancer," send a long stamped, return envelope, plus 20 cents for that booklet.

Scranton Takes Catnaps During Political Tour

By RICHARD L. GRAVES

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP)—Pennsylvania Gov. William W. Scranton's ability to catnap easily was the envy of his traveling companions on his chartered plane this week as he sought delegate strength for the Republican National Convention.

Scranton, 46, hopping from town to town on a whirlwind campaign tour, would don an eye shade in order to catch a cat nap on the campaign plane —and he would sleep soundly.

Suddenly, he would yank off the eye shade and be on his feet, strolling the crowded aisles of the plane, making small talk with newsmen and aides.

Scranton's first political swing since he announced his candidacy last Friday at the Maryland GOP convention at Baltimore, took him into five states—Iowa, Kansas, Minnesota, Missouri and Colorado.

At Des Moines nearly a thousand people turned out to greet Scranton, but some of them were Goldwater boosters. The rival cheering sections would have done justice to a Big Ten football game.

At Topeka the crowd numbered perhaps 50, counting people meeting other planes. A Big Ten football game.

At Topeka the crowd numbered perhaps 50, counting people meeting other planes. A Goldwater man was a one-man cheering section. He bellowed "We want Barry" at an unruffled Scranton.

At Minneapolis police stopped demonstrations after two threats were made against Scranton's life.

At Denver the police were in evidence again after another threat to Scranton.

Scranton is a ready handshaker. He has a strong grip—improved by his regular rounds of tennis.

Whether he piled up any first ballot votes among the delegates he met is a matter of speculation. He said he collected some support, but declined to talk figures.

World production of lead varies between two and 2.5 million tons a year.

WORRY CLINIC

By George W. Crane, M.D., Ph.D.

Dr. Andrew C. Ivy may be in the same boat with Dr. Fleming! Since cancer is supposed to strike at least one out of every four of you readers, then scrapbook this case. Or mail it to any friend or relative who now is a cancer patient. And send for the "Cancer" booklet below.

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph. D., M. D.

CASE S-495: Today I'll continue re the Krebiozen feud.

"Dr. Crane," a phone call came to KYW in Cleveland while I was on the air for a 90-minute discussion of this new anti-cancer substance, "why are physicians so easily intimidated by the dictates of their medical society?"

Well, any medic may be dropped from the staff of the hospital if he doesn't belong to the A.M.A. This can ruin him professionally.

Even so, over 25 per cent of all American physicians are NOT members of the A.M.A.

Although I am a member of the A.M.A. and grant its many good points, such as its opposition to federal bureaucratic Medicare, I still reserve the right to point out its serious mistake re Krebiozen.

And be grateful you have this newspaper to moderate all such public questions, otherwise you might be kept in ignorance until dictatorship entirely takes over at Wasington, D. C.

In Chicago last fall, a prominent surgeon, textbook author and eminent former teacher at the University of Illinois Medical School, was ordered to stop using Krebiozen or he'd be dropped from the hospital staff.

The hospital was reluctant to issue this order to him, for he was one of its most famous staff members and biggest producer of cash revenue.

But it, in turn, was threatened with losing its accreditation as a hospital and thus would get no interns from our medical colleges.

"Dr. Crane," another telephonist asked, "is Krebiozen harmful to a cancer patient? Does it have any bad medical side effects?"

No! Even the FDA and the A.M.A. opponents admit that Krebiozen has no medical ill effects.

Thus, it does no harm whatsoever to a cancer patient, even if the latter is in the terminal stages of cancer, or actually in a coma!

It causes no nausea or pain or damage to kidneys and other vital organs.

In fact, in a goodly number of cases of terminal cancer where morphine and other pain killing drugs will not mask the excruciating suffering, Krebiozen often stops all pain!

Alas, most of the cancer patients using Krebiozen have come to Dr. Ivy and the other 3,000 medics that administer it, only after they had been cut up repeatedly by surgeons and burned by all the X-ray they dare receive.

So Dr. Ivy's patients are usually the terminal hopeless cases, given up to die in a few weeks.

Even so, he has shown enough evidence of the value of Krebiozen to merit a fair clinical test.

And by "clinical test" Dr. Ivy means the injection of patients with Krebiozen. Instead, the FDA has been sitting in armchairs trying to solve scientific problems by "hot air" debates instead of clinical testing.

Dr. Alexander Fleming, discoverer of penicillin sadly stated:

"Penicillin sat on my shelf for 12 years while I wa scalled a quack.

"I can only think of the thousands who died needlessly because my peers would not use my discovery."

How many years before Father's Day were fathers enjoying Gordon's?

Exactly 141. For Alexander Gordon introduced his remarkable gin to London's fathers way back in 1769. The first official "Father's Day" took place in 1910 at Spokane, Washington. Today, Father's Day is celebrated throughout the nation while Gordon's is celebrated throughout the world. Indeed, it is the biggest-selling gin in all of England, America, the world. Probably because it still harks back to Mr. Gordon's original formula. We've never found reason to tamper with such distinctive dryness and rare flavour.
